BROOKLYN HAS THE WORLD'S GREATEST GIRL ATHLETES

TO successfully swim the narrows of New York harbor is quite a feat for a girl. Yet there lives in Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, N. Y., three young girls all of whom have made this great swim with ease.

They are Ethel, Vera and Beatrice Due, Ethel, who is 17 and weighs 124 pounds; Vera, who is 15 and weighs 116, and Beatrice is 12 and weighs 98 pounds. By this it may be judged that they are remarkably well proportioned young women.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Due. Both are students of physical culture and dwell strongly upon its good points relative to the "bringing up" of healthy children. Both Mr. and Mrs. Due are century bicyclists and are noted and splendid swimmers and all-around athletes. It is their belief that few parents realize what athletics will do for children, and they have made every effort in the training and bringing up of their youngsters to make them an object lesson in this particular.

WIZARD AT 15.

When Ethel was only 15 years old she made the swim of the narrows alone, and not only did she finish without difficulty but she was still strong enough to row a boat back to the starting point.

Not only Ethel but also her sisters have been swimming since they were the smallest kiddies, and their splendid looking young bodies, slim, erect and powerful, is evidence to convince the most skeptical of the benefits to be derived from the water and the soundness of the training of their parents.

In their last swim of the narrows the sisters were prepared for their great feat by their father, who swam with them.

Ethel gave Vera fifteen minutes and Beatrice a half hour. The distance from Fort Hamilton to Fort Wadsworth is just a mile and a quarter, but the tide makes it a tremendous task. Beatrice took the water first and the others at fifteen-minute intervals. The tide carried Beatrice up the bay to Sixteenth street before it turned. The other girls were able to swim in a more direct line. All of the girls were annoyed by the thick oil which floated on the surface and by steamers, the wash from which forced them to stop time and again. None of the girls felt any ill effects after the swim.

FATHER IS PROUD.

During the course of an interview with their father he had this to say regarding his remarkable children: "I believe it is not boasting when you speak the exact truth," said Mr. Due, "and I am able to prove that I do so when I say that my daughters are probably the most talented, skillful, athletic and all-around divers and swimmers in the United States. "We will take them as divers and swimmers; they have negotiated all manner of distances in the water and are in the championship class of long-distance swimming, and have made all the difficult long swims in good time and some times under great difficulties, as high winds, bad weather and tides do not always favor the dates selected. They have made it a point never to change a date, for an arranged swim or exhibition, and always start on the minute."

ONE OF CLEVEREST.

"Ethel, the eldest, is one of the cleverest divers known, performing every known dive (some thirty odd),

Cow Country Wants Teachers

OMAHA, Neb.—The annual report of J. W. Crabtree, state superintendent of public instruction, which has just been made public, shows that during the last year, in the rural portions of Nebraska, there have been more than 300 district schools that have been without teachers all or a part of the time. The majority of the schools that have been short of teachers are in the western part of the state, which is known as the "cow section of Nebraska."

The wages paid Nebraska rural school teachers range from $45 to $65 per month, but these are not sufficiently large to secure and hold young women who are capable of instructing the youth. Generally the difficulty seems to be that young women will not go into the country, preferring to teach in the towns, where the wages are from $5 to $10 per month less.

Another difficulty that women teachers have been experiencing is that of finding places to eat and sleep. Not all of the farmers are rich, but a large portion of them object to taking a boarder, contending that the best for the boarder is to get out of the house and find a room and board for a teacher. In some instances, teachers have been compelled to go two and three miles from their schools in order to find boarding places. In cases of this kind, the teachers have been compelled to buy horses, or bicycles in order to travel back and forth, the distance being too great to walk before and after the daily sessions of school. Out in Box Butte county, in the northwestern portion of the state, some of the teachers have partitioned a corner of their schoolhouses, installed stoves and beds and there board themselves.

MATRIMONY IS BIG HANDICAP.

While the boarding and rooming question has hampered the directors of many school districts and prevented them from getting and keeping teachers, another thing and one much more serious, has presented itself. They have found that if teachers have been matrimonially inclined, the majority of them have married long ere the end of the term for which they contracted to teach. While not entirely so, the western part of Nebraska constitutes a community of men who are single, the majority of whom are looking for wives. They are not all rich, but they are all land owners, many of them having ranches of 1,000 or more acres and few with less than half this quantity, as they are mostly known as "Kincadeers," a name applied to every rancher or farmer who owns to exceed a section—640 acres of land.

There are two reasons why the Nebraska "Kincadeers" have not married. One reason is because they have not felt that they could take the time to leave the ranch, go out into the old settled sections, court and eventually win a wife. It would not do to permit the ranch to go to destruction, something that would happen if they went out on a long courting expedition.

TEACHER'S ARRIVAL BIG EVENT.

In many of the counties the proportion of women, especially those of marriageable age, is small, being something like one to ten, according to the census figures. As a result, no average single man has stood much of a show in securing a wife out of his own neighborhood. Thus it is readily seen that when young, attractive and educated women have gone out into the "cow country" to teach school, if they did not object, their term of employment would be short.

In almost any of the "cow counties," the coming of a teacher is hailed with joy by from 25 to 50 single men, all of whom immediately proceed to lay siege to the citadel of her heart. The suit is pressed with such vigor that usually before the end of one term of school, the young woman has capitulated and has accepted one of her many suitors, giving up her school and becoming the happy wife of a rich land owner.

Woman Sentences Hubby

WEST HAMMOND, Ind.—Mrs. Thomas Lickley, claiming her husband had hurled sunny breakfast dishes at her, caused his arrest. Trial was held before Judge Frank Green, who after hearing witnesses on both sides, called the wife to the bench and said:

"Now, Mrs. Lickley, you have heard the evidence on both sides. I will let you be the judge and you may impose any sentence on your husband in conformity with law."

Lickley's face blanched as he said:

"Here's where I go to jail until warm weather."

"Tom, I sentence you to ten days' separation from me."

Judge Green gasped and exclaimed:

"Woman's vanity! Is that the worst punishment you can inflict on your husband?"

Mrs. Lickley said it was, and her husband told the judge he would take a ten day rest.

OWNERS TO ASSIST U. S. IN RAISING GOOD ARMY HORSES

THAT the horseless age is fast approaching cannot be better illustrated than by the fact that for some time army officers and Department of Agriculture have been uneasy over the lack of proper horses in this country for use of the cavalry and artillery in case of war.

For solely business uses the breeding of good horses in America is rapidly on the decline. That the automobile has come to stay is now so generally recognized that it is no longer a subject for argument and that in the course of a very few years it will be so generally in use for every variety of travel and hauling for which the horse is now depended upon is also freely acknowledged. There is no doubt that for purely commercial purposes the horse is doomed.

Consequently horse breeding has

GOOD HORSES RARE.

According to a comprehensive report on the subject issued by the Bureau of Animal Industry of the War Department it appears that there is much trouble in finding suitable horses for the army in time of peace, and nothing of the demands which would be made in case of a war of any magnitude should break out.

Little less important to the army than having the right kind of recruits is the matter of knowing where to lay hands on good horses. It is generally acknowledged that the superiority of the Southern cavalry in its early stages was due to having plenty of well-bred horses.

In this country now are about 23,000,000 horses, but the army type is hard to obtain.

Captain Conrad pronounces the present scarcity of horses suitable for army use appalling, and even more appalling, he says, is the large number of unsound horses constantly being examined. He ascribes this to an "absolutely irrational system of breeding, or the lack of any system whatever."

COW PONY DISAPPEARING.

The cow pony of the West is said to be disappearing and the hunter-bred horse of Virginia is getting more and more scarce, according to Captain Conrad. He recommends legislation by the States generally to prevent the breeding of unsound horses.

In 1908 the government established the system of remount depots for the army. Under this system the government buys the horses young, at three to four years old, and after breaking them, issues them to the troops. This system has been found preferable to purchasing the animals when matured. But what the army officers want and also the Department of Agriculture is a system of government supervision of the breeding of horses.

This would about supply the demands in time of peace.

COUNTRY DIVIDED.

It is proposed to divide the country into four districts and to rear Morgans, thoroughbreds, standardbreds and saddlers. In time, the best type would be discovered.

Captain Conrad emphasizes the tremendous loss of horses incidental to war. In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1864, the federal government purchased for the army 138,718 horses, and there were 29,388 captured from the enemy. The army at that time was requiring 500 new horses a day. In the eight months of 1864 when service was most active the cavalry of the Army of the Potomac was supplied with nearly 40,000 horses.

An astonishing instance of the demand for horseflesh was afforded in Napoleon's Russian campaign. The French crossed the Nieman and started on that campaign with 127,121 horses for the cavalry, artillery and trains. In December they retreated back across the Nieman with only 1600 horses left.

The report of the bureau of animal industry has naturally attracted much attention from lovers of the horse, and generally among these men the government position has been much deplored.

BELMONT GENEROUS.

A few days ago at the annual sportsmen's dinner at New York, August Belmont, the well known banker and perhaps the most prominent race horse owner and lover in this country, made the offer to give to the government for breeding purposes three of his most famous racing stallions.

At about the same time E. D. Cassatt, son of the late A. J. Cassatt and a former cavalry officer, offered to give three of the noted stallions belonging to the Cassatt stock farm.

Just when it was feared that the gifts must consequently be declined it was discovered that the work might be carried on through the bureau of animal industry, Department of Agriculture.

Following a conference with Perry Belmont, brother of the donor, and with the chief of the bureau of animal industry, Department of Agriculture, it was found that it would be possible to thus accept the gifts, and according to Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, notified Belmont and Cassatt of the acceptance.

Chief Rommel of the bureau has a plan for breeding cavalry mounts and horses for other military purposes at an initial expenditure of $250,000.

The experiment which Uncle Sam is therefore about to undertake in raising his own army horses will be watched with great interest not only by our War Department, but also by those of the various nations of the earth which maintain large standing armies.

POISONER'S WIFE CRAZED BY HUSBAND'S GUILT

ST. PETERSBURG.—There is a sequel to the coroner's report of Count O'Brien de Lassy for the murder of Count Vassili Bouturlin, for which crime he was sentenced to penal servitude for life. His wife, who was the sister of Count Vassili and the daughter of General Bouturlin, has become insane.

Immediately after the verdict, Countess de Lassy announced her intention of going to Siberia with her husband. Then she disappeared. She was recognized today in a tramway car by a lawyer engaged in the case. He detained her and with the help of the police took her to General Bouturlin's residence. There she disclosed that she had lost her mind.

Seeks Cipher in the River Bed

LONDON.—During the last three days general attention has once more been called to the evergreen Bacon-Shakespeare controversy by the news that Dr. Orville Owen of Detroit has been extensively digging in the bed of the River Wye at Chepstow.

The doctor is not digging for treasures. Besides himself and the Duke of Beaufort, whom he has succeeded in interesting in his search, no one knows exactly the nature of his mysterious quest. The American has declared, however, that he hopes to discover nothing less than undisputed proofs that Bacon was the real author of the Shakespearean plays.

It is asserted by some Baconians that Sir Francis Bacon was a son of Queen Elizabeth and rightful heir to the throne, and that he published things which he dared not publish under his own name, hiding them by means of a cipher in his plays, which were issued under the name of Shakespeare.

SEEKS MYSTERIOUS CIPHER.

It is this cipher which Dr. Owen has come from Detroit to England to find. He had been laying his plans more than a year, and now has succeeded in obtaining leave to make extensive excavations in the mud of the Wye on the property of the Duke of Beaufort. The work can only be accomplished at low tide, and the strenuous efforts of a dozen diggers already have produced results which the American doctor considers justify his search. A few boxes of color were placed in the mud, and from one of the numerous holes dug in the river bed.

"Logs float," argues Dr. Owen. "They could not be imbedded in the mud unless purposely placed there, and hence it is much the sort of thing that would be used in walling up a hidden object."

The doctor declared he was under contract not to divulge the first fruits of his search to the newspapers, and refused to tell how he discovered the exact spot where, according to his belief, lies the key to the great literary question.

It has, however, transpired that one clue was given him by a line in the first folio edition, 1623, of Shakespeare opposite the portrait.

"It was for gentle Shakespeare cut," which can be read into "Seek, sir, for a true angle at Chepstow."

CHEPSTOW CASTLE EXPLORED.

Owen spent last year searching for the "angle" and explored Chepstow castle without results. As soon as he received the Duke of Beaufort's permission, it is said, the doctor, who never had been at Chepstow before, found his way through the woods to a spot one mile from the castle, towards the Wye. He walked with the secret of his cipher and without hesitation directed the workmen to begin digging at a certain bend in the river.

According to an Express correspondent Dr. Owen showed him the source of the information which enabled him to locate the precise spot where a manuscript was hidden. It is a long scroll, thirty-five feet in length and a yard wide, which at first glance appears nothing more than a conglomeration of printed letters and quite meaningless.

If, however, the words are picked out in epigrammatic formation they make a group and sentences such as "I filled up the shallow water with mud and beams," "I turned the course of the river," and "make a triangle of 123 feet due north and 53 paces" become plainly visible.

After a private consultation with engineers Dr. Owen, Dr. Prescott, and a representative of the Duke of Beaufort decided to begin work on a much larger scale next week. A large cofferdam will be constructed, which will embrace the entire area covered by the "true angle."

Widespread interest is shown in the revelation of Owen's prospects and hopes. The doctor's clue in the translation of the mud of the Wye on the property of the Duke of Beaufort is, however, regarded rather skeptically.

Robert Unlatch Fitzgerald writes the Express:

"If you take the letters forming the inscription from which the learned doctor derives his conclusions, you will find me that the true interpretation is obviously as follows: 'P. S. this Owen real cuts great fake S.' The last S is, of course, the initial of the bard's name, which proves beyond doubt that he composed both plays and anagram."

Married 41 Days; Granted Divorce

PORTLAND, Ore.—Married forty-one days, Robert D. Inman, millionaire lumberman, was granted a divorce by Judge Campbell of Hillsboro, Washington county. They were married in Chicago on January 15.

Mrs. Inman was Mrs. Minnie Bryan, a former resident of Portland, moved to Chicago some time before the wedding with the announcement of which the lumberman surprised his friends by telegraph last month.

The ground for divorce alleged by Inman was cruel and inhuman treatment. A substantial property settlement was made by the millionaire to his ex-wife.

Brothers Fight for Hand of a Girl

WILKES-BARRE.—Michael Volek of Sawyerville and his younger brother, Andrew, fell in love with Annie Frisfall, 21, and pretty Michael asked Arthur to abandon his suit. He refused. They consulted Annie. She said she preferred Andrew, who was nearer her own age. Michael proposed that he and Andrew have a fist fight, the winner to marry the girl. Andrew agreed.

The fight took place last Thursday. In the fourth round Michael weepingly acknowledged that he was beaten. Then he acted as best man at the wedding. Andrew's happiness aroused Michael's jealousy and today he had Andrew arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. After hearing the facts Justice Miller discharged Andrew.

Strong Girl Beats Man Who Jilted Her

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Because he promised to marry her and failed to keep his promise, John Gates, who is connected with a local employment agency, was given the worst beating of his life by Miss Alice M. Dobbs.

The young woman, who is muscular, with a strong right arm, went to Gates' office and mauled him until he yelled for the police.

Society Girl Stops Runaway Horse

LENOX, Mass.—Miss Dorothy Forbes of Boston, who is here for Washington's Birthday, as the guest of Mrs. James Lawrence Jr., stopped a runaway horse in the business center of Lenox.

Miss Forbes and Mrs. Lawrence were taking a walk when out of a side street, at full speed, appeared a large gray driving horse attached to a sleigh. The horse slackened its speed and Miss Forbes showed her nerve and horsemanship by taking advantage of the moment.

She ran out into the highway and caught the reins, which had been dragged, and brought the horse to a standstill.

for the army. European countries have adopted this plan.

A plan has been devised by Chief George M. Rommel, of the animal husbandry division of the bureau of animal industry, whereby from 2000 to 2500 well bred animals would be available for the army every year.

Gave Another's Wife Spending Money

HAMMOND, Ind.—During the absence of her husband, who is employed at Roby, Mrs. Michael Seles accepted the invitation of Joseph Kotowski to an outing. Joseph gave Mrs. Seles $5 as spending money.

Seles was notified yesterday that Judge Atchison of Whiting had been asked to give judgment against him for $6. Seles knew nothing of his young wife's pleasure trip with Kotowski until the suit was brought. He told the judge he didn't know why he should pay. The judge has taken the case under advisement.

A Windy March Day to School

Hetty MacDonald's Birthday Party

By Elizabeth Elliot

If any one had ever called Hetty MacDonald's attention to the matter, she would have agreed that it wasn't much fun to be the middle one. She adored her grown-up sister, tall, pretty, blonde Christine; and was scarcely less devoted to her second sister, Virginia, who was just about to leave school. And as to the twins, whose classic names, Romulus and Remus, were always abbreviated to Omy and Emy, which was more convenient if not as imposing, it would have been hard to persuade Hetty that there ever had been or ever would be again two such darling, mischievous, lovable boys as they were.

Much as she loved the twins, there were times when Hetty found them rather a trial. They were only five, and of such unwearying activity that they still really needed the undivided attention of an athletic nurse with muscles of steel and no nervous system. But Mrs. MacDonald could not afford this luxury; and, as she was a very busy woman herself, the sisters had to divide the care of the boys between them. When Hetty came home from school she was always warmly welcomed by Christine, who had been more or less on duty all day; and by the twins, too, for Hetty was much more fun than the older sister, who had theories about prompt obedience, consideration for others, etc., which were far too much of a handicap for their free spirits.

Somehow it came to be known in school that Saturday was Hetty's birthday. She didn't remember having mentioned it; there wasn't much time or money spent on birthdays in the MacDonald family. She would much rather nothing had been known about it. All the girls in her class, as their birthdays came round, had had a party. These had been the occasion of great excitement and anticipation. Hetty had been asked with the others, and had eagerly accepted the invitation. She knew she would be expected to reciprocate and, in her turn, to entertain the class. She had said as much as she dared on the subject at home, but had received no encouragement whatever.

"Please, Hetty dear, don't ask to have a party this year," said her mother. "I have all I can do now attending to Christine's company. Just rip this ruffle off, and then run down and see what the twins are about."

So Hetty dropped the subject, except for a scattering fire of broad hints, which were not even recognized as hints by the family. But, though dropped at home, the theme persistently bobbed up at school.

"Isn't next Saturday your birthday, Hetty?" asked Marion Dodge at recess.

The miserable Hetty confessed that it was.

"You'll be thirteen, won't you?" went on the inextinguishable Marion. "Going to have a party?"

"Don't bother me, Marion," said Hetty, with unaccustomed civility. "I've just got to finish this map before school begins."

But the subject was only postponed, not abandoned. After school, as the girls were getting on their hats, another girl opened it. This time it was Katherine Carter.

"You'll be thirteen Saturday, won't you, Hetty?" she said. "Isn't it fun to have your birthday come on Saturday? You're going to have a party, of course?"

"Yes, Hetty," chimed in the eager chorus; "do tell us. Are you going to have a party?"

Driven to the wall, Hetty realized that there was no possibility of evading the question. She never knew what spirit of desperation took sudden possession of her.

"Yes," she said calmly. "I am. All of you come Saturday afternoon at three o'clock."

There was a joyous chorus of acceptances, and Hetty found herself a very popular personage, walking home in the midst of a lively group gaily planning what they should wear and what they should do at her party. She found it somewhat difficult to enter into the spirit of the occasion, as her mind would wander to the question of how she should break the news to her mother, and how it would be received.

As she parted with Marion, the last of the group, and made the rest of her way alone, Hetty's heart sank lower. How was she ever going to face her mother and tell her what she had done? She resolved that she would do it right away, and at least have that part of the problem off her mind. But when she reached home she saw at once that this was no time to act on her resolution.

Her mother met her at the door.

"Oh, Hetty, child, I thought you were never coming," she said. "Please run right down and get some more sewing-silk to match these samples. Miss Gilbert will be all out of it in fifteen minutes. And you'd better take Emy and Omy with you. It is perfectly impossible for us to attend to them and the sewing at the same time."

Hetty thought to herself rather grimly: "I'll just say right out: 'Mother, I'm going to have a party Saturday.'"

But she thought better of it and started off on her errand, with the twins gaily trotting at her heels or ahead of her, frolicking like young colts in their joy at being released from the bondage of indoors, and traveling four or five times each block of the way as they pranced back and forth. Hetty plodded along with unusual unresponsiveness, going over and over in her mind the various ways she could plan of telling her mother what she had done. When she came home again there were lessons and the twins, the table to set and the twins, and a general hurry and scramble till those little time-consumers had been put to bed. After they were asleep they looked so angelic, with their white nightgowns and their clean faces, that Hetty stayed for several extra kisses and felt mean that she had ever got tired of them. She determined to stay awake till her mother came up, in order to get the load off her mind; but the quiet and darkness were too much for her healthy and tired little body, and she never knew when her mother stooped to tuck her in and kiss her good night, nor anything more till she was awakened in the bright morning sunshine by a heavy pillow thumping her on the face as it missed Omy.

There was never time in the morning, when there was always a frantic rush to get through everything that had to be done before time to go to school; so Hetty started off with her lunch and her books and the much heavier burden of black care riding on her shoulder.

At school it was no better. As her class assembled and at recess in the lively twitter of girls' voices there was an ever-recurring refrain of "Hetty MacDonald's party." "Hetty MacDonald's party," which poor Hetty thought would drive her mad.

On returning home, a strange serenity reigned in the house. There was no one visible till Hetty went upstairs and found Virginia hard at work on her Latin, the high-school girls being released an hour earlier than those of the lower grades.

"Where's mother?" demanded Hetty.

"She's gone," said Virginia, absently. "Aunt Ruth's ill and mother is to stay with her all night."

Hetty's heart felt like lead. All night! In the morning it would be too late. Oh, why hadn't she told her mother at first? How much worse it was to have it all come upon her at the last minute! It was so worried that even her sisters noticed her depression and said:

"Are you ill, Hetty? For goodness' sake, don't get ill, while mother is away."

"I've got a sort of headache," stammered Hetty; "I think I'll go to bed soon."

After she had gone, Christine said rather anxiously: "The child looks pale, and she never talks about headache. I do hope she isn't going to be ill."

"Oh, she's just tired romping," said Virginia, easily. "Do see if you can help me make any sense of this Latin gibberish."

For once Hetty lay awake, heavy-hearted. When she did finally get to sleep, her last waking thought was a fervent wish:

She "just hoped there would be an awful thunder-storm, so that the girls couldn't come."

But the gay morning sunshine blighted poor Hetty's hopes of a storm. Her mother came home about noon, to be greeted with as warm a welcome as if she had been gone a week. But Hetty watched the clock feverishly as the hours slipped by.

"Nothing will happen," she thought desperately. "Nothing will happen. They are all getting ready to come now."

The early afternoon sped quickly. It was nearly three o'clock when her mother came upstairs, where Hetty was studying her lessons.

"Hetty," she said, "I wish you would—why, child, what have you put on your best frock for?"

Hetty turned red, and the tears so long kept back, sprang to her eyes.

"Oh, mother," she began, half sobbing. "Somehow I never could tell you—"

But at this moment Emy and Omy dashed into the room, both talking at once and fairly bursting with importance.

"Hetty," panted Emy, "'s a lot of girls downstairs, all dressed up—"

"And they say," screeched Omy, drowning him out, "they've come to Hetty's party!"

"What in the world are you children talking about?" inquired their mother, in a vexed tone. Then, with sudden realization of Hetty's words and her dress, "Hetty," she said sternly, "did you know they were coming?"

"Yes, mother, I did," sobbed Hetty.

To Mrs. MacDonald, with her Southern instincts and traditions of hospitality, that "yes" transformed the girls from simple school-girl comrades into the sacredness of "invited company," with all its recognized rights.

"Boys," she said, turning to the twins with swift decision, "go right down and tell the girls that Hetty will be there in a minute; I am just fixing her hair. And then you come back and get your clean frock."

The twins thumped down the stairs proclaiming in piercing tones on each step: "Hetty's got a party! Hetty's got a party!"

"Now, Hetty," said her mother, quietly, "tell me all about it, quickly, while I braid your hair. And whatever you do, don't cry."

Hetty swallowed her tears, and, while her mother with quick, deft fingers braided her hair and tied on her best bows, stammered out her story of how all the girls had parties on their birthdays, how she had never had a party, and when they asked her she couldn't bear to say no; and how she had tried to tell her mother.

"Well," said her mother, decidedly, "I'll do what I can for you; but it is a particularly inconvenient day, and I never heard of anything so inconsiderate. Now go downstairs and entertain them, and keep the parlor door shut, and send Emy and Omy to me, and tell Virginia she may leave her practising and come to me here."

Hetty turned to start, about as cheerfully as if she had been going straight to the annual school examination. Her mother saw the downcast air and the pathetic appeal in the little girl's eyes, and her whole motherly nature sprang to meet it. Busy and hurried as she was, her duty to the guests had been uppermost, but at that look came the thought of her duty to her own little girl.

"Darling," she said, "never mind. Don't look so mournful. Go, and have a good time. Mother'll fix things for you."

"Oh, mother," gasped Hetty, "you are so good!"

And then she ran downstairs with a feeling of warm comfort around her heart which she had not known for days; and it was not many minutes before the chatter and laughter of the gay girls' voices convinced Mrs. MacDonald that the party was well under way.

To Hetty, in the parlor, the afternoon sped away like a happy dream. She caught a glimpse of Virginia flashing past the window on her wheel, riding like mad

THE DARING OF "STRIPES TERROR-TAIL"

By CHARLES G. D. ROBERTS.

WHAT would you do if a bear came at you, Uncle Andy?" inquired the Shanty Kid.

"Run!" said Uncle Andy promptly, "unless I had a gun!"

The Shanty Kid thought deeply for a moment. He quite agreed with Uncle Andy.

And what would you do if a little, teeny, black-and-white striped skunk came at you?" he asked.

"Run like sixty!" responded Uncle Andy, still more promptly.

"But a skunk's so little!" urged the Shanty Kid. "Will he bite?"

"Bite!" retorted Uncle Andy scornfully. "He doesn't have to. It appears to me you don't know skunks very well!"

"Huh!" said the Shanty Kid. "I've smelt 'em. But smells can't hurt anybody."

"With your notions of skunks," answered Uncle Andy, "you're going to get yourself into a heap of trouble one of these days. I'd better tell you about what happened once when a small young skunk, out walking all by himself in the dewy twilight happened to meet a large young bear."

Now the Shanty Kid had a great respect for bears.

"Huh!" said he. "What could he do to a bear?"

"The little skunk's name," said Uncle Andy, paying no heed to the interruption, "was Stripes Terror-Tail. He was a pretty fellow, black and glossy, with two clear white stripes down his back, one on each side of his backbone. His tail was long and bushy, and carried high in a graceful curve; and he was about the size of a half-grown kitten. Generally, he went hunting with the rest of his family, for the Terror-Tails are affectionate and fond of each other's companionship. But each one does just as he likes, in his easy way, so, on this evening I am telling you about, little Stripes had strolled off by himself over the dewy hillocks, catching fat crickets in the dim twilight, and hoping every minute that he might find a ground-sparrow's nest."

"Did he rob birds' nests?" asked the Shanty Kid, remembering that this was one of the deadly sins.

"He certainly did!" said Uncle Andy, who didn't like to be interrupted. "That is, when he had a chance. Well, as luck would have it, a young bear was out nosing around the hillocks that evening, amusing himself with the fat crickets. He wasn't very hungry, being chuck-full of the first blueberries. He would sit back on his haunches, like a tremendous overgrown black down-town. Then all anxiety rolled off her mind and the glad buoyancy of childhood asserted itself. Everything was all right. Mother knew about it; mother would see to things. Then it seemed no time before Virginia was in the parlor, in a fresh white dress and with her hair tied at the back of her neck with a perfectly enormous white bow, pounding out two-steps with bobbled about the room, under the impression that they were dancing. Then from some mysterious corner Virginia produced a large black-and-white map of Cinderella—it could hardly be called a picture—with her foot poised ready for the calico slippers which the blindfolded girls did their best to pin on it. Such joyous shrieks as they stuck them wildly on the walls and the curtains and one another, and everywhere but on the prettily poised foot! And where did Virginia get the pretty Japanese fan which Katherine Elliot waved proudly as the prize, and the red tin horn on which Gortrude Lansing loudly tooted her despair at being the booby? At the sound of the horn the twins could no longer be held in leash, but burst tumultuously into the room, in their clean duck suits, and were rapturously welcomed by the girls, who thought them "too cunning for anything."

From time to time Hetty caught sounds of rustling and the clinking of china in the dining-room behind the folding-doors. The effect was distinctly "partyish" and delightfully promising. But when the doors at last rolled back, it seemed to the little girl as if her heart would burst with its mixture of pride, gratitude, remorse, and affection, as she saw the dining-room. It was carefully darkened to give effect to the festive light of wax candles. There was her mother, dressed in her best black-lace dress, passing round the prettiest painted plates. Christine, in her pretty new pale-green mouseline, with a knot of black velvet high up in her yellow hair, was pouring chocolate into the best cups, and dropping generous "dabs" of whipped cream on top of each one. There were the most enchanting little rolled sandwiches and brown and pink and green ice-cream. There were even crackers to pull. But the crowning glory was a massive white cake in the center of the table. Hetty instantly recognized its fluted cornice and turret as adornments she had seen in the confectioner's window only the day before. But, wreathed with vivid nasturtiums and with thirteen red candles burning in a dazzling circle upon it, it was indeed a glittering vision.

After it was all over, and Virginia had got out her camera and "taken" the pretty group of girls in their white frocks out on the piazza, and happy Hetty had received the last assurance of "the loveliest time," "the nicest party we ever had," etc., and the last white frock had fluttered away, the little girl flew back to the dining-room, where her mother was busy "clearing up."

"Dearest, darling mother," she cried, "how good you were! I didn't deserve it! I had been such a sinner! But it was the beautifullest real party! How did you ever manage it?"

Not a word did Mrs. MacDonald say about the plans she had given up for that Saturday afternoon, or the economies she must practise to make up for the unusual expense.

"Well, we did have to fly round," she said cheerfully, "but we are so glad it was such a success, for your sake, dear."

"I'll never ask for any more parties again as long as I live," said Hetty, contritely.

"Oh, yes, you will, for a good many, I hope. Never neglect, though, to consult your mother first, for you may be sure that if it is possible and she thinks it wise, you can always depend upon her permission and help."

With such violence that the deadly oil, blinding and suffocating, would be shot forth to a distance of several feet, right into the face of the enemy. And that, let me tell you, was never good for the enemy!

"Why?" demanded the Shanty Kid.

"When Stripes, quite civilly, looked at the bear, and then went on to smell around under the juniper bush for that bird's nest which didn't seem to be there, the bear was much puzzled. He put out his paw again, and again drew it back. Then he said 'Wah!' quite loud and sharp, to see if that would frighten the quiet stranger. But Stripes didn't seem to mind noises like that. His bright, intelligent eyes were on the bear all the time, you know, though he seemed to be so busy hunting for that bird's nest."

"Pooh!" said the bear to himself, "he's just plain idiot—that's what's the matter with him. I'll eat him, anyway! And he bounced forward, with paw uplifted, intending to gather Stripes in like a fat cricket."

Here Uncle Andy was so inconsiderate as to pause. The Shanty Kid clutched his arm.

"Well," he went on presently, "just at this moment Stripes made as if he was going to run away, after all. He whisked round, and jumped about two feet, and his fine tail flew up over his back, and in that very instant the bear thought the whole side of the hill had struck him in the face."

"He stopped with a bump, his nose went straight up in the air, and he squalled—'Wah-ah, wah-ah.' But in the middle of these remarks he choked and strangled, and fell to pawing wildly at his nose, trying to get his breath. His eyes were shut tight, and that deadly oil clung like glue. His paws couldn't begin to get it off; so he fell to rooting his nose in the turf like a pig, and plowing the grass with his whole face, fairly standing on his head in his efforts, all the time coughing and gurgling as if he were having a fit. His behavior, in fact, was perfectly ridiculous; but there was no one there to laugh at it but Stripes, and he was too polite. He just strolled on quietly to another bush, and kept looking for that bird's nest. And at last the bear, what with pawing and rooting, managed to get his breath and open his eyes. He yawned a bit more, and then sat up, his nose full of dirt and moss and grass hanging all over his face. He was a sight, I tell you! And how he did dislike himself. As he sat there, thinking how he'd ever got away from himself, he caught sight of Stripes, strolling away quietly over the brown hillocks. Sitting back on his haunches he blinked at the little leisurely black-and-white figure.

"And to think I was going to eat that!" he said to himself sadly.

As for Stripes, nothing was further from his mind than running away from the big black creature that had suddenly got in front of him. It was not for a plump little skunk to be taking violent exercise on a hot night. Yet he didn't want to walk right over the bear—not at all. And he had no intention of making things disagreeable for the clumsy-looking stranger.

"Huh! what could he do to him?" interrupted the Shanty Kid again. He had the greatest faith in bears.

"Will you wait?" said Uncle Andy. "But first let me explain to you the peculiar weapon with which Stripes and all the Terror-Tail family do their fighting when they have to fight—which they are quite too polite to do unnecessarily. Some distance below his bushy, graceful tail, Stripes had a shallow pit or little bag of very tough skin containing an oil of terrible power. The strong muscles surrounding this bag kept the mouth of it always so tightly closed that not an atom could get out to soil the little owner's clean, dainty fur or cause the slightest smell. In fact, Stripes was altogether one of the cleanest and daintiest and most gentlemanly of all the wild creatures. But when he had to, he could draw in those muscles around the oil bag with such violence that the deadly oil, blinding and suffocating, would be shot forth to a distance of several feet, right into the face of the enemy. And that, let me tell you, was never good for the enemy!

ITHACA, N. Y.—March 11.—The barber shops of Ithaca are expecting a rushing business as the result of a manifesto issued by the general committee that no undergraduates shall wear a mustache.

That adornment has gradually come back into fashion among the Cornell students and sophomores and even freshmen have sprung them of late. At a meeting of the general committee, the body of upper classes made rules for the conduct of freshmen, complaint was made that the freshmen were setting altogether too common, and it was decided sophomores and freshmen would not be allowed to wear them.

Violations of the rule will be enforced by summary punishment.

SMART TEA.
At a beautifully appointed tea given in Riverside the other afternoon an announcement of much interest in San Francisco and Berkeley was made when the guests discovered in the corsage bouquets of violets with which they were presented upon their arrival, two tiny initialed hearts.

The hearts made known the engagement of Miss Mary Baldwin and Clarence Wall Hobbs. Miss Baldwin is one of the popular Riverside buds, daughter of H. P. Baldwin, an orange grower of the southern city, and sister of Mrs. O. D. Baldwin of Berkeley.

Mr. Hobbs is the only son of the late J. K. C. Hobbs of San Francisco and graduated from the University of California with the winter class of 1910. He is a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity, the Skull and Keys and the Alpha Zeta and was prominent in college affairs. Hobbs' work at the university was done in the agricultural department and he has recently purchased orange land in Porterville, where after their marriage in the fall the young couple will make their home.

The tea at which the engagement was announced was given by Mrs. O. D. Baldwin at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Holmes of Prospect Place, Riverside, was a charming affair in all its appointments. Violet shaded lights and great masses of beautiful flowers decorated the attractive home.

Paris, March 11.—The coming of lent is always a time of much interest in that part of Paris where the queen of queens, the election figure in the historic mid-lenten feast—is chosen.

The election takes place a few weeks prior to the opening of the pantomime of each year, and interest in the selection of the girl who will be crowned sovereign of the festival is always widespread and acute.

The election of the perfect girl, the favored one was one of the workers in the hall, but for the first time an outsider has been chosen this year.

Miss Jeanne Quere, whose selection has just been announced, is a beautiful girl and well fitted for the enviable position she will fill. She sells stationery and leather goods in a big shop on the boulevard, and is described as being most charming and decidedly popular.

Her age is 21 and she is tall, graceful and of a most perfect figure.

The lenten festivities this year are expected to be more than ordinarily imposing and elaborate, and visiting "queens" will attend from many other cities and towns. In the great mid-lenten procession, Miss Quere will be given a three performances, May 29 and 30, with a matinee on the latter date (Memorial Day).

The proceeds of the big show will be devoted to the entertainment of visiting Eagles during the coming Grand Aerie session in August, when it is proposed to have a special Alameda County day set aside for the reception of delegates on this side of the bay. The various chambers of commerce, boards of trade, merchants' exchanges and kindred organizations throughout the county are being conferred with in order to arrange a program of entertainment for the occasion, as delegates will be present from all over the United States and Canada.

Minstrel Team Has Been Made a Trio
MONTICELLO, N. Y., March 11.—The Carpenter and McSweeney minstrel team has been made a trio by the addition of a real con, which came to them under singular circumstances.

As the men were crossing a wild stretch of country near here they espied a raccoon sitting in the branches of a tree. Their first impulse was to capture it alive, and in order to do so McSweeney bent the sapling over until it was a few feet of the ground. Then he let go.

The raccoon came down and

SCANDAL THREATENS TO SHAKE RUSSIA

NORWAY PUTS WOMAN ON PLANE WITH MAN

Another Step Taken to Advance Fair Sex; Political Equality Will Be Result

(By EMIL GRUNDMARK.)

COPENHAGEN, March 11.—Norway has evidently found its advanced experiments in woman's suffrage satisfactory and has taken another long step in the way of placing women on a complete political equality with men.

Under a resolution adopted by King Hakon's cabinet all public offices have been thrown open to women with the exception of places in the cabinet, the army and navy, the diplomatic service and the church.

The Norwegian women since the franchise was granted to them have taken an active and intelligent interest in political affairs. They have been a positive force for good, and if this new experiment works well it is not improbable that the offices from which they are now barred, except, perhaps, the army, navy and church, will be opened to them.

The Danish government recently found it necessary to grant heads of families the privilege of changing their names if they feel so disposed without incurring any legal costs. This is a necessary piece of legislation for the population of Denmark is divided into three great clans—the Hansens, the Petersens and the Sørensens. In one town 25,000 inhabitants over four-fifths bore one or the other of these names. Many of these have taken advantage of the new law and assumed more dignified names.

A Swedish law has been promulgated providing that whisky may be stored on importation in bonded warehouses and that customs duty need not be paid until the whisky is withdrawn from such a warehouse. Henceforth this privilege is excluded from this privilege in virtue of a special provision of the Swedish customs regulations.

Sweden has decided that additional railroad facilities are necessary for the development of the country. The government therefore has decided upon the preparation of plans for the construction of lines of railway such as will give the privilege of running north and south in Sweden, from Gollvåra in the north to Kristinehamn on Lake Kener.

OPPOSE SCHEME POPE'S SISTERS TO PAY SALARY TO M. P.'S RESTORE HIM TO HEALTH

(By THOMAS EMMET.)

DUBLIN, March 11.—There is a gradually growing opposition to the scheme to pay members of Parliament. The Trade Council adopted a resolution reiterating the demand made by all the Irish Trades Congress and all other labor bodies in favor of the payment of election expenses, and emphatically protesting against the suggestion that Ireland should be excluded from the provision of the bill about to be introduced to give effect to those democratic reforms.

The Granard Rural District Council unanimously passed resolutions expressing approval of the Irish Party in refusing to take payment for their services, which the resolutions declared showed that they could not be bought by British gold.

(By CLEMENT J. BARRETT.)

ROME, March 11.—The Pope's recovery from his recent illness which, however, was not serious, he himself says was due to the careful nursing of his aged sisters who treated him to old fashioned remedies such as the family used when he was a boy. His trouble seemed to be the grip.

The government has taken in hand the restoration of Raphael's tomb in the Pantheon. It has been much neglected and then altered by way of restoration. The monument is really an altar tomb, and when it is again open to the public it will be seen in all its pristine beauty. The remains of the artist are contained in a sarcophagus found in the restoration. The work will be out of the restorers' hands in April.

The Kaiser William of Germany is expected here shortly. He will be the guest of King Victor Emmanuel. He will also visit the Pope. The last visit the Emperor paid to this city was in 1903, and the memory of that event is still the subject of conversation among the minds of the Italians. He visited the Pontifical Leo on that occasion in imperial style.

SEEKS WORKHOUSE WIFE.

The novel request to be allowed to select a wife from among the female inmates of the workhouse was made by an old-age pensioner named Thomas Smith, of the Glomacaddy, Mayo Guardians.

"I have full and plenty," he pleaded, "but still there is something wanted in my cottage—a companion to make life sweet and agreeable. I have a wife and a good home, but she must be respectable, and if she was eligible for the old-age pension she would be all the better. (Laughter.)"

The chairman suggested that the master of the workhouse, who was a good matchmaker, should take Smith through the institution and help him make a suitable selection. (Laughter.)

Smith was asked if he had his eye on any special lady. The applicant replied in the negative, adding that he came there with an open mind. "If I don't get what suits me," he said, "I'll take out of the police for a companion. I've course old prefer a good sensible woman, who wasn't young and giddy and if she had a bit of money I wouldn't object but she needn't have money if she has good sense."

REJECT REFORM.

The senate has discussed and rejected the fifth and final resolution contained in the Reform Commission's report, and has rejected the resolution which Signor Arcore laid before it.

Among the American bishops who recently visited the Pope were Bishop Daniel Francis Feehan, of Fall River, Mass.; Bishop Stephen Rice, of Burlington, Vermont; and Bishop Thomas Beaven, of Springfield, Mass.

Paolina Giorgi, who enjoyed much celebrity in certain circles on account of her beauty, made the acquaintance of a young student from Argentina named Carrera, and for a time the pair seemed to be very much in love.

As a concert artist Paolina went from town to town wherever her engagements took her, and six months ago she proceeded to Genoa. Thither she was followed by Carrera.

The couple descended the steps leading to a grotto a few days ago. They had been waiting more than a few minutes when she heard the report of shots.

Rushing down the steps the maid perceived her mistress stretched on the ground. She held a revolver in her hand, and was standing near. As soon as she saw the maid she fired three times in the direction of her heart, and he then fell dead. The woman lived only one hour.

Archbishop Kenneley, the Irish Capuchin monk who was recently created Archbishop of Simla, in Hindustan, has left this city for his new field of labor. He is 46 years, strong, and energetic, and able as an administrator. Before leaving the Archbishop had a prolonged interview with the Pope who instructed him as to what course he should pursue.

$100,000 THEIR RAGGED.

During a recent hearing in the children's court in which a lad of fourteen was summoned for trading in the street without a license, it was stated that the boy's grandfather died in Canada, bequeathing to his son, the father of the youthful offender, $100,000. When the news of the bequest reached him however the lad's father was on his deathbed, and the boy became heir to the money.

As he was a minor his affairs were taken charge of by the court of chancery pending his reaching his majority. The boy was miserably clad and bore traces of neglect. Instead of renewing his license, the court suggested that the lad should be sent to an industrial home or school, or, failing that, that steps should be taken for obtaining some of the funds for his up-bringing. A collection was taken up in court for the boy.

USE OF GUN BY PARIS CRIMINALS DANGEROUS

PARIS, March 11.—The use of the revolver by criminals is becoming dangerously common. A miscreant who was recently sentenced to twenty years' servitude, fired his shots at the police who were attempting to arrest him, and badly wounded one of them. In the evening a cyclist-policeman was shot at as he was going off duty. He pursued and captured his assailant. Since 1871, forty Parisian policemen have been killed in the performance of their duty, four during the last year.

HEALTH OF MONTENEGRO KING CAUSING ALARM

CETTINJE, March 11.—The health of King Nicholas of Montenegro is causing serious misgivings. The king had several violent attacks of nose bleeding and all attempts at remedies were unavailing. The king is 70 years old. All the members of the royal family have been summoned to Cetinje.

BRITISHERS TO SEEK OLD TREASURE SHIP

LONDON, March 11.—Although it is now about a century since the Lutina, a British frigate, which had on board but 100 tons of treasure, was lost off the Dutch coast, another attempt is made to find the treasure ship. She carried ten tons weight of gold and silver, which was being sent by English merchants to "support their credit abroad."

The Lutina left Yarmouth Roads on October 9, 1799, and went to the bottom of the sea the same night, only one man being saved of all her crew, and he died before reaching England. Efforts have been made time and again to save the treasure from the hull, which is stated to lie under thirty feet of sand off the island of Vlieland. The National Salvage Association is undertaking the quest, and a special salvage steamer is to be employed.

The Lutina's bell, which was recovered, is used at Lloyd's whenever an overdue steamer arrives.

AUSTRALIA WILL OPEN TRACT FOR SETTLEMENT

SYDNEY, March 11.—Mr. Vaughan, the treasurer of South Australia, speaking in Adelaide, announced that the Government was about to throw open three million acres of agricultural land. They felt the time had arrived when immigrants could be welcomed, and the Government was preparing to make advances to settlers with a limited amount of capital.

DICTATORSHIP BRAND SET PREDICTED SELF HARD TASK IN TURKEY

Establishment of Military Control Expected by the Ottoman Empire

Austria Ready for Any Break with Her Friend, the Enemy

(By EMIL ANDRASSY.)

VIENNA, March 11.—The establishment of military dictatorship in the Ottoman Empire is not only predicted by those familiar with conditions in the country, but is claimed to be only a question of a short time. Some predict that it may be established in a very short time. It is contended by those who advocate such a dictatorship that it would greatly clarify the outlook in the country in many respects.

The real position in Turkey is that the army is supreme, and the only question is whether its supremacy shall stand revealed to the world, or continue to be masked by the committee regime.

A military dictatorship would be preferable to a large per cent of political leaders as they claim that the army, while really supreme at present, is only hiding behind the present regime, and therefore its policy is hypocritical, while with a dictatorship it would be only professing what is now practiced.

AUSTRIA IS READY.

Whether there is really danger of an immediate break between Austria and Germany or between Turkey and Austria is not clear. It is now agitating political leaders in Austria, and while the agitation is laid to certain newspapers it cannot be denied that Austria will not be found wholly unprepared should a disturbance arise. Austria's foreign policy was to a certain extent set forth in a speech by Prince Esterhazy at Budapest in an address before the house of delegates. The Hungarian delegation adopted the foreign affairs budget and passed a vote of confidence in Count von Aehrenthal's policy. During the discussion of the budget Prince Esterhazy called attention to the fact that the Hungarian delegation adopted the foreign affairs budget and passed a vote of confidence in Count von Aehrenthal's policy. ### CRITICISE MINISTER.

With reference to the criticisms levelled at the Minister's conservative policy, the speaker pointed to the formulating of the Balkan policy by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, who desired to maintain the status quo in the Balkans in every respect, sought to associate itself with what would be a grave slur on chets, has rejected the dyspeptic official's demand.

The latest and most disgusting socialistic attack on the Minister's policy, "Poms" and "pugs" which go visiting with their mistresses in fashionable circles have their own tiny pasteboards in little pockets. Such dogs have two sets of cards, which are left on other dogs at the houses where they call with their mistresses. One card gives the dog's name, while the other records its pet name joined to the family name of its owner.

ACADEMY FOR WOMEN.

It is believed that the rejection of Madame Curie by the French Academy will result in the formation of an academy for women. Several academicians, including famous playwrights, have intimated their willingness to support the scheme.

Jean Lavelle, a tourist, who has returned, relates that some time ago he set out to cross the St. Bernard Pass by himself, and got caught in the fog. He sat on a rock and waited for one of the dogs to come, but in vain, and when the fog cleared away he managed to reach the hospice.

CARTRIDGES DIET OF REMARKABLE BIRD

PARIS, March 11.—Ostriches have almost been driven to extinction by a peculiar appetite for glass and metal. A woodcock just sold in a Paris shop has almost outdone these feathered gourmands.

The customer who bought three woodcocks asked to have them opened. The shop assistant complied with the request, and to the great surprise of both, in the stomach of one of the birds were found four Lebel cartridges. The bird was carried with precaution to the police station, together with the cartridges, and the authorities are wondering whether they are faced by a new phenomenon that might be of interest to naturalists or whether it is merely a packer's practical joke.

AMERICAN ARTISTS ASTONISH THE FRENCH

PARIS, March 11.—Some of the best known American artists have astonished the French. Paul Weyland Bartlett, Augustus Bissell, Lionel Walden, George C. Ald, John Noble and the others may not be themselves strict Sabbatarians, or they may, but all events they have given no ground less. At their first exhibition of purely American art in Paris, they insisted that it be closed on Sundays. This has never been done in Paris, for Sunday is the day of popular amusement. The most popular horse-races are run on Sundays and public opinion compels the President of the Republic to attend them in state.

Retirement of Premier Briand Presaged by Those Who Had Watched His Career

A Traveling Theater to Be France's Latest Political Adjunct

(By PAUL VILLIERES.)

PARIS, March 11.—The retirement of Premier Briand has been expected. His friends have frequently said he had been trying the impossible task of reconciling irreconcilable elements. The socialists of whom he was regarded him as a renegade in their "cause." The infidel class looked upon him as too lenient with the Catholic church, while the church regarded him as the arch-priest of infidelity and a despot. Employers and corporations denounced him as a demagogue too friendly to labor organizations and workmen regarded him as "a capitalist tool."

We are going to have a new theater, an itinerant theater which will travel around the country like a circus, and it will come into existence this coming summer. The company will travel and performances will be given. This theater is to keep the provinces in touch with the Paris which, up to the present, have been performed here. It will have a stage as large as many city theater stages. There will be twenty-five cars to transport the outfit. There will be a homogenous troupe which will give plays as they always have done in France, without a star. Gensler, who is at the head of the enterprise, intends to include operatic performances as well as plays. Lucienne Brevet is already engaged to sing the role of Carmen, and there is no doubt that the people of the provinces will go in as great numbers to this theater as the population did in the time of Moliere. It is to be called the Theater National, and after it has visited the provinces, it may go beyond the boundaries of France and give our neighbors a taste of new plays as they are given.

GUNS DAMAGE SHIPS.

In the course of recent firing practice by the battleship fleet the turrets of the 12-inch guns, and the guns themselves, became jammed and out of use on board five ships out of six.

Admiral Bellue ordered simultaneous firing by the 12-inch guns of the main turrets. The shock damaged the guns and turrets, and rendered further firing impossible on the five ships.

The Democratic and the Justice suffered chiefly. They have been handed over to the dockyard authorities for repairs.

LISBON POLICE CLOSE LID ON RESTAURANTS

LISBON, March 11.—A recent regulation made by the Portuguese government ordered that all hotels and restaurants should be closed by 2 in the morning, and the police, learning that certain establishments were continuing to be open, raided recently and arrested all the guests of establishments which should have been closed. At one restaurant the guests included the minister of public works and several of his friends. They were arrested and obliged to go to the police station, but were released after paying a fine. The minister was ignorant of the new rule.

MANCHURIAN PLAGUE HAS SPREAD INTO EUROPE

BUCHAREST, March 11.—According to a telegraphic communication received from the Roumanian Society of Constantinople the Manchurian plague has already spread to European Russia. During the last few days four fatal cases have been reported in the government of Astrachan. The news has produced a great sensation in official circles. It is feared that the epidemic will be conveyed into Roumania through their commercial relations. The Roumanian government has therefore decided to proclaim a most rigorous quarantine.

RELICS OF PLAGUE FOUND.

LONDON, March 11.—While workmen were engaged in digging a trench at the rear of some shops adjoining Vine court, High street, Whitechapel, on Saturday, they discovered several skulls and a quantity of bones. Doctor Jones, the divisional surgeon of police, expressed the opinion that the bones were those of persons interred at the time of the great plague.

SUPPRESS FAKE WINES.

The "champanization" of wine not made in Champanne will, it is hoped, be suppressed by the champagne bill which was passed in the chamber of deputies a few days ago. The duty of one-half penny a bottle on genuine champagne, proposed by the government to compensate the growers for the increased surveillance demanded by the new law, was deleted from the measure, but the chamber voted the article providing that a special declaration of origin shall be given by the authorities to all wines in the Champagne.

ASTONISH THE FRENCH

PARIS, March 11.—Some of the best known American artists have astonished the French. Paul Weyland Bartlett, Augustus Bissell, Lionel Walden, George C. ### THEATERGOERS PROTEST IMPOST MAN TO BE GHOST

French Demand Cessation of Taxation; Buying Ticket Not End to Expense.

PARIS, March 11.—Periodically the papers are inundated with letters protesting against the tax on theatergoers, which is certainly inimical to theater enterprise. In a Paris theater, when you have bought your seat, you are not allowed simply to take your way leisurely to your place, buy a program, and settle down with the intention of enjoying the play. There are extra charges that are so ridiculous that they tend to drive visitors away.

Following the purchase of your ticket, you have to pay a tax charged by the theater for the privilege of booking that seat in advance, and a further 10 per cent on the price of your ticket, for the poor. On your arrival at the theater the man in uniform who opens your cab door expects coppers. You buy a program, paying twenty cents for a budget of advertisements, and your evening is put to a severe test in order to trace the actors' names in it. The next moment you are the victim of ladies in pink, ribboned caps who demand fees. You are escorted half-way to your seat by another extortioner who expects to be paid for the privilege of showing you the entrance to a third, who is the foot-stool expert, insists upon getting her "little profit." Before you leave the theater your evening has cost you a dollar or more in small fees, and you come from the building in a distinctly irritable mood, swearing never to patronize the place again.

On the other hand, these women must live on the privilege of bullying the public, out of whom each expects to make a dollar and a half or two dollars each evening, they have to pay the person to whom the internal service of the theater is entrusted, or more a day. It is said that the Parisians intend next season to make a joint effort to do away with this nuisance. The citizens of Paris are getting very tired of the sanguine proposals of the managers, because for many years the suppressing of the tipping nuisance has been spoken of as taking place "next season."

TICKET-OF-LEAVE MAN TO BE GHOST

Government Offers to Bury the System That Has Thrived for Century.

LONDON, March 11.—The ticket-of-leave man will be a ghost of the past after the coming first of April—if the ex-convict chooses to take advantage of the government's offer to bury the ticket-of-leave system.

For a long time the ticket-of-leave system, working apart from the various unrelated societies for helping discharged convicts, has stood condemned, and many an ex-convict has complained that he has been so harassed by the system that he has been unable to keep his work when he has got over the initial difficulty of finding it.

Under the new scheme representatives of charitable societies will be admitted to the convict prisons, where they will be able to make arrangements for the future of convicts who desire help, and to study each case while the man is in prison.

On discharge from prison a convict who keeps in touch with the society, and "runs straight" will be freed absolutely and forever from police supervision. If he afterwards misbehaves, or falls into bad company, with the exception of the authorities charged with his care is not sincere in his efforts to abstain from criminal courses, he may again be brought under the control of strict supervision of the police control.

A statement issued by the home office last night explains that "the essence of the new reform is the combination in one hand, and under one directing authority of all the influences, whether of force or friendship, which can be used to guide and aid the prisoner on discharge."

KAISER'S BROTHER IN LIVELY ROW

Prince Henry of Prussia Takes Issue With Germany's Socialists.

BERLIN, March 11.—Prince Henry of Prussia, the Kaiser's brother, is in trouble owing to a rather pugnaclous political speech which he delivered last night at the military veterans' banquet. The speech, in the opinion of the Socialists, and many organs of public opinion without the least sympathy for the political aims of the revolutionary party consider it inadvisable that a member of the imperial family should have directed such an ostentatious attack on the party that is numerically the strongest in Germany.

The Socialist party polled so many votes at the last general election that they represented almost one-third of the entire adult community.

In his speech Prince Henry referred to the "approaching opportunity for demonstrating patriotic zeal." This means the coming reichstag elections, which, unless an unexpected rally of the other parties ensues, will almost certainly produce a Socialist triumph.

SIX MONTHS' WORK IN TWELVE YEARS.

LONDON, March 11.—It was stated at an inquest held at Hackney on four, that the girl's father had done six months' work in twelve years.

CORONATION HOLIDAYS.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., March 11.—The Birmingham Trades Association yesterday decided to ask the chamber of commerce to deliberate on the proposal to abandon the Whitman holidays this year and to arrange for a general holiday in coronation week instead.

AMERICANS TO SUFFER BY EXPOSURE

Stolypin's Threatened Anti-Graft Campaign May Lose Him Power

Houses of High Officials Are Searched to Recover Evidence of Treason

(By GEORGE FRASER.)

ST. PETERSBURG, March 11.—The recent seizure of the papers of a great American manufacturing concern with branches in Russia may result in such a scandal as will shake Russian society to the center.

Since Premier Stolypin began his anti-graft campaign he has stirred up a powerful opposition which has been seriously threatened by his position. Russia's officialdom is honeycombed with graft. Even China, where the selling of official favors has been developed into a profession, is not far ahead of Russia. It has long been notorious that even members of the imperial family have "been out after their bit," as a Tammany man would put it. To convince the public with the government could escape the grafters.

STOLYPIN A FIGHTER.

Mr. Stolypin is a fighter and he found that in order to keep his own head he had to have absolute proof against high placed grafters and he must work in the usual business manner to get it. He not only seized the papers of the American concern, but the houses of a number of high officials have been searched with the result that the Prime Minister has secured incontrovertible evidence of the crookedness of some of the highest in the land.

If he decides to use it there will be an official rottenness such as has never been seen in Europe.

It may be there will be no public exposure if opposition to the plans for administrative reform which Mr. Stolypin has in view is not pressed.

REFUSES TO OBEY.

The Monk Heliodorus, one of the worst demagogues of the union of the Russian people, refused to obey the orders of the Holy Synod transferring him from Tashkent to the Holy Trinity monastery, a public scandal, and locked himself up with his fanatical followers in the church, taking solemn vows that he will die of starvation. The synod has sent a bishop to bring him to reason.

Heliodorus a year ago secured the release of a convict from the Czar's special protection under the most intense loyalty and patriotism. He thereupon was expelled from the monastery, and against the local authorities, seized, only abusing the governor, who was forced to resign.

Heliodorus abjured his oath to stay on behalf of himself and his followers on the ground that the telegram sent by the Holy Synod was an insult to the Czar, beseeching his majesty to allow Heliodorus to remain at Tashkent, were never forwarded.

STRIKE CONTINUES.

The strike of students, which was called as a protest against the exile of one of the 2000 Russian students in demonstrations, still continues. Conflicts with the police have taken place. Professor and many other teachers have been dismissed and many other teachers are unemployed. Under the government's late decree all disaffected students are expelled from the universities. The total number of students will be brought up to nearly 1200.

GERMANY'S NAVY NOT FOR BATTLE

Officials Declare Object Is Not to Be on the Aggressive.

BERLIN, March 11.—During the debate on the second reading of the naval estimates in the reichstag Admiral von Tirpitz, the minister of marine, declared that he wished to corroborate the statement that Germany's fleet had never been built for offensive purposes.

Herr Erzberger declared that Germany's sea power should be so developed as to make it dangerous for every other sea power to attack her. Admiral von Tirpitz challenged this statement, saying:

"The preamble of the navy law states that to reach the fixed goal, we protect our sea commerce and the colonies by our sea power, and we honor, and so is necessary, and further, that it is not absolutely necessary that the German battle fleet shall be as strong as those of other great sea powers, but that it can be weaker."

"If attack was the object it should have been stronger. It is an old axiom of the naval historians and naval heroes of England that to be able to attack, superiority in fighting power is necessary. We, however, say exactly the opposite."

Herr Erzberger in his speech maintained that the total expenditure in Germany for the maintenance of the fleet was a smaller burden per head of the population than in France or Great Britain. The fact that the German fleet existed for defensive purposes should be regarded as a myth circulated in England of a German naval armament race.

Herr Erzberger declared that the Wilhelmshaven dockyards should not be allowed to be idle. The British premier had made observations on this subject which did not entirely correspond with the facts. He had forgotten, said Herr Erzberger, that England also had granted sums for a large number of ships to be completed in 1913.

BOATS USED BY ROYAL FAMILY ARE IN MUSEUM

LISBON, March 11.—Two fishing boats, in which the Portuguese royal family reached the yacht in which they escaped to Madeira last October, have been offered by the owner to the Portuguese Government, and will be placed in a museum at Lisbon.

INFANT WEARS CONQUEROR'S SCARF

Remarkable Christening Witnessed by Hundreds in England

Divorces on Increase in "Tight Little Isle." According to Figures

(By PAUL LAMBETH.)
LONDON, March 11.—It was recently my privilege, luck, or what not, to witness probably the greatest christening in modern history, greatest in the sense of novelty at least.
Viscount Milton, the infant son of the Earl Fitzwilliam, was christened in the private chapel of Wentworth Woodhouse, the most splendid mansion in England. The baby's wrap at the christening was the scarf which William the Conqueror took from his arm at the Battle of Hastings in 1066 and handed to an ancestor of Earl Fitzwilliam as a mark of appreciation for valor.
Monster rejoicings of the Earl's tenants took place in the great park around the house, where eight great tents were filled with the seven thousand guests invited to the feast.
The baby who was the hero of the day is the child of good fortune. He is the long-awaited heir of many millions, the future owner of many great estates in England, Ireland and Canada, and some of the richest coalfields in Yorkshire.
The health of the child was toasted by thousands of men who spend their lives in digging for the treasures which will make him one of the richest men in the realm.

LARGER THAN BABY.

The cake was much larger than the baby. It was a giant cake of wonderful architecture, suitable to an infant who is to be so monstrously rich. It weighed 80 pounds and was nearly six feet high. At the top was a cradle containing a sugar baby. It aroused the admiration and enthusiasm of four little girls, to whom the arrival of a baby brother has brought a new source of delight.
Out in the park of three thousand acres, which makes a place of sylvan loveliness in the midst of the black coal fields were great crowds of miners and their wives. They saw glimpses of woodland temples, white statues gleaming through the trees, of beautiful lakes in the parkland on which the sunshine gleamed with golden light. Then they saw on a gentle eminence the manor of the Fitzwilliams, a long classical building with a front of 600 feet and two great wings, and in the center an immense portico with all white pillars above flights of stone steps.
Immense preparations had been made for the entertainment of the seven thousand guests, and it took 30 waiters to serve them.

LAUGHTER SHAKES TENTS.

In the tents where the miners sat down to the long tables there was a great clatter—verse speaking in the broad Yorkshire dialect, and roars of laughter that shook the tent poles. Glasses were raised to the health of the young heir, and when Earl Fitzwilliam came among them, they sprang to their feet and gave such cheers as scared the rocks in the park.

In the evening there was a great display of fireworks and high above the park-rose swift rockets bursting like shells and scattering balls of colored light and golden showers of sparks were reflected in the mirror of the broad lake. The next day the miners went down into the black mines to dig more wealth for the noble Earl.

LAST OF POSTBOYS.

A man who is said to be the last of England's old postboys, William Hennen, left the Midway Union Workhouse at the age of 94 to marry Fanny Wadhams, aged 80. The couple met at the workhouse and by subsequent gifts a comfortable home has been furnished for them. The church was crowded, thousands assembling in the street to watch a glimpse of the old postboy. The old people were loudly cheered as they drove up in a motor car.
Sir John Macdonnell's latest report on the law courts issued contains a long analysis of the divorce cases. The conclusion is:
Divorce petitions in 1909 numbered 787 against 846 in 1908, but the decrees granted numbered 655 against 672.
In almost one-half of the divorces the marriage has lasted from ten to twenty years, and in about one-third between five and ten years. Petitioners for the most part belong to the middle classes. A small number are engaged in farming, mining, or domestic service.
Out of 110 petitions eighty-one were by wives. But among merchant skippers, matinees, and postmen, and among civil servants, soldiers and naval seamen and police, the majority of the petitions were presented by husbands.
Out of the thirty-five petitions involving actors, musicians and the like twenty-three were by wives.
In 40 per cent of the unhappy marriages there was no child and in 25 per cent there was only one child of the union. Ninety per cent of the divorces involve in only one of every fifty divorces.

The numbers of petitions from the working classes was 270 out of the total of 787, being exactly more in 1908, and slightly fewer in 1909.
Probate of the will of Sir William Agnew, the famous art dealer and connoisseur, has been granted in Manchester.

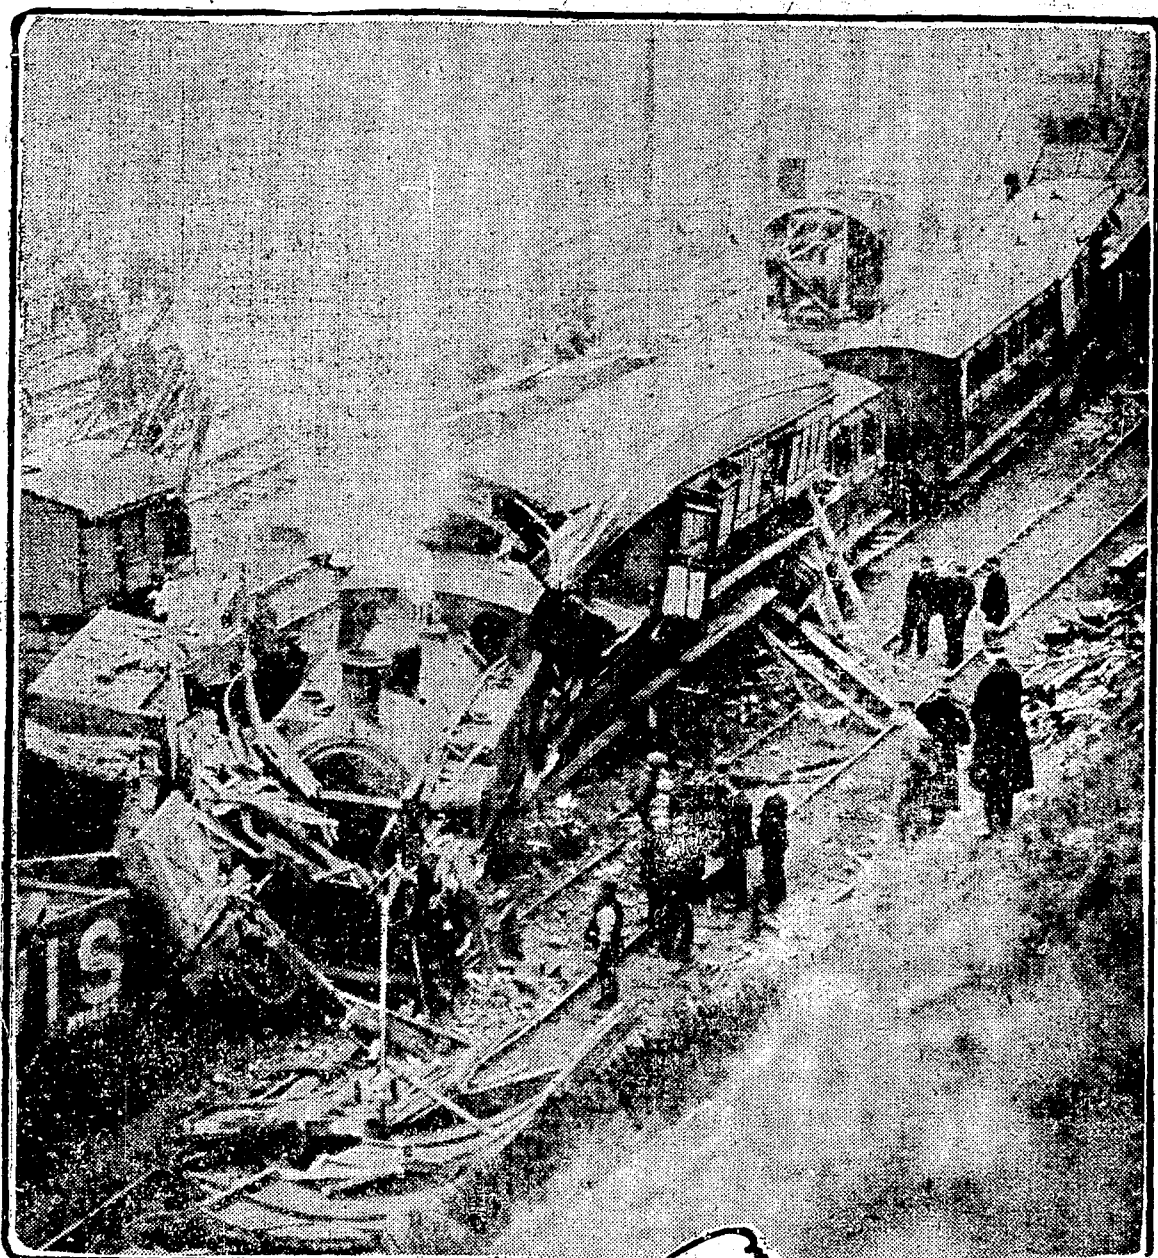

The gross value of the personal and real estate is sworn to as $13,000,000. The only charitable bequest is a sum of $5000 to the General Hospital and Dispensary for Sick Children at Pendlebury.

The will of Lord Winterstoke of Blagdon has been lodged for probate by the executors, the estate being provisionally sworn to as $5,000,000.

PREFER WORKHOUSE.

The removal of the pauper disqualification for aid age pensions will not apparently make much difference with many aged inmates of workhouses. From many Irish poor law unions reports are being made of the numbers of inmates who, although otherwise qualified for the pensions, prefer to remain in the workhouses rather than attempt to live outside on five shillings a week. At the Athy Board of Guardians it was stated that although seven pensions only 17 were willing to leave the house in order to obtain their modest allowance. At the close of 1910 there were nearly thirty thousand paupers in workhouses in England and Wales eligible for old age pensions, and as yet not more than five thousand of these have applied for their discharge.
At the West Derby Liverpool Board of Guardians it was stated that 730 inmates of the workhouse eligible for pensions

FATAL COLLISION IN SOUTH WALES

LEAVES FORTUNE TO THE CHURCH

An Aged Blind Woman Leaves $125,000 and Bulk Goes to Catholic Church.

BERLIN, March 11.—The sum of $125,000 was recently left by an octogenarian woman named Lizler, who has died, and the bulk of it goes to the Catholic church. The remainder is for a railwayman's home and a blind asylum. Deceased, the widow of a railway station master, had been blind since her 35th birthday. She saved most of the money herself.
Herr Hue, who represents an Essen constituency, attacked the firm of Krupp. He admitted that the firm's expenditure on "social" institutions was large, but said the profits were enormous. He calculated that the Krupp family alone had cleared $11,500,000 in the last three years, and declared that the industry had squeezed the whole district out like a lemon. According to the report of the Essen house inspection, 40 per cent of the dwellings consisted of two rooms, in many cases with one bed for four or five persons.
Telegrams from St. Petersburg state that the Krupps are negotiating for the establishment of extensive armament works in Russia. Considerable opposition to the project exists, as its realization would be considered a fresh manifestation of the "German danger." The new profits of the Krupps for the past year amounted to $1,071,859, as compared with $588,113 a year ago. The dividend on the capital of $9,000,000 has been increased from 8 to 10 per cent.
The stockholders are crying for more and boom the scheme to establish an immense branch in Russia. The concern's gross profits for the year are $1,800,000, half of which is written off and the rest devoted to the reserve, to dividends, and to contributions to the invalid and pensions fund for the employees, which now aggregates $1,900,000. The employees in addition have an deposit with the Krupp management of $1,750,000. Krupp contributions to the workmen's state insurance fund amounts in 1910 to $264,000.

SWISS REPUBLIC LAND OF POLYGLOT TONGUES

GENEVA, March 11.—The census taken in Switzerland shows that of the languages spoken in the republic, German heads the list, with 2,599,149 persons speaking it; French comes next, with 756,220; Italian, with 301,323; and Romansh, with 39,912. All four languages written off and the rest devoted to the reserve, to dividends, and to contributions to the invalid and pensions fund for the employees, which now aggregates $1,900,000. The employees in addition have an deposit with the Krupp management of $1,750,000. Krupp contributions to the workmen's state insurance fund amounts in 1910 to $264,000.
To those who have friends or relatives outside willing to receive them the five shillings a week might appear sufficient. But many of the aged inmates have been in these institutions a long time. They are practically friendless, many are feeble or bedridden and to such as these the workhouse seems more attractive than the prospect of attempting in their old age to set up, house and live alone on a pittance just large enough to keep them alive.

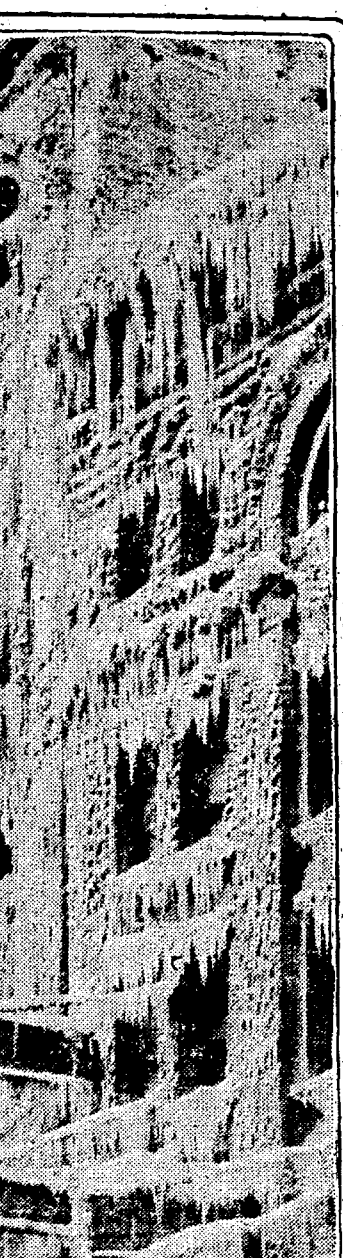

Mlle., the Ragpicker, and Her Romance

LYONS, March 11.—"Mademoiselle," the ragpicker, had a name, though nobody in Lyons knew it until she was found dead on the floor of her garret, dead of starvation and old age combined. Her name was Marguerite Carrel. And to her name there hangs a story. Seventy years ago, in 1840, when Marguerite was twenty, the Carrels were among the silk magnates of Lyons. The silk magnates formed a nobility, an aristocracy as proud in its own way as the old aristocracy of France had been before the Revolution. Marguerite was the Carrels' only daughter. She was extremely beautiful, and before she was sixteen had many admirers as the Lyons silk merchants had grown-up sons. But she would listen to or look at none of them. And then one day a young Englishman came to Lyons. His name has not survived.
He was the heir of an English silk firm, a firm of importers which had business dealings with the Duval firm, a rival of the Carrels. Between the families was a feud as bitter as that between the Montagues and Capulets.
Then one day an old man who had been helping to carry food and drink to patients in the hospital, recognized in one of the lay sisters Marguerite Carrel—a woman of fifty now—whom he had known and admired as a young man. She was not a nun, but wore the dress of a religious order and the Geneva cross. She did more work than any two other helpers in the hospital. Then came the Commune, and the hospital nurse became a raging, shrieking, ranting, who was in every crowd which rushed about the streets screaming a song of revolution and doing wanton damage. She was imprisoned for some time and then released, and for some years again she disappeared. When next Lyons saw Marguerite Carrel she was an old woman of seventy. The police knew her name, perhaps, for like all Frenchmen and all Frenchwomen, she had her papers, but she was old, quite harmless, and quite poor. She lived the life of a rag-picker, and was one of the sights of Lyons, and was shown to visitors like the bronze horses and the living pigeons of the Place des Terreaux. When asked her name she always answered, "Mademoiselle."

PUPPET PRINCE PLAYS PRANKS

Royalty Disports Itself to Fight Duel Over Politics and Financial Injury of Hotel Keeper

CAIRO, March 11.—An amusing story is being related in Anglo-Egyptian circles in reference to the large number of foreign royalties visiting Cairo. It is well known that although the blood ties between members of the Spanish, Bavarian and Austrian reigning houses are close, the personal relations are not quite so friendly. Thus for weeks rooms at one of the best hotels had been booked for a bachelorette party, who were really important members of the reigning house. They arrived in due course. The Baron met on the steps of the hotel was a royal prince who is at deadly loggerheads with the Austrian, and he at once consulted the hotel register, saw the name of the "baron" entered amongst the newest arrivals, smiled a diabolical smile, and informed the manager that if the baron was not immediately cleared out of the hotel royal patronage would be withdrawn. The baron and his family were immediately asked to go to another hotel, but left at once for Europe, and not till they were out of Egypt did the manager learn that the baron was an Austrian archduke traveling incognito.

It decreed that in order to be entitled to the name of the champagne sparkling wine, must be made and stored apart from wine foreign to the Champagne districts. A year after the promulgation of the new law wines coming under the definition of champagne may only be placed on the market if they bear the word "champagne" in distinct characters on the bottles and corks. The passage of the champagne bill will do much to obviate further trouble in the disaffected district, it is believed.
Notre Dame du Platin has been chosen to be the patron saint of the aviators. Mr. Odell, an aviator, member of the municipal council, has had a small church constructed in the quarter of Platin, near the shore where the bureau is, which has been dedicated to the Mother of God, and the aviators have been thetic and to test its efficacy by offering a medal has been cast with her image on one side and the picture of the Virgin on the other. Many aviators are already wearing the medal. The bishop of La Rochelle authorized a service to take place in the new sanctuary, and also the blessing of the medals.

WAR ON MORMONS.

While in England nothing has been done so far to stop the work of Mormon missionaries, strenuous measures were taken in the United States. There had been a community of Latter-day Saints in this city for years. But it had not been going well, and when McKay, the head of the Mormon church in Central Europe, came with twenty converts, many of whom they were promptly expelled from the country as "objectionable aliens."
A debate has taken place on the navy in the Reichstag. Herr Schrader, a member of the German agricultural council had come expressly to see the Emperor. Few expected to hear him; but the gathering had the interesting experience of being present while the Emperor was addressing the subject to the list of adverse roles in which he has appeared before the public. On this occasion he was a practical agriculturist, describing in graphic terms, coupled with humorous remarks, the successful reclamation of waste land, made at his own initiative on his farm at Cadenen.
The Emperor's contribution to the proceedings was supplemented by a lecture by Professor Tacke, who summed up his conclusions on the utility of the German moors by stating that they were capable of supplying the market with 18,000,000,000 pounds of meat annually, and supporting 30,000 families.

SUFFRAGETTES THREATEN.

A novelty in the way of suffragette threats is that contained in a letter in the Tageblatt, the writer threatening that German girls will compete with their English counterparts for the husbands of German aviators. The writer, who appears to be a suffragette, with keen insight into the political affairs of this nation, has written in the newspapers that Canada is looking for 5000 brides, and that there are 50,000 eligible bachelors there without suitable feminine acquaintances. Give us the best possible information for German girls in Canada because we intend going there to find husbands. We do not see why young English women should snatch the best chances from under the noses of German girls.
"Since the German government pays no attention whatever to the colossal surplus of German girls, and as the high price of meat is making it increasingly difficult for respectable girls to get married, the girls of our circle have unanimously decided to become British subjects, and to emigrate to Canada in order that the aspirations of the Canadian bachelors may be gratified. The Prussian government will then realize that through its obsolete franchise system the young women to whom the vote is refused have been driven into the arms of England."

NEW ANAESTHETIC.

Dr. Alexander Fracon, a young Roumanian surgeon, has been studying a new anaesthetic, which leaves the patient unconscious, but preserves sensibility. M. Fracon had hernia, and an operation became necessary. He determined to try his new anaesthetic and to test its efficacy by giving himself a dose of it. The anaesthetic was administered and the doctor sat down at the operating table, and after calmly performing the operation, stitched up the wound and went to bed. The operation took an hour to perform. He is now in one of our local hospitals and on the way of recovery.

BRITISHER AND GERMAN QUARREL

SYDNEY, March 11.—Two Sydney wool buyers, one English and the other German, had a fierce political discussion as the outcome of which a duel was arranged. This duty took place in Sentinella Park, the weapons being swords. The German had all the best of the fight. He was much the better swordsman, and a deep gash in the Englishman's arm running from elbow to wrist, soon testified to his skill. In desperation the Englishman took his weapon in both hands and tried to cleave his opponent's skull in twain. This failed, but he succeeded in inflicting a body wound.
Both combatants lost a great deal of blood before the fight was stopped. Their lives, however, are not endangered, and they were reconciled, but the Englishman declares that his opinion of Germany is unaltered.

OLD HATRED OF PRUSSIA LIVES

Hanoverian Enmity, Conceived Long Ago, Is Still in Existence.

Heir to Estate Cannot Set Foot on Territory Without Losing Lands.

(By MALCOLM CLARKE.)
BERLIN, March 11.—Although the conflict ended forty-five years ago, Hanoverian hatred of Prussia has not yet been obliterated as the following narrative will show.
There is a young man in Brunswick named Ebenstein, of great wealth, who forfeits it all if he leaves the small territory in which his estate is situated.
He inherits his property from a grandfather who as a Hanoverian fought against the Prussians in 1866. Old Ebenstein never forgave the Prussians and in his will tied up his property with the condition that the tenant for life should never set foot on Prussian soil.
Prussia divides Brunswick into five isolated parts, all of which it surrounds; and young Ebenstein lives in one of the smallest parts, and cannot even visit Brunswick city without crossing Prussian soil, violating the will, and letting the money go to a remote cousin.

INVESTS $800,000,000.

The minister of the interior, Herr Delbruck, recently gave the Reichstag some interesting figures concerning Germany's investments abroad. Germany in 1910 invested $800,000,000.

It is authoritatively stated that the Emperor's coming trip to Corfu is intended to be nothing but a holiday and that there is no question of an official visit to Italy. The Emperor will touch both Austrian and Italian soil, but there will be "no special greeting in Austria and according to existing plans no meeting with the King of Italy. All political "combinations" are said to be baseless. These considerations are probably just. So far as the press is concerned great pains have been taken to work up the subject of Italy's agricultural output. Semitic journals would urge the Emperor to visit Rome at a moment when he could not visit the Pope. It was equally obvious that the German government could find means as to deal with so artificial a dilemma. He has been suffering from grip.

Many members of the distinguished company which filled the spacious hall of the Russian Herrenhaus for a seat of the German agricultural council had come expressly to see the Emperor. Few expected to hear him; but the gathering had the interesting experience of being present while the Emperor was addressing the subject to the list of adverse roles in which he has appeared before the public. On this occasion he was a practical agriculturist, describing in graphic terms, coupled with humorous remarks, the successful reclamation of waste land, made at his own initiative on his farm at Cadenen.

TURKEY AND FRANCE HIDE SWORD

Relations Between Two Nations Growing Better Every Day.

Ottoman Empire's Cabinet Is Tumbling to Pieces in the Meantime.

(BY GEORGE DUFRESNE.)

PARIS, March 11.—Franco-Turkish relations are rapidly improving. Rifaat Pasha, the Turkish foreign minister, is on the best of terms with M. Bompard, the French ambassador, and keeps him acquainted with the Persian negotiations going on between London and Constantinople. Still more remarkable is the reconciliation with the Imperial Ottoman Bank, which so short a while ago was mercilessly handled by David Bey, the Turkish minister of finance.

The Tanin, David's organ, wishes the world to know that the accord with the Ottoman Bank extends far beyond a mere financial transaction between the two parties. "It is a proof of solid and constant friendship, conformable to our reciprocal interests, which we particularly wish to have with France."

All this is very good, but the Turkish cabinet is tumbling to pieces. An Arabist, Caliph is threatened who will assert the principles of Islam against a young Turk inspired by a political freemasonry emanating from Paris, Bulgaria, Montenegro, and Greece, owing to the Turkish-Balkan understanding.

formed or are forming, themselves into a league that threatens to drive the Turk out of Europe. The only escape for young Turkey is to put aside certain European ideas, and fall back on the old traditional system of government. The Sultan has to be something more than a mere figurehead. Considering the character of the races that form his empire, there is no harm in his majesty being a bit of a despot. David Bey is a very clever man, and not all powerful with the committee of union and progress. The Young Turk is in the balance. It is a case of sauve qui peut.

FRENCH MANEUVERS.

The French naval maneuvers will not take place till next September, but already the subject is arousing considerable interest, owing to the report that the minister of marine proposes to hold them in the British Channel, with Dunkirk as the base. Some people have traced a connection between the maneuvers and the flushing fortifications, and on that point the minister of marine, Admiral Boue de Bapayere, may abandon the idea. As a friendly demonstration in sight of England, it would be perfect; anything further than that would be unwise.

It should also be remembered that the French minister has just changed the chief of the naval staff and the inspector-general-in-chief of the navy, these offices being filled by Admiral Jauréguiberry and Rear-Admiral Auvret, respectively. The whole scheme of the maneuvers must be studied, and a final announcement must necessarily be deferred.

TOURIST INVASION.

Anticipating a record invasion of American tourists of Paris this summer, the Paris cab driver is beginning to learn English and as he possesses a remarkable instinct, which enables him to tell an American with never failing accuracy, and also knows that almost every American tourist is flattered by being taken for an Englishman, he will address him in words like these: "My lord, will you step into my humble carriage? I am an excellent driver and will conduct you to all the sights of Paris."

Providing he is liberal with his tips, every English speaking person will be "My Lord." Personally, I have several times been addressed as "Monsieur le Prince," an unmistakable sign that I have been extravagant with my tips, for the drivers have a scale of finesness quite their own. If you give your driver a centimes your reward will be a rather disappointed "merci," while anything over 50 centimes or 10 cents (American money) will elevate you among the ranks of royalty.

PLAN OF ATTACK.

Military strategists are now discussing the plan of attack to be adopted by Germany in the event of another war being waged against France. This discussion is motivated by the Flushing fortifications and the question of Belgian neutrality.

One writer today suggests that Belgium neutrality would not stop the Germans any more than a motor car is stopped by a level crossing. He suggests that some time before war was declared a small section of the German army would simulate an attack on the eastern frontier. Meanwhile the bulk of the army would penetrate Belgium and the French army to the north in such a way as to make an attack on the rear.

The French general staff has, of course, its plan. Its main lines are thus indicated in a way which savors of a campaign conducted on comic opera lines. To the offensive screen of the Germans in the east the French would oppose a defensive screen.

ATTACK FROM REAR.

Afterwards, without violating Swiss territory, the greater part of the French army would attack from the north, the object being to cut the German line of communication. The Germans would turn the French forces on their left flank, the French would be able to perform a similar operation.

It is thought that if this double movement were executed with precision it might happen that the two armies would find themselves exchanging places. And at the same time the Germans would be in Paris while the French would be in Berlin.

It is not forgotten, however, that some movements which begin well often turn out badly. "Let us hope," says the strategist who the reader will have suspected by this time, is writing with his tongue in his cheek, that the Germans will find it impossible to pass the northern frontier. "One must not forget," he

LORD LAMINGTON PLANS ANOTHER 'SUBWAY TAVERN'

(BY PHILIP EVERETT.)

LONDON, March 11.—What Lord Lamington hopes to establish in England if he succeeds in having his "Public House Improvement Bill," just presented in the House of Lords, made into law, is very much the same kind of place, as the late Bishop Henry C. Potter of New York had in mind, when he endorsed the "Subway Tavern" in that city.

Lord Lamington says that the "Pubs," as our saloons are generally called, are a curse "to the English nation because they are merely drinking places, and the most of them are of a kind which are fanatical teetotalers, for opposing any improvements such as making the "pubs" more open, airy, commodious or comfortable, the substitution of the provision of chairs and tables, either wholly or partly, in lieu of existing bar accommodation; the provision of games (other than unlawful games) and the substitution of the provision of any such change for the better."

The managers of various licensed houses in the west end, with whom I have been in contact, yesterday seemed to think there was little likelihood of the proposed changes ever being brought about. Strangely enough, the idea appeared to be that the police would oppose any such change.

POLICE SPITEFUL.

As one manager said, "the police seem to have some special sort of spite against the places where people can sit down to their refreshments in small tables and listen to the music and chat together. The restrictions they impose could hardly be more stringent if the occupants were under police supervision. If there happens to be a woman in the party the restrictions multiply."

"As things are, you dare not go across to another table from your own and address a few words to some friends you have just seen come in. You must sit down and be instantly requested to sit down or go out. If a lady were to attempt to change her table there would be a terrible to-do. No, I cannot see the police welcoming any such change for the better. They seem to prefer the old toppers hanging on to the bar, and doing nothing else but steadily soaking. Anything that makes for brightness and variety is anathema to the bobbies."

The majority of people would probably welcome Lord Lamington's suggested improvements. But the engineering feat of completing the Panama Canal is being replaced by a trifle in comparison with the architectural feat of altering the structure of a London "pub."

NEW IRISH CLUB.

A new Irish club with the aim of promoting the union of the four provinces of Ireland is being started in London under the united auspices of the Irish association, the Ulster association, the Gaelic League, and the Irish Literary society. More than 50 prominent Irishmen in the leading professional and commercial circles of London have already handed in their signatures as founders and membership list contain over 300 Irish names. The club, which will be absolutely non-partisan and non-sectarian, is arranging for a large banquet to be held towards the end of this month and invitations are being sent to leading Irishmen in America and Canada.

PLAN FOR FESTIVAL.

Preparations are to be commenced at Carnarvon at once for the great festival week when, in July next, the army will not be stamped.

CANONIST TRIAL.

Today begins in Italy the great Canonist trial before the Vatican Assize court. After great difficulties a panel of 40 jurymen has been selected and from this the twelve members of the jury will be chosen. The trial will be continued until Easter, when possibly a week's recess will be granted to enable the lawyers and witnesses to spend the Easter holidays at their homes. So far six leading Neapolitan lawyers, including Deputy Vecchini, who defended the Countess Tarnowska, and Advocate Manfredi, who is considered the best orator in Italy, have been retained for the defense of the Canonists.

Prince of Wales will be invested with his title at Carnarvon castle, a choir of 500 is to be organized to sing national airs on the occasion, while for six days there will be a historic pageant with performances. It is estimated that between 10,000 and 15,000 people can be accommodated in the ancient castle at whose gates Edward I presented to the Welsh people the first Prince Edward of Carnarvon. Outside the Eleanor Gate 50,000 more spectators will be ranged on a specially erected stage. Carnarvon station as it stands is quite inadequate for dealing with such multitudes as will flock to the city in its week. The London and Northwestern railroad company has, therefore decided to carry out an extensive scheme of enlargement in order to cope with the extra traffic.

It is anticipated that the company will run upwards of 50 special trains into Carnarvon on the day of the investiture itself, while the excursion traffic during the whole week is certain to eclipse all previous records for the district.

VOYAGE WITHOUT PRECEDENT.

No decision has yet been made as to the vessel which is to be commissioned to convey the King and Queen to India in November. There is no precedent for such a voyage as the eastern tours made in previous years by the late King Edward and by present king were undertaken when they held the second position in the realm. In admiralty circles the opinion is expressed that an ocean liner will be chartered for the occasion. This was the case with the Balmoral Castle. But there is no doubt that a battleship of the new made and the following morning royal cruiser, and that it will be in charge of an admiral of the fleet.

VISCOUNTESS TORRINGTON, formerly Miss Eleanor Sourey, a popular London show girl who has taken up aviation in a desperate attempt to soar to the exclusive heights of England's peerage. Viscount Torrington is only 23 years old. He met his wife in the paddock at Epsom last year, and after a rapid courtship the young couple were married in October. They were both extremely fond of racing, and Lady Torrington owned a successful string of horses both before and after her marriage.

ONLOOKER KILLED BRIGAND CAUGHT IN STRIKE RIOT AS HE LEAVES THE OPERA

ROME, March 11.—Ballo, a notorious Sicilian brigand, has been captured at Palermo as he was leaving the opera, accompanied by a gorgeously bedizened woman and his "secretary," Fiorenzo. It was the habit of Ballo, who had amassed great wealth by pillage and blackmail, to array himself as a society "bloody" and frequent the theaters and cafes and numbers on the brave canines of Palermo when he felt so inclined.

This time he drove to the opera house in a magnificent automobile, but as the party was stepping from the car he was pounced upon by a party of policemen. Before he was overpowered Ballo shot and killed one of the officers.

Ballo's exploits had become proverbial for their audacity. About ten murders are said to have been committed by him, and he had won the reputation of being a man of some $30,000 a year by levying blackmail on two Sicilian provinces.

WARSHIPS DAMAGED BY THEIR OWN FIRE

PARIS March 11.—An alarming mishap to five French battleships as the result of exceptional firing practice is reported from Toulon. The squadron left Toulon last Tuesday under Admiral Bellue's orders, the program including special firing with the heaviest guns.

The practice began in very fine weather, and Admiral Bellue ordered simultaneous firing by the twin 12-inch guns of the main turrets at a target 10,000 meters (10,930 yards), distant. The shock of this simultaneous firing damaged the guns and turrets, according to reports published here, so as to render them temporarily useless in five battleships of six.

The Republic and the Justice, according to the Matin, will not be able to rejoin the squadron for a week. The Republic, according to the Journal, had her two main turrets completely jammed. The other vessels affected were the Patrie and the Liberte. Admiral Bellue has explained in an interview that the damage was less important than it has been represented at Toulon.

FIND ANARCHIST'S LOOT IN PAWNSHOP

BERLIN, March 11.—The German police have discovered that clocks and watches recently pawned by members of an anarchist band were stolen in Breslau.

This indicates that the Russian anarchists living in London made raids in continental cities. It was during such a raid in Breslau that articles manufactured in Switzerland were stolen there.

Investigations are being made at Breslau, and the results will be communicated to the London police. It is noteworthy that the German authorities are undertaking these investigations on their own initiative without any request from London.

BOY INJURED BY AEROPLANE.

PARIS, March 11.—An aeroplane accident, which caused serious injuries to a little boy of nine years, occurred yesterday afternoon at the aerodrome at Croissy, near Compiegne. The aviator, M. Chemine, after a flight in his monoplane, was rolling back his machine toward the shed when one of the wings of the aeroplane caught the boy, and dragged him along the ground for several yards. He sustained serious injuries.

ALBANIA THREATENS PEACE OF EUROPE

Continent's Blood Begins to Seethe With the Traditional Spring Symptoms of Unrest and War Is Near

(By FREDERICK WERNER.)

BERLIN, March 11.—When spring comes Europe's blood begins to seethe and she shows that traditional symptom of spring fever—uneasiness. It is therefore no surprise to hear that there is an alarming state of unrest in Albania. A prominent business man from the hospitable country said to me the other day:

"The whole blame rests on the Young Turks who go on robbing the Christian population, in order to reconstruct the great Ottoman Empire. They boast that they will soon force the Christians to shut their shops on Fridays and keep Ramadan. The Roman Catholic Albanians, who have emigrated into Montenegro, say that they would not mind paying taxes to King Nicholas, because he would devote the proceeds to roads and other useful works, and that they would be even willing to serve in his army, but they would not contribute a plaster to buy gold lace for Pashas, nor help as soldiers, to keep the Turks in Europe."

The Roman Catholics are angry with Austria, because they say that the late Austrian Consul-General at Skutari promised them his Government's protection if they would not rise when the Moslem Albanians rose. They followed these assurances and waited until it was too late, and a Turkish army was upon them. If the Young Turks had only sent Governor who understood the language and the needs of the people, they might have retained Albanian loyalty. Half the money expended on the Turkish military expedition would have been paid for the roads, for which the people are praying, and would have thus led to the development of the country's unexploited natural resources."

EXPECTS UPRISING.

In regard to the future he added: "I should not be surprised if another rising took place. The closing of the Albanian schools and the attempt to suppress the Albanian language have caused great wrath, and were most foolish moves. Now is Italy's time to act in conjunction with Montenegro."

Despite the Italian Ministry's statement that no movement of volunteers will be permitted, General Ricciotti Garibaldi says that he is ready to lead a corps of red-shirts over to Albania in the spring. He believes that Germany wishes to extend her influence over the Balkan peninsula, and thinks that it should therefore be the policy of Great Britain to strengthen the Balkan nationalities.

161,000,000 IN RUSSIA.

Statistics just published by the Russian Minister of the Interior show that little Czar Nicholas, the weakest but probably also the most kind-hearted of all European sovereigns, now holds the destiny of 161,000,000 souls in his hand, but what this gigantic empire, this colossal with feet of clay, will accomplish in the near future is most uncertain. One would have to be a prophet to tell whether Russia will some day dominate the world, or whether it will crumble into dust, crushed by the weight of its own inertia.

The official Russian statistics show a growth of population that is almost incredible. In the year 1888 Czar Alexander II had 74,536,300 subjects in Europe and Asia, all told, and forty years later the Ukase of his successor, Nicholas II, who died in 1908, showed that the empire now holds 161,000,000 today.

Finland, whose constitutional war with Russia has provoked the attention of the world, numbers only 3,015,700 citizens. Race divides the population of the Czar into groups, but, speaking roughly, the Slavs, or the Russians proper, constitute 65.8 per cent of the total; Turco-Asiatic tribes, who live in the east, constitute 24.5 per cent; Poles, who have 6.2 per cent; Ural Finnish races contribute 4.5 per cent; Jews, 3.9; Lithuanians and Letts, 2.4; and almost the last 5.9 per cent of the entire population (Germans), with 1.6 per cent.

The census of religious creeds, which in many municipal matters women in Austria already have a vote if they chose to exercise it, but there is a likelihood of a serious demand for the political suffrage for women being made for a long time to come. The upper-class Polish women and Jewesses are the most ardent advocates of the cause, and the German Austrian women, who are contented with the position of being a "Hausfrau" somewhat most elegant than her North German sister, and in most of the States she is the most Oriental tradition of the complete subjection of women is still strong.

PRICES FOR DOGS SEEKS TO SOLVE SLUMP AT VALDEZ AVIATION MYSTERY

Owners of Fancy Stock Anxious to Give Away Friends' French Physician Advances a Novel Theory to Account for Accidents.

VALDEZ, Alaska, March 11.—(Via Seattle)—A terrific slump in the price of dogs is recorded here. Malamutes, huskies, big and little members of the canine kingdom, of the wolf strain, not excepting the favorite and valuable animals that are a cross between the Scotch albatross and the McKenzie river timber wolf, have dropped in price till they can be had for the taking away.

Many owners of fancy stock, who a short time ago were worth thousands of dollars in dogs are offering to give away their stock gratuitously with no takers, and are even willing to accept a price for the dogs. The cause of the cataclysmic prices was the arrest of "Sloppy Jake," owner of the dog hotel, in whose establishment canines, when not working on the trails are guests for the winter. "Jake" was fined $25 and costs on a charge of keeping vicious animals that make a practice of attacking helpless children, and the noble Malamute, the friend of man, who does nothing all summer except to lay on the sidewalk and push the white man off into the mud, or sit on his haunches and bay at the cold, cold moon, but who comes out strong in the winter, as a puller of sleighs, a human companion, a work and sport, at once became an object of contumely on the city streets—a mendicant to be kicked and snuffed from pillar to post by the foot of every rubber-booted citizen who came within him.

For many months past the streets have been crowded with dogs, and in innumerable cases they have attacked and severely bitten children on their way to and from school. Matters were brought to a crisis yesterday afternoon, when a whole pack jumped a frightened youngster and bit him so severely that the attention of a physician was necessary. The child was saved from certain death by a miner named Ben Sikes, who happened to be passing along the street with a shovel in his hand.

An indignation meeting was held at once and "Jake" was arrested by United States Marshal Harvey Sullivan.

The city is in a state of alarm, and it is equally certain that the advent in this city of a number of dogs from Nome, led to the attacks on the children being formulated.

For five years past at Nome the attacking of children by dogs has been a common occurrence, and in one case a boy named Ben Gooden was killed by five of his own malamutes and later by a pack of his father's cabin, but so savage was the attack that he was dead before his parent could reach him.

In several instances at Nome, school children were attacked by roving bands of malamutes, some of them receiving permanent injuries.

Their Work

One can see "Colonel Todhunter of Missouri" dramatized. Whether he goes the Colonel is the center of interest. What Colonel Newcome was in the days of Thackeray, this modern Colonel is to the people of Missouri. He is just as definite a type. Perhaps he is more interesting. Every sentence of his many speeches may be quoted, and there is, besides, that unique and original personality that stands so vividly out from life's background.

Of course the story will be dramatized, for it is full of dramatic situations, and it bids fair to make even a stronger play than the successful "Gentleman From Mississippi."

"Colonel Todhunter of Missouri" is one of the Bobbs-Merrill books, and its successful author is Ripley D. Saunders. The latter has caught the spirit of Missouri, and his book is quite as valuable for its local color, for its atmosphere, as it is for the lovely old Colonel, which is its central picture.

Incidentally, also, it is a very clever sketch of the way they "do politics" in Missouri. And even though the good Colonel Todhunter hails from Missouri, one feels he is quite an old friend. For though he expresses his ideas in the Missouri vernacular, though he represents a distinctly Southern type, his kindness of heart, his generosity, his sturdy goodness, his fine sense of humor, his loyalty to a great friendship, are characteristics of good men everywhere.

The story is that of a Missouri political campaign, and Colonel Todhunter is fighting the cause of his friend, Bill Strickland. He leads the campaign, fights from the shoulder, makes characteristic speeches full of humor, mortgages his home, and wins the battle for his friend.

PLENTY OF ROMANCE.

Meantime there is plenty of romance in the love story of the young people whom one wants to meet in this typical Missouri town. Mrs. Todhunter is charming, and Miss Mary Todhunter is a delightful girl, with that same loyalty of heart which has distinguished her father. Her love story has exciting episodes, and the climax of the story is worked out in a surprisingly strong way. The book is unique in many respects, and Colonel Todhunter ought to be as well known as Colonel Sellers, though indeed, he is more on the Colonel Newcome type.

The word pictures are specially well done. He is one of the interesting Colonels.

Tall and erect, Colonel Todhunter carried his spare but stalwart frame with an ease that somewhat belied the grizzled gray of his hair, and the white of his soldierly mustache and old-fashioned "imperial." One could not fail to recognize him for just what he was, a lineal descendant of that colonial Virginian stock whose grandsons followed the pioneer trail that led from the Old Dominion, first to North Carolina, then to Kentucky and Tennessee, and thence to Missouri, a stock that has remained distinctively American since the time of its first taking root in American soil.

True to this type, the Colonel's dress in itself proclaimed his caste. It was a trifle quaint and out of date, yet of a certain unmistakable dignity. The wide-brimmed hat of soft gray wool, the full skirted and ample breasted dark frock coat, the waistcoat of white duck, the wide white linen collar and carefully knotted black cravat, the generously shown and many pleated shirt bosom, the comfortably cut gray trousers, falling easily over low shoes, tied with broad ribbons of black silk, the gold-headed cane, swung leisurely in rhythmic unison with its owner's tranquil progress through life—these seemed as much a part of Colonel Todhunter and the class for which he stood as the Colonel's frank and clear featured countenance itself.

Dear old Colonel loves a fight, and he says to his friend Bill Strickland:

"I'll move heaven and earth to make you win. But I'll be eternally condemned, suh, if I'd care the snap of a whip for a winnin' that wasn't the result of the hottest fight we know how to put up suh. We'd be a mighty scrubby lot if we wasn't always ready to wrangle our blameworthy for what we're worth havin' in this here world, suh."

"Give it to 'em good and hard, Bill. They're ain't nothin' on God's green footstool that I hate worse'n a renegade that goes back on a friend when his help's most needed. And I don't know whether its the treachery of it that I hate most or the yellow streak that always goes with it, suh! A picture of the philosophy of life is also the good Colonel's."

"Faith in the good of life ain't nothin' more or less'n common sense, suh. It's justified by the facts, as every blessed last one of us needs when he begins to see the finish and size up the whole thing. And enthusiasm ain't nothin' more or less'n interest in the game. Just the minute mine's all gone, I'll be willin' to lay down my cards and quit. I do it know nothin' more triflin' nor insignificant than a bottle of soda pop that won't fizz, suh!"

HAS HARD FIGHT.

"Veil, suh," he said to his friend, the editor, "the owner of a newspaper ought to flop down in his meadow-bones every night and pray, 'Our Father, deliver us from temptation!' He can help or hurt crooked men more'n any other one influence, and they know it. He sure must have a hard fight to keep straight—the longer he stays virtuous, the more they're willin' to pay for him. I'm glad I ain't in the business, suh, old Satan! got grip-holds enough on me as it is!"

And to a friend the Colonel says: "A man don't never have to fight but one day's fight at a time, and there's always a night's rest comin' in between if he don't lay awake pityin' himself, suh. I know what I'm talkin' about. It ain't but a twelve hour's fight no time, and a man who can't fight that long is a mighty meas'ly specimen of man, suh."

The most amusing part of the book concerns itself with the campaign, when the Colonel arrives in St. Louis to help his friend. But the Colonel is very modest, he has doubts of his own ability.

"I'm willin' to do most anything in the world for you and you know it. But when you turn me loose in a big town like this and expect me to behave like anything more'n a wall-eyed glow horse with his tail full of cockle burs, I'll be everlastingly condemned if you ain't makin' a mighty serious mistake, suh. It'll be your fault, if you have occasion to regret it."

His adventures with the newspapers are full of interest, and one goes campaigning with the good Colonel with a light heart. Indeed, the way the political campaign is handled is reminiscent of Mark Twain's satire, and the bare of wonderful brass bands, and a campaign where men fight a political battle to a finish.

And his work being done, the good Colonel comes home, to find other things of moment awaiting him. The Colonel's own home is a happy one. So dearly he enjoys a love story, and he is always ready to push one along to a happy conclusion.

Sim to his friend Sim Birdson comes to him in his trouble. Sim is very much in love with Angelica Exall, but her mother has other plans for the fair Angelica. And so Sim comes to his old friend the Colonel. He'll be dog-goned if I know what to do, suh. It looks mighty poor-spirited for a man to let himself be bullied-ragged out of his rights by a woman, but the cold truth is, Colonel, that Miss Angelica's mother is a terrible lady, suh. The case looks mighty serious to me, Colonel Todhunter."

IT WAS SERIOUS.

"It is serious, Sim. The reason why it's serious is that you've let that old brigadier of a Mrs. Exall scare you. You're skeered at the death of her."

"I'm skeered all right, there's no two ways about that, suh. I'm so skeered that I get weak and tremble in my shank-bones ever time I have to face her, and that's the Lord's truth."

"And that's right where you're going to lose out, Sim. You've let that old catamaran see that you're skeered of her, and she ain't a-goin' to show you no more mercy'n a rabbit. It's all right for a man to feel shaky before the girl herself, suh, but if the girl's got such a cantankerous mother as Miss Angelica's, Exall's got, his only play is to bluff the girl's mother to a standstill. You ought to be like a roarin' lion to that old lady, Sim Birdson—it's the only chance you've got of winnin' Miss Angelica."

"That's all very well, Colonel. It's mighty easy for you to 'at back and advise me along them lines, but I'd like to see you try any roarin' lion business with Miss Angelica Exall's mother, suh, brave I though I know you to be. You better roarin' round her, suh, and she'll give you to jolt that'll make your back teeth come loose, Colonel."

"Sim," said Colonel Todhunter, "if that's the way you feel about it, you ain't no more goin' to get Miss Angelica Exall than you're goin' to fly. Your goose is cooked right now, suh! And how the Colonel helps along Sim Birdson's runaway match."

"Another story." But always, of course, one's interest centers around the Colonel's charming daughter, Mary, and she is the center of many dramatic situations. And again the astuteness of the Colonel, the brave fair fight he offers, his happiness for his daughter, and "they live happily ever afterward," for the last paragraph of the book is also the keynote for the future.

"Look here, Bill Strickland, it's high time we was gettin' home to our folks with all this good news! Let me tell you one thing, my friend, and that ain't two. You and me have got to get a heap more sleep'n we've been gettin' here lately if we mean to dance very spry at Mary's and Tom's wedding, suh."

Underlying much that is exceeding picturesque in the book are grave issues, and the wisdom one finds in it is not peculiar to Missouri, but is part of the universal heritage of man.

"THE UNKNOWN LADY."

One of the great successes of the year will undoubtedly be Mr. Forman's recent novel, "The Unknown Lady." It is a story of the happy Brothers. One of the leading reviews tells the story in a direct fashion:

"The story is told in the first person, the narrator being a famous American portrait painter who tells us of his life and loves, and the mystery of his deepest friend, Henry Trent. All the early chapters describe the narrator's childhood summering in a village, where he meets his friend, Henry Trent, a small boy, who has mysterious experiences, lives the veil and peeps beyond the material and welcomes out of the vast unknown of a companion spirit, a little girl with gray eyes whom he talks and plays. But her presence, which is very real to him, is his most secret secret, and only a hint of it is given to his best friend. The story grows, and the reader, believing it to be embodied in a real woman somewhere in the world, when he reaches manhood the need is strong upon him to find her. Finally he decides to become an artist, paint the face and figure that are so real to him, and send the pictures out into the world to discover their original. He has little interest in art, and just a little talent for either drawing or painting. But by sheer will-power and compelling need of soul he trains himself into sufficient technical facility, and then paints, in a single window, the face and figure of the unknown lady," of such masterly power and appeal that they make him famous at once. And then, to the great astonishment—nay, the earthquake—of his friends, he is discovered. It is discovered that the portrait of the lovely girl whom he has known very well for many months, and with whom—"Introuvable"—he is already in love.

"It would take the subtlest sort of a pen to handle convincingly a theme so occult and so opposed to ordinary human beliefs. To say that Mr. Forman has been a better artist in this with it does not lessen the fact that in all the other parts of his story he has succeeded with great cleverness and charm. The most of the story takes place in Paris, though there are some delightful chapters detailing memories of childhood in the Connecticut village, and the art student life of the narrator. The English and the English fellow-worker, is not a little suggestive of "Tribby," although to Anglo-Saxon sensibilities it will seem much more reputable."

NEW WISTER NOVEL.

Among the many literary news notes of the day one reads: "Late in the spring the Macmillan Co. will publish a novel by Owen Wister, 'Members of the Family,' telling a story about the same people as the 'Virginian.' There will also be 'Love That Lasts,' by Mrs. Mabel Osmond Wright, described as a novel of human nature in which problem studies and historical features do not appear. Late in April will be published 'The Sovereign Power,' by Mark Lee Luther. This has to do with the attempts of a European prince to re-establish a feudal heritage. An American girl and an aeroplane are the factors in the story, the scenes of which are laid in various well-known places of continental Europe. The Macmillan Company also publishes 'The Justice of the King,' by Hamilton Drummonds. The latter the author of some well known books, among them 'The King's Scapgoat,' 'Room Five,' 'The Seven Houses,' 'Shoes of Gold.'"

WORK BY FRENSSEN.

Another very important book published by the Macmillans is 'Klaus Hinrich Baas,' of which the foreword brings this message:

"Gustav Frenssen's new novel 'Klaus Hinrich Baas' belongs to that great class of fiction which is primarily concerned with the story of man's fight for success in the business world. In this particular case the story is told from the point of view of William Allen White's 'A Certain Rich Man.' In fact it might almost be said that Klaus Baas ultimately becomes a certain rich man of Germany. Not only so, but the two books are in many respects very similar, however, for in both are found the same leisurely style, with the detail and variety of real life."

Klaus Baas begins his career when he hires out to a milk peddler as a stable boy. His natural ambition makes this work distasteful to him and he casts about for something better. His next position is a step higher and serves to satisfy his cravings temporarily. But, as the story goes, he is impelled by an inner force, a force which all his life keeps him moving ever on. Finally, through the good offices of a friend he enters the employ of a prosperous merchant. For the first time in his life he feels partially satisfied. At last he is on the right track and he knows it.

But Klaus has yet many things to overcome. Through the years of his apprenticeship as a clerk, his military services, his experience in India and his work in a provincial banking house, the individual Klaus Hinrich Baas is subconsciously fighting the Baas stock. With few digressions, however, he follows a direct line toward the goal he has set for himself. The story of this progression and development is a remarkably strong and above all, consistent piece of work. The keen-eyed, sharp-witted business man, whose foresight saves the old established firm of A. E. Eschen from bankruptcy, is the natural product of the environment in which he has been reared. The story is a masterpiece of work shaping his character from the time when as a boy he dreamed dreams and saw visions.

The similarity existing today between Klaus Baas and the modern business man is striking. The story is a masterpiece of work shaping his character from the time when as a boy he dreamed dreams and saw visions.

Artist Models Go On Strike

LIFE NOT ALL BEER AND SKITTLES

The world artistic all over the United States has been aroused recently by the strike for higher pay of the artists' models of the Quaker City. The idea of models getting out in the spotlight and airing their financial difficulties is something new in this country and much attention has consequently been attracted to the affair.

THE artists' models of Philadelphia, men and women, have united in a demand upon the Academy of Fine Arts, the big art school of that town, for a higher rate of pay for posing. Their demand, which has been refused, is for a uniform scale of 50 cents an hour, with or without drapery. They are consequently forming a union and will fight for what they ask. The letter outlining the demands of the models, nearly all of whom are women, was sent to John E. D. Task, secretary and manager of the Academy, on February 14. It was signed by Miss Dorothy McKay, and was promptly answered as follows:

REFUSES RAISE.
"Dear Madam: Your note of February 14 has been received by Mr. Task and referred to the school department. I regret very much that it is impossible to do as you suggest in regard to the twenty-five and thirty-three and a third-cent rate per hour in the portrait sketch and illustration classes. The reason that these classes are paid for at a lower figure is due to the comparative ease of getting models to take them, and also the risk of cold is less than in the other classes.
"You will be justified in asking more for posing privately than in posing here, as private posing is usually less regular and has not the advantage of making you known to a number of people at once.
"Very truly yours,
"C. F. RAMSAY,
"Curator of the Schools."
POSING IN NUDE.
At present the academy pays 50 cents an hour for posing nude, but 25

Taunt Spoils Temperament

CLEVELAND.—The artistic temperament of Hazel L. Anderson, Cleveland actress, was so badly damaged that she was unable to act up to her salary when her husband, Harry Eugene Anderson, an actor, called her naughty names and humiliated her before other members of the company. That is one of the grounds set up in the petition for divorce filed by the actress in common pleas court. Mrs. Anderson, who is but 21, says her husband, who was a member of the same company, had a habit of calling her bad names while she and other performers were waiting for their cues in the wings. He became so nervous that when she stepped before the footlights she was unable to make a favorable impression upon her audience.
The petition recited that she married Anderson at Philadelphia on May 6, 1908. They secured engagements in road companies and traveled all over the United States. She says that although her husband received a much larger salary he spent it all and never provided her with the necessities of life.
According to the petition, when she found her husband's taunts made it impossible for her to play her parts with any degree of artistic success, she separated from him. This was on December 3, 1910. He is now supposed to be playing in New York and living at 214 W. Thirty-fourth street in that city.

"The idea of paying us less because we might not catch cold," indignantly exclaimed Miss McKay, who is directing the organization of the union and who is much in demand as a model because of her beautiful Titian hair, pale blue eyes and milk-white skin. "We have to eat as much whether we pose with our clothes or in the altogether. At 50 cents an hour we only get a living wage, because the work is so irregular. Some of us only average $5 a week during the season. We want to live with or without our clothes."

WILL STARVE FIRST.
"There are thirty-five professional models in Philadelphia, and now that we have been turned down by Mr. Ramsay we are going ahead in the organization. A union and each member will agree not to work for less than 50 cents an hour even if we have to starve. That is the only way we can enforce our demands by getting together.
"Over in New York they have the Art Women's Working club and the girls get a minimum of 50 cents."

NOTED MEMBERS.
"Miss Constance Curtis is the president, and many of the wives of famous artists and several distinguished women artists are on the board of directors. They include Miss Martha Baxter, Mrs. Carroll Beckwith, Miss Ethel Caswell, Mrs. Leo Everett, Miss Gloriana Sargent, Miss Helen Sargent and Mrs. Harold Vincent. The employment bureau is a prominent feature. It is organized to help the model, dignify the profession of posing and enable the artist to obtain prompt and reliable service."

IBSEN DRAMA IN REAL LIFE ENDS IN COURT

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—Ibsen drama in real life had its finale in the divorce court which granted a decree to John T. Swenson, whose attorney offered in evidence letters in which Mrs. Swenson told her husband she had fallen in love with another man.
Swenson testified to the marriage in this city in 1904 and of a three months' honeymoon in Sweden. In Scandinavia Mrs. Swenson met an old sweetheart. She did not return to America with her husband, and later wrote a letter imploring him to divorce her that she might be free to marry her first love. Convinced that his wife would not return to him, Swenson reluctantly sued. When the decree was announced today he was visibly affected.

"The Industrial Art school, at Broad and Pine streets, Philadelphia, pays 50 cents an hour, clothes or no clothes. There are only a few people that can give us this work, and it is only fair that as long as they have us do it they should pay us a decent living wage."

TRIALS OF A MODEL.
In speaking of the trials of an artist model Miss McKay said:
"It takes long practice to learn to keep one position hour after hour. Often novices faint after an hour, and it is very embarrassing. Artists are awfully hard people to get along with. They get terribly excited if you change your pose, or want to stop and rest.
"I know of one case where an artist got so interested painting a Venus that he forgot to put coal in the studio stove. The place got cold and colder, and the young girl sitting on the platform began to shiver, but even then she would start to speak the artist, who is an excitable man, would say: 'Now, now, just a minute; I'm getting it.' Finally the girl asked for a shawl, but he would not even let her have that. He would not let her put on anything until it grew dark."

EXPERIENCE FATAL.
"When she went home she went to bed. The doctor came and said she had pneumonia. Now she has tuberculosis. So you see it isn't all beer and skittles being an artist's model.
"Occasionally an artist will stand up for a cup of tea and a cracker, but we don't care for their light refreshments. When you get to know artists as we do you'll find they don't always know what's good to eat and they don't always have the price. I'm no Valerie West myself and I'm not listening for the dumb waiter in the studio to sneak and for the artist to person to retrieve canvassback duck for me under silver covers as it goes past. Give me ham and rolls and a cup of coffee, and I don't ask any light refreshments. I'm human sympathy. They can go shy on all that, but not on the 50 cents an hour."

WAVE OF SYMPATHY.
A wave of sympathy swept through New York studios wherever artists' models are employed when the story of the demand for more pay by the Philadelphia models became generally known.
The lowest rate for models in New York is 33 1-3 cents an hour. Not all the schools, however, maintain the same rates. The National Academy of Design pays 50 cents an hour in its life classes. For its portrait and costume classes it pays $5 a week for three hours' work a day. This is at the rate of 33 1-3 cents an hour.
The Art Students' league makes no distinction between life and costume classes. All models get $8 a week for four hours' work a day, which is the School of Art, the School of Applied Design for Women and the private schools pay the same rate.

One of the big photographers will pay a model $5 for a morning sitting. Class work is hard because if the model is posing in the altogether in a large studio a student may come in, throw off his coat, say: 'My! but it is hot here,' and open all the windows. The whole class goes on with no thought of the model's comfort.
"One of the unwritten laws is that if a model inspires an artist with an idea and he sells the picture she gets ten per cent of the price in addition to her wages. But it is not always paid."

BARE LIVING WAGE.
On this basis, models say, it is impossible, even by doing extra work, to earn more than $12 a week. This is a bare living wage, as they see it. The number of professional models in New York is less than sixty, it is said. Not more than fifty of these are of established reputation. Amateur models, however, are legion and the resentment of the professionals is even greater against them than it is against the artists.
Miss Hermine Brown, one of the best known models in New York who has posed for many important pictures, said:
"The girls in Philadelphia undoubtedly have a grievance. Without models it is almost impossible for the artist to produce his best work, and we should be paid at least enough to live decently."

PHOTOGRAPHERS PAY GOOD.
"Of late years the fine photographers have taken away many of the best artists' models and monopolized them merely because they pay better."

Hunting on the Ocean's Floor

The great Challenger expedition, returned to Britain in 1876, after having spent over three years in the exploration of the great ocean basins of the world, says Harper's Magazine. Among its many results, the one that riveted most of the attention of the public was the discovery that living organisms were to be found everywhere in the ocean, from the surface down to depths of three or four miles. Men were, indeed, surprised to learn that in these great depths, to which sunlight never penetrated, where the temperature approached the freezing point, and where the pressure was four or five tons on the square inch, large and delicate animals belonging to nearly all marine types could flourish in great abundance. They were also surprised to learn that small particles such as fall to the bottom of a tumbler of water will also fall to the bottom of an ocean six miles in depth.

Acquaintance was made with the new species, genera and even orders of animals, which recalled extinct forms found imbedded in rocks as fossils—the stalked crinoids, for example. New and extremely interesting instances were observed of the way in which organisms adapt themselves to remarkable and hitherto unconceived conditions of life.
The strange and fantastic fishes brought up from great depths were all dead when hauled on deck. Their eyes were often blown out of their heads by the expansion of their body gases as these fishes were hauled by the nets into shallower water. Large numbers of these strange fishes, crustaceans, cuttlefishes and zoophytes emitted from special organs a blue green phosphorescent light, resembling in function searchlights—in this way the eternal darkness of the cold, motionless region at great depths was illuminated.

Sometimes the trawl brought up an ooze made up of calcareous shells, sometimes a red clay containing cosmic spicules, dozens of carbonates of whales, and hundreds of shark's teeth, all covered by manganese oxide. Scientific men had evidently invaded a new world, field of research of surpassing importance to all who take an interest in the advance of natural knowledge.
The modern science of oceanography was practically founded by the Challenger expedition. In more recent years our knowledge has been greatly extended by expeditions sent out by the governments of nearly all civilized countries, by cable ships, and by private individuals, like the late Alexander Agassiz and the Prince of Monaco. The development of this new science has also been helped greatly by the work carried on at the marine biological stations which have been founded in many parts of the world.

At 3 He Smokes Cigars

NEW YORK.—By what curious freak of Nature is a youngster of three able to smoke big, fat, black cigars and enjoy them as much as if he were eating Fry's delicious chocolate? That is the question which is puzzling Canadian doctors just now in regard to Edward Herbert, the three-year-old son of a Canadian fisherman who lives near Windsor, Nova Scotia.
"Young Ted is a corker," says the father. "He started his smoking habits twelve months ago by taking a pull on the six at my pipe, and he seemed to enjoy it, too, although I smoke plug tobacco of the strongest kind. Didn't it trouble his 'Little Mary'?" Not a bit, and, although we tried to break him of the habit by punishing him, he would have his smoke if he got half a chance. And when his mother took him with her to the hotel where she worked, he would purloin any pipes he saw lying about, take them into a dark corner, and smoke them.
"We made a final effort to cure him by giving him a big black cigar, but bless your heart, it didn't make the slightest difference, so we have given up trying to cure him as a bad job. Now we let him have a cigar when he wants one, and it is really a comical sight to see him sitting in an arm-chair with his arms crossed and a big weed crawling in his mouth, pulling at it for all he is worth and listening to the conversation."

Edward is only a baby in size, thought, and action, but to him a big black cigar has more attractions than a gaudy red cart. He will lay aside his toys at any time of the day to smoke, and the strength of that smoke has no terrors for that infantile stomach. Color and shape cut a figure, however, as Edward is partial to cigars with a bright colored band.
The doctors say that the cigars Edward smokes are strong enough to upset a full-grown man, but they don't seem to trouble Edward, who is very much alive and kicking, and whose greatest punishment is to have his cigar taken away from him when he has been naughty.

OLD OPIE DILLDOCK'S STORIES

(Copyright: 1911: by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

I was up in northern Alaska some years ago frolicking in the snowclad hills with my three huskies—Eskimo dogs. They were all the companions I had, those dogs were, and I was exceedingly fond of them for they furnished me much amusement.

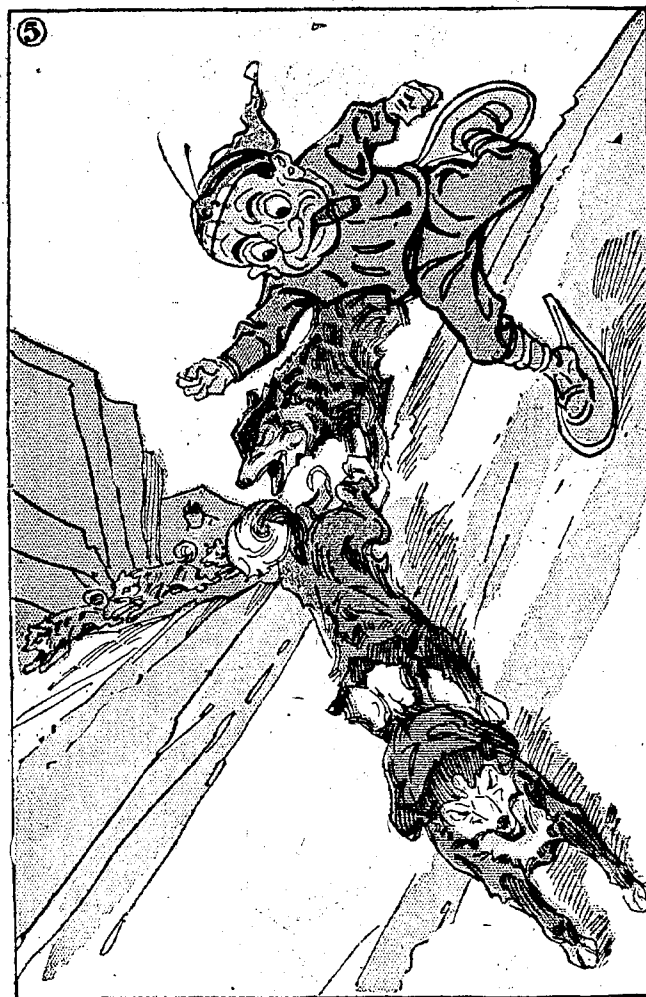

While I played with them one day I was approached by four Indians, one of them followed by three dogs about like mine, except they hadn't the same intelligence. The chief, Mighty Sport, proposed a race between his dogs and mine. I promptly accepted.

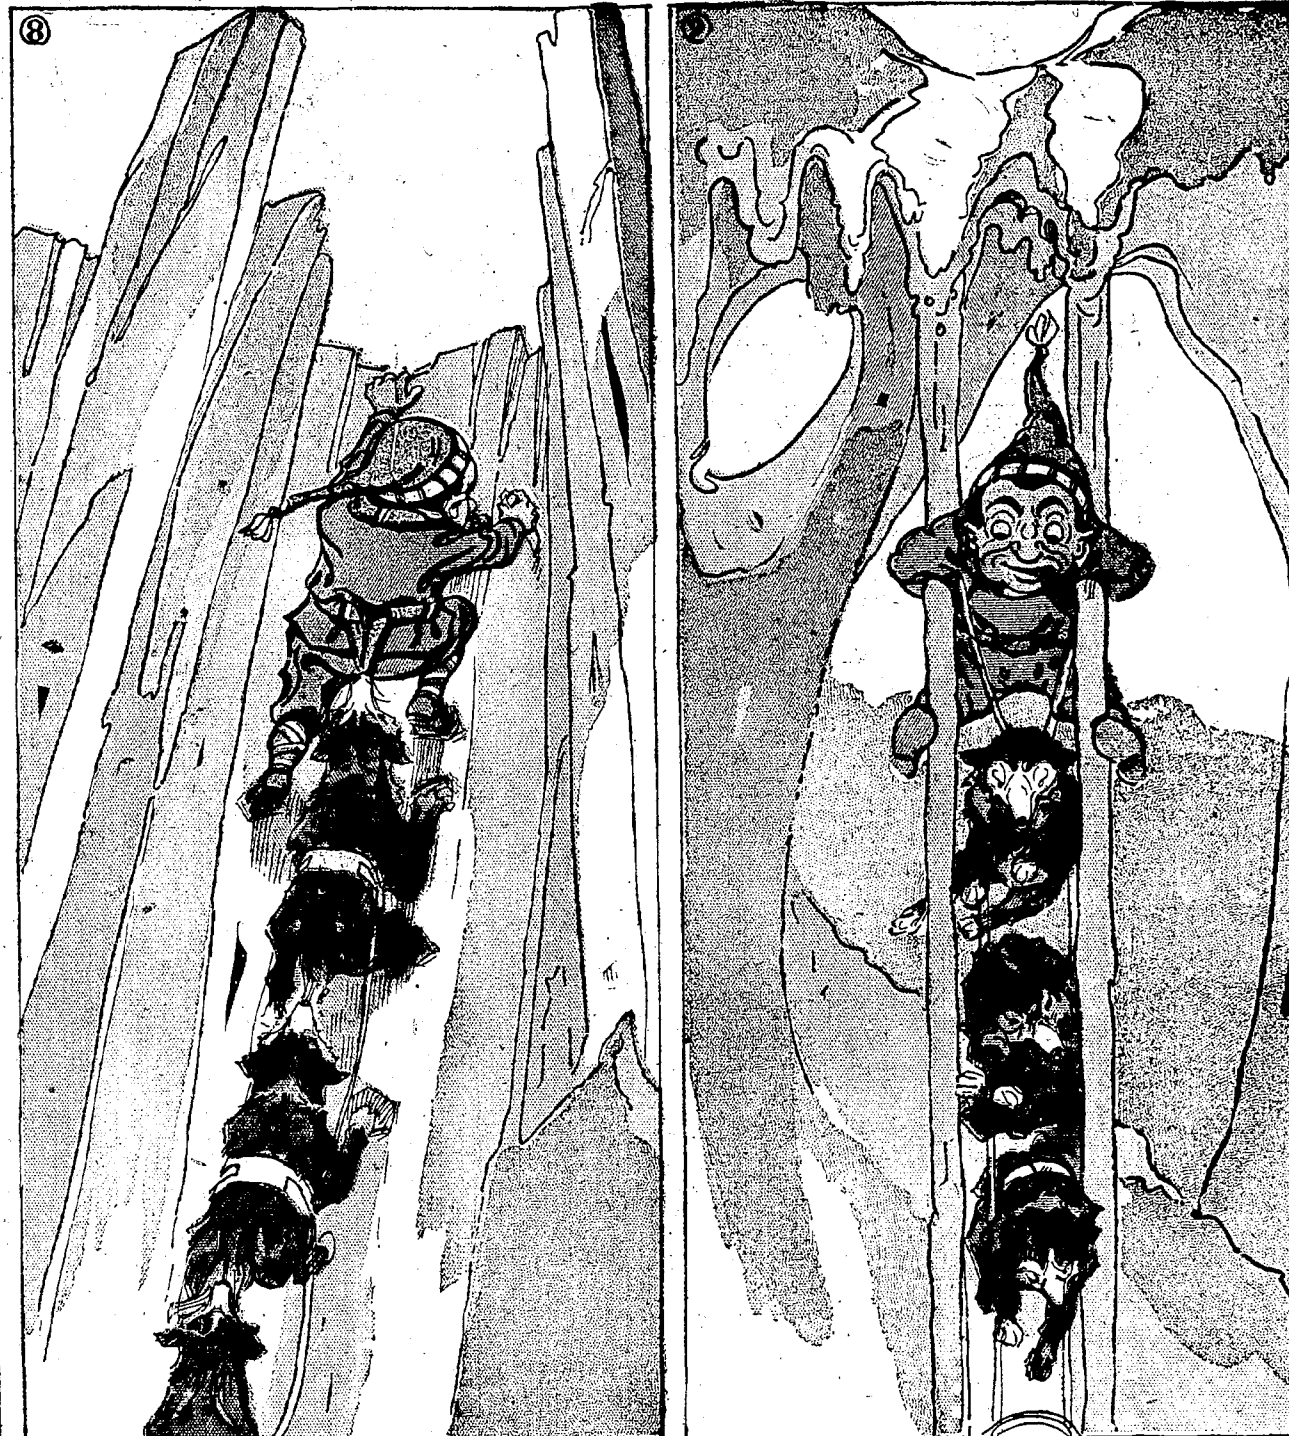

Shortly after this, having permitted Mighty Sport to map out the route—one with which he, of course, was very familiar and about which I knew absolutely nothing—we hitched our dogs to two light sledges and started off. In the distance Sport's three companions huddled in their blankets and laughed over some trick I felt sure they intended playing on me. But I did not let on, and Mighty Sport and I urged our dogs forward with great speed.

Approaching a little gully, Sport veered a trifle to the right but I kept right on, only to plunge through a thin crust of snow into a deep hole, previously hollowed out by the crafty Redskins. While I was digging my dogs out, Sport got a big lead.

Therefore, in order to catch up with him it was necessary for me to race my dogs around a steep and icy mountain peak. This I did, however, leaning straight out from the peak, and so fast did we go that we defied the laws of gravitation.

The pals of Sport had made our way difficult to navigate beforehand. Coming to a place which had been an open ravine, we found it choked with large blocks of ice, and were compelled to dig foot holds in the ice and thus make the ascent. My dogs held on tightly.

The other side of the ravine, however, was iced to a depth of nine thousand feet. Quickly I built a fire on top of the ice, and melted it until it ran down in two long spiral icicles almost reaching the ground. Then the dogs and I slid down this to safety.

Having gained almost all the lost ground, we came upon the brink of an almost perpendicular mountain down which we had to slide. Taking off my snowshoes and strapping them on my back, I placed the dogs thereon and down the icy side of the mountain we swerved.

But coming to the end of this we found ourselves upon an icy crag which shot us out over the needlelike peaks of other crags. Instantly I rehitched the dogs to the sledge, while in midair, and we made the perilous leap for life, landing safely below.

I reached camp and stood around waiting for Mighty Sport to come in. After an hour had passed he still was missing. So I started in search of him. I found him several miles from camp, his dogs huddled on the back of the sledge utterly exhausted, and Sport himself wrapped in his blanket and almost frozen to death. He told me he had given up and had sat down to die. I cheered him up and brought him back to camp crest-fallen and sullen.

U.S. SENATOR PERKINS IS ILL

Condition So Serious Daughters Have Been Summoned to Washington

Health of Veteran Statesman Was Undermined by Efforts in Fair Contest

United States Senator George C. Perkins is so ill at Washington that his relatives in California have been summoned to his bedside.

Miss Alma Perkins received word yesterday of her father's illness and will leave today for Washington. She will be joined at Reno by Mrs. Cleveland Baker, who was Miss Pansy Perkins, and go with her to the Capitol. Senator Perkins is said to be very ill, his condition having been aggravated by the recent night sessions of Congress which he has been attending. The Senator suffered a complete breakdown last September and left on a trip for Tahiti. When he returned he was very much improved and said that the air of the South Sea had benefited him with new health.

Senator Perkins said at the time that he had no intention of remaining in office after he had completed his term, he said, and after that he planned to remain at his home in Oakland.

He was accompanied on his trip to Tahiti by his niece, Alma. The Senator was formerly a sailor. He made the trip to the South Sea on the steamer Mariposa, and when he returned his friends believed that he was thoroughly rejuvenated. The Senator's health had been good up to several months ago, when he began to attend the night sessions of Congress. He was among the Californians who worked industriously to have the Panama Pacific Exposition come to San Francisco, and his work in this connection helped to undermine his health.

Mother Who Killed Child May Go Free

Insanity Plea Will Be Made by Woman On Trial in New York.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—District Attorney Sanford predicted this afternoon that if a verdict of insanity is considered in the case of Mrs. Edith Mober, who is on trial for killing her 5-year-old son, she will soon be a free woman. Such a verdict would send her to Matteawan from which institution she would soon gain her release, because she is in delicate health and rational to all appearances. The district attorney regards as defective the law that makes this possible. It is expected that the prosecution will close its case against Mrs. Mober on Monday.

Cannery Employee Is Mangled to Death

Caught in Machinery, His Left Leg Is Ground to a Pulp.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—While at work in the Pacific Cannery in the Bay View district, Antonio Chierentes, living at 124 Fourteenth street, South, was caught in the machinery and his left leg mangled, resulting later in his death. He was taken to the General Emergency Hospital, where the mangled leg was amputated at the hip.

Pioneer Educator Reaches His Ninetieth Milestone

BERKELEY, March 11.—Dr. Samuel H. Willey, who was president of California College in Oakland, the precursor of the University of California, celebrated his ninetieth birthday today at the apartments of his daughter, Mrs. A. D. Pray, in the Berkeley Inn.

At the family reunion there were present besides Dr. Willey and Mrs. Pray, William J. Willey, a son, of this city, and Mrs. Edward Gray of Sonoma county, another daughter.

Morphine Bane of Ten Per Cent of American Doctors

BOSTON, March 11.—More than 10 per cent of American doctors habitually take morphine, usually by means of the hypodermic syringe, and one-third of the doctors in foreign countries do the same, declares Dr. William F. Boos, expert toxicologist at the Massachusetts general hospital. Moreover, trained nurses and the wives of physicians are addicted to the use of morphine to an

ROOSEVELT PRAISES THE CONFEDERATES

JACKSON, Miss., March 11.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt bared his head in respectful attitude today before the portrait of Jefferson Davis in the Mississippi Hall of Fame, and spoke in kindly words of the chieftain of the Confederacy. In company of Governor Noell and the reception committee, Colonel Roosevelt was being shown the portraits and wall reliefs in the Hall of Fame. When shown the picture of Jefferson Davis he gazed intently at it a moment and said: "A fine painting, a strong face, a wonderful man." In his address to an audience of 6000 people at the State House, Colonel Roosevelt spoke words of praise for the heroism of the soldiers of the Confederacy and declared it is one of the marvels of history that fifty years after the Civil War finds a nation solidly united, and the American citizen much the same in his ideals, whether he lives in the North or the South.

RACES MAY BE RESUMED BUT NO BETTING

Proposed Law to Govern the Game By a Board of Commissioners.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE.)

SACRAMENTO, March 11.—It is possible that horse racing without book makers, pool sellers, "tip" givers and other attaches of the game who have been legislated out of existence, may yet be allowed in California, under the direction of a state racing commission consisting of five members, to be appointed by the Governor.

A bill by Senator Campbell on the subject was recommended for passage this afternoon by the Senate judiciary committee.

No persons, save owners of horses in the races, may have pecuniary interest in the stakes. The sport shall not exceed fifteen days. No race information is to be given to pool rooms. Licenses to hold races must be secured from the commission. No racing now is allowed here without permit of T. H. Williams save at the risk of race horse owners having their animals ruled off the eastern tracks. Under the proposed law, Williams himself would have to get license to hold a meeting.

A similar law is in effect in Kentucky, but horses racing under it are not barred out of eastern tracks. No feature of the law is intended to conflict with the Walker-Davis anti-pool-selling law. Violation of the measure is punishable by a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $1000 for each day of racing.

President in South Enjoys Day of Rest

AGUSTA, Ga., March 11.—While he is here President Taft may not write any portion of his forthcoming messages to Congress, but he is giving them considerable thought and will be able to whip the first of them into shape just as soon as he gets back to Washington.

He arrived here early this morning from Atlanta. He spent the most strenuous day of the administration in that city yesterday, delivering three speeches and attending both a score of dinners and luncheons, receptions and sessions of the Commercial congress.

He was Dr. Willey recently remained at an annual dinner the pioneers who came with him to California on the first steamer that entered the Golden Gate from the Atlantic, 66 years ago. He founded the original Howard Presbyterian church in San Francisco and was pastor of the church for twelve years.

Dr. Willey was honored at the recent celebration of the golden jubilee of the University of California, with the degree of doctor of laws, by President B. I. Wheeler.

AMERICANS BUY OUT NATION

Prominent United States Capitalists Grab Everything Worth Having in Guatemala

Germans Get Excited Over Reported Sale of Concessions to Syndicates

NEW YORK, March 11.—After a struggle that has been going on for three years, during which German opposition and local prejudice have had to be fought constantly, the right to develop the vast mineral wealth of Guatemala has at last been secured by a group of American capitalists. At the head of this commission are former Governor A. E. Spriggs of Montana, former Senator W. A. Clark of that state, and a number of capitalists closely identified with the Guggenheim interests. French capital is also invested in the deal.

The terms of the concession, which has been signed by President Don Manuel Estrada Cabrera, are of the broadest character. They turn the Central American republic over to the syndicate. Not only are all public lands in Guatemala turned over to the Americans for exploration and development, but the right also is given them to build railroads and bridges where they see fit, to use the great waterways of the republic for their own purposes, to build and operate telegraph and telephone lines; in fact to do about as they please.

FEW MORE FORMALITIES.

Just a little formality remains to be arranged before the Americans, who are operating under the title of the Guatemala Mining and Development company, can exercise the privileges that President Cabrera has signed over to them. The form of the concession must be approved by the Guatemalan national assembly.

The assembly is now in session, but the concession has not yet been presented to it. The New Yorkers interested in the enterprise, among whom is Congressman William Sulzer, say the matter will be closed next week, but there are already rumors of an opposition based on the claim that Cabrera and his cabinet have practically sold everything in the republic worth having to the Americans and have not received an adequate price in return.

GERMANS ARE BITTER.

Behind this opposition are the German concessions in the republic. While there are many of these, their holdings are insignificant compared to the grab the Americans have made. Nevertheless they are said to be very bitter over the situation, and especially so since they learned that French capital is represented in the American syndicate, and to be determined to stir up all the trouble possible.

The terms made by the syndicate with Cabrera are that 10 per cent of the net profits of any enterprise the Americans start shall be paid into the treasury of the republic. The opposition is claiming that the relations between the Guatemalan administration and the Americans is too friendly to suit them. They insist that if the concession is to be ratified by the national assembly, one of the terms shall be:

"All controversies and difficulties shall be submitted for final settlement to the President of the United States."

Departure of Wife of Ballinger Regretted

Leaves Washington, Where She Is Prominent, For Her Seattle Home.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Mrs. Richard Ballinger, wife of the former Secretary of the Interior, left today for her home in Seattle, Washington. Mrs. Ballinger was accompanied by Mrs. Dickinson, wife of the Secretary of War. Mrs. Dickinson will spend the remainder of the winter in Seattle.

Mrs. Ballinger has been popular in society during her residence in Washington, especially among the musical set, and it is with regret that they bade the charming hostess farewell.

Red Cross Nurses May Go To Border

Report Says War Department Has Asked for Corps to Join Army.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—A report is in circulation in Washington late tonight that the war department has requested the National Red Cross to send a corps of nurses to San Antonio, Texas, to render services to the army during any maneuvers or movements on the border, but this cannot be officially verified. It is thought outside of official circles that it is likely the request has been made.

THE SITUATION

SOCIETY WOMAN IS HELD FOR THEFT

Mrs. Gerrit Lansing Is Accused of Robbing Mail.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Mrs. Gerrit Livingston Lansing, widow of a former secretary and controller of the Southern Pacific company, society woman in the exact sense of the term, wealthy and popular, was arrested this morning in her apartment at 2304 Sacramento street and taken to the city prison to face a charge of petty larceny.

Detective Timothy Bailey swore to the complaint, which specifies that Mrs. Lansing stole from the hallway of the apartment house a package containing one half dozen silver spoons addressed to Mrs. A. Edgar, who occupied apartments at the same building, Sacramento and Buchanan streets. According to the detective, Mrs. Lansing admitted the theft of the Edgar package, and also that she had taken other packages during a period dating from December 21 last. She was booked at the city prison as Mrs. Mabel C. Lansing. She was released on $20 cash bail.

No one in San Francisco has had the entire into more exclusive social circles than Mrs. Lansing. Her wealth and charm of manner assured her position. She was a prominent figure at the Greenway cottages and was received everywhere by society folk.

Mrs. Gerrit Livingston Lansing has been popular in society on both sides of the bay since girlhood. She was Miss Mabel Cohen, daughter of the late A. Mabel Cohen, and in 1888 she married Gerrit Livingston Lansing, who became secretary and controller of the Southern Pacific company. They had one child, Miss Mildred Lansing, who lives with her mother.

Gerrit L. Lansing died at his home in Pacific avenue February 4, 1896. He left an estate valued at upward of $100,000, which was willed to his wife and mother.

Mrs. Lansing's case will be called in the police court at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Dr. J. Wilson Shiels, Mrs. Lansing's physician said today that she was a sufferer from neurasthenia and when acutely attacked might commit acts for which she would not be morally responsible. Her attorney, Jesse W. Bryon, expressed the same view as to his client's condition.

Postal Inspector H. B. Hall explained that the postoffice authorities had no jurisdiction in the case, as the alleged thefts were committed after the mail matter had been left by the carrier at the place designated by those to whom the matter was addressed.

TIA JUANA IN TERROR OF ADVANCING REBELS

Insurrectos Within Striking Distance of the Town and an Attack Is Expected

SAN DIEGO, March 11.—At midnight tonight news was received from Tia Juana that Francisco Salinas, leading a band of fifty insurrectos, had advanced to within striking distance of the town and would attack within an hour.

Women, children and non-combatants, according to the report, are fleeing in terror from Tia Juana.

Salinas early today served notice on the federal commander that he would move against the border town. He has been camped at Cottonwood Creek, twelve miles east of Tia Juana. If the reported imminent attack on Tia Juana is true, the next few hours perhaps, may develop whether the intervention is to be an active, positive fact. Company H of the Eighth infantry is deployed along the border, one of the camps being less than two miles from Tia Juana, or within rifle range.

Captain H. Z. Evans, commanding Company H, early this evening reported to Gen. Tasker H. Bliss that a body of insurgents ten miles east of his camp were moving on Tia Juana. Whether it is this body which is reported to be near the town it is impossible to state.

While the Tia Juana situation has been chief in the day's war talk, the possible movements of the fleet have also been a large subject of speculation. Late this afternoon Admiral Thomas left the Coronado Hotel and resumed active command of the fleet.

Before his departure for the flagship it had been reported that the entire fleet would sail tonight for southern waters. The gunboat Yorktown is already under orders from Washington to patrol the Mexican coast, and it is confidently expected that other ships will leave the harbor at any time upon a similar mission.

Alameda County Will Have Eighth Assembly District

SACRAMENTO, March 11.—The Alameda county delegation committee on re-apportionment this afternoon tabulated the population of Assembly districts of that county in round numbers as follows: Forty-sixth district—Rogers, 27,000; Forty-seventh—Crosby, 23,000; Forty-eighth—Callaghan, 23,000; Forty-ninth—Fitzgerald, 25,000; Fiftieth—Clark, 33,000; Fifty-first—Smith, 50,000; Fifty-second—Young, 57,000, making a total of 244,000.

New district boundaries will now be fixed to apportion that number in eight, instead of seven, Assembly districts.

19-Year-Old Girl Takes Her Own Life

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—While temporarily demented today Elletta Biagi of 304 Third street shot herself in the breast and died instantly.

The girl was the daughter of a fruit dealer at the above address, entered a market adjoining her father's store and obtained the revolver. She took it to her room and fired the fatal shot.

She was 19 years of age.

Chronic Baccilli Carriers Blamed for Epidemic

HONOLULU, March 11.—Another case of cholera developed today among the persons segregated after contact with previous victims. This makes twenty-six cases, of which twenty-one have proved fatal. In a report to the board of health, Dr. Clegg of the United States public health and Marine Hospital service expresses the opinion that the disease was brought to Honolulu from the Orient by what are known as "chronic bacilli carriers" not necessarily suffering from cholera. Its snow development apparently precludes the theory of origin from infected water or food.

NO QUARTER GRANTED REBELS

Iron Heel Is to Stamp Out Seeds of Sedition in All Parts of Republic

Mailed Fist to Deal Out Death at Its Own Volition and Pleasure

MEXICO CITY, Mex., March 11.—All Mexico will be under partial martial law Monday.

The operation of the habeas corpus and of several articles of the constitution will be suspended.

An insurrecto caught in the act of perpetrating a deed of violence will not even be tried by a drumhead court martial, but will be shot immediately.

Such measures mean that no quarter will be given to the rebels, who, it is certain, will resort to kind.

The permanent committee of both houses of congress, which has the powers of congress when that body is not in session, met today. The committee received from President Diaz the draft of a measure which will be in force for six months from the date of its passage through Mexico.

It provides the death penalty for any or all who are caught committing the following offenses:

Holding up trains, damaging railroad property or endangering the lives of railroad employees. Interfering with the government telephone or electric light service. Robbing ranches or ransacking small towns.

The measure provides that the death penalty shall be inflicted on the perpetrator of any of these crimes whether or not it is accompanied by homicide.

Persons caught in the act will be executed immediately. It will be necessary only for the officers commanding the army to arrest the criminal to draw up a paper setting forth the crime and that the perpetrator was taken redhanded.

PENALTY IS DEATH.

If a prisoner is not taken in the act he will be entitled to a trial, which must be had within eight days from the date of his arrest. If found guilty he will be shot immediately; there is no appeal from the court martial, except President Diaz, to whom the condemned man may plead, if time is left him for pardon or to make communication.

At a recent meeting the cabinet determined to present the measure. The permanent committee referred it to a subcommittee, which will report back on Monday. The measure will become law then unquestionably.

This is the first time in fifteen years that the army has been under a rule much more like martial law than civil government.

Of course all the newspapers comment on the mobilization of so large a force of United States troops on the frontier.

PRESS MAKES COMMENTS.

El Imparcial says: "Those who see in this act a movement toward intervention are busy embroidering fancy designs on this air."

El Mundo says: "We must reject the bunch of lies that the Yankees have any intention to take possession of our country even under the pretext of guardianship."

The United States has given us a lesson by which we can learn even though it is terrifying," remarks the newspaper El Tiempo.

"In five days they were able to put an army on our frontier and two quadrants of warships on our coast. We cannot oppose them with a single warship or with soldiers.

"This calls for preparation to meet any possible event in the future. We must make ready an armament and munitions for several hundred thousand men in sufficient quantities to enable us without having to ask for reinforcements for a single grain of powder, a single cartridge, a single rifle."

Secret Service Agents Endeavoring to Locate Mexico Filibustering

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The United States Secret Service has been called into the Mexican mix-up and Chief Wikkie's men are as busy as any in the army and navy.

To them has been given the task of locating and keeping watch on every known filibusterer in the United States. There are a number of American adventurers in the country who are expert gun-runners. It has come to the ears of the government that there has been much activity among these men since the dispatch of the army to Texas and the probability that the running of arms and ammunition across the border from Texas and Arizona was made more difficult, if not impossible.

The assumption is that they are preparing to follow the plan so successful in Cuba, of using the sea as the means of getting supplies to the anti-Diazists. Not only will the secret-service men keep a sharp look-out on the known filibusterers, but the Mexican coasts, both Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific will be closely guarded by American warships.

SITUATION COMPLICATED.

The military situation in Texas was further complicated today by the news from the City of Mexico that Congress will be convened in special session tomorrow to consider the proposed military law in Chihuahua and Coahuila, the two most important of the five states bordering on the United States. This will result in the stationing of Mexican troops along the Rio Grande across from the American forces.

A command of soldiers on both sides of the Rio Grande and the contemptuous attitude of the United States toward the Granger revolution is regarded as favorable to serious trouble.

The action of Mexico in convening Congress in special session has seriously agitated the military authorities.

It is reported here that preparations are under way for the mobilization of 15,000 additional troops in Texas.

MAY SEND MORE TROOPS.

The War department, though denying that it contemplates sending any more troops to the Mexican border, has made preparation for such a contingency. It has plans made for hurrying another division to the front if the one now ordered South should have to be moved.

The general staff has figured out where the troops for this provisional division would be drawn from, and every preliminary to a sudden order for mobilization is being made on paper.

Of course, no orders for another division would be given unless in an emergency of the gravest sort.

Not weeks or months of campaigning, but a few days of rapid movement from the United States army if it is sent into Mexico to suppress disorder, whether it be to threaten or round up the insurgents or anything in between.

This was the statement today by an old army man, a West Pointer, who himself has seen years of service on the Mexican border. He said that every army officer in Washington of any length of service knew that if the American troops were ordered into Mexico to bring about settled conditions in that country, the task would be a most difficult one, and peace, as seems to be the prevalent impression.

GUERRILLA WARFARE.

It was pointed out that if the troops crossed the border and attempted to put down the insurrection, they would be met by a guerrilla warfare against people who know the country in a country admirably adapted for that style of fighting. The last time the troops were sent to the Mexican border was in the fall of 1901, at the time of the Garza raid from Texas across the Rio Grande. Garza was believed to be in league with a political party in Mexico. He crossed the Rio Grande into that country, took a military post and put the commandant and a large number of enlisted men to the sword.

The Mexican government appealed to the United States to send troops to the Texas side of the Rio Grande in the Chapparel thickets and various hiding places. It took the troops two years of most difficult campaigning to round up Garza and his followers. This is a sample of what will follow to the lot of the troops now, if they have to go into Mexico to quell the existing difficulty.

Persons much interested in the Mexican situation and in the mobilization movement by this government are today eagerly discussing two reports circulating the cause of the President's action and the probable developments of the future.

WANT PERMANENT PEACE.

One of these has it that the administration has decided on a policy calculated to establish something like permanently settled conditions in all the republics to the south as far down as the Panam Canal.

It is stated that the movement of troops to the Mexican border means the inauguration of a new policy in dealing with the question of the introduction from American territory of

FOREIGN LEGION'S ROLL OF THE DEAD

EL PASO, Tex., March 11.—The members of the foreign legion killed at Casas Grandes on Monday were:

Raul Madero, brother of President Francisco I. Madero; R. F. Harrington, captain of American legion, "soldier of fortune," former resident of New York City; Giuseppe Garibaldi, ranking major and member of the staff, grandson of Garibaldi, the Italian patriot and liberator. Young Garibaldi is a well known soldier of fortune of the present generation. He served as attaché under the British in South Africa, and held the commission of captain in the Italian army. He has been colonel of cavalry in Venezuela and Nicaragua and other South and Central American Republics. John Greer, former deputy sheriff at Lincoln, N. M., and well known in El Paso and vicinity; Lieutenant A. Valencia of El Paso; Rodriguez Gutierrez de Lara, Mexican socialist, former judge at Guerrero, late of Los Angeles; Captain F. J. Casavantes, engineer from Guerrero; George Moore, Sergeant Heath and Bedwell.

proprietor to meet the expenses of the "maneuvers." There will be a deficiency in the allowance for army mobilization. This must be made up by Congress and in asking for the one, or five, or ten million dollars with which to meet this expense the President will outline the reason for the army movement.

Already an inquiry by Congress is scented in this connection. Should the proposed movement upon Mexico collapse and the troops be returned to their posts, Congress will want to know the reason why they were ever assembled. If, on the other hand, there should be an invasion, Congress will demand to know what justification there was for such action.

HOLD TAFT'S ATTENTION.

These are some of the things that keep the President from losing complete interest in the war situation. And there are other things too to hold his attention. He was particularly anxious to see the text of the De la Barra statement, issued yesterday in Washington. He called for the morning papers and read the war stories, including the statement of the Ambassador, hurriedly. He had no comment to make, however, on the suggestion from De la Barra that an invasion would be resented by the Mexicans.

Of distinguished callers there were none today. The President met John D. Rockefeller on the golf links of the Country club but they chatted for a few minutes only. Martin W. Littleton of New York was another old friend whom the President met at the club.

Thermometer Leaps to 90 Degrees; Soldiers All Suffer Terribly

SAN ANTONIO, March 11.—With the thermometer above 90 degrees and the sun pouring down upon an unsheltered camp, the officers and enlisted men arriving at the maneuver grounds at Fort Sam Houston are suffering terribly. Many of them came from the north and the change was very sudden. Summer clothes are being issued, but this has done little to relieve the situation. A number of prostrations from heat occurred during the day, but none of them is of a serious nature. The dust at the camp is terrific and this is adding greatly to the discomfort.

Insurgents Favor American Control For Fair Election

(BY OTHMAN STEVENS.)

EL PASO, March 11.—On the authorities of the American consul for the insurgents, Dr. C. F. Z. Caracristi, I have the two propositions which the Maderists will consider for a sort of intervention of our part, or, failing that, for a restoration of railway traffic.

Dr. Caracristi has just returned from Washington, where he went in the interests of the Madero cause, and he has just been asked to return to the United States to take up the question of mobilizing our troops.

NO FORCED INTERVENTION.

"We will not consider forced intervention," said Dr. Caracristi, "and I do not believe for a moment that the government contemplates any such measures."

"The insurgents and the federals would never consent to accept such action peacefully, but we would be willing to have an intervention take the form of the United States providing for a free election under the provision of the Mexican constitution which has been abrogated by President Diaz."

"If it is desired to protect and retain the United States troops in Mexico for the purpose of guaranteeing a fair election would not be regarded with hostility, and that we would abide by the Mexican government would agree to such a procedure we would, and the result would restore peace instantly."

FAIR ELECTION DEMANDED.

"All we would insist on is that the election should be conducted under the supervision of United States officers and according to the provisions of the Mexican constitution. Further than that, we will make a responsible agreement that we will refrain from further interference with railway traffic if the Mexican government will agree not to use the railway for the transportation of troops, munitions or provisions for troops."

"This should be accepted as the Mexican government has not shown any disposition to send more troops far away from the Capital."

"If the United States government desires to re-establish peace without insolently interfering with the rights of either the government or the insurgents, we will suggest that the government should cover the ground."

"This would enable the mines to resume all business generally to be resumed outside of the localities directly in the regions where conflicts occur."

Dr. Caracristi further said that he knew the concession given by the Diaz government to the Japanese to 15,000 ex-japanese soldiers, who were to come into the country as farmers seeking land.

"The real purpose," said Dr. Caracristi, "of these Japanese is to become Mexican soldiers, as the Mexican government cannot get enough soldiers; it was, I regard, a menace to the United States."

In support of his leader, the doctor called attention to Madero's flat statement of opposition to Asiatic immigration if he came into power in Mexico.

I further learned today that a project has been programed to secure the audience with Colonel Roosevelt when he arrives here on Wednesday for some of the insurgent junta members. They hope to get the colonel, as outlined in my dispatch of last night, to commit himself in favor of Madero and against intervention. This, it is expected, will divide public opinion on the matter in the United States.

Ambassador Denies That Limantour Has Eye on Diaz Chair

NEW YORK, March 11.—Ambassador F. L. De La Barra came from a three hours' consultation with Jose Limantour, the financial minister, at the Plaza this evening and said:

"It is absurd, this report that financial interests are putting forward Senator Limantour—he asked me to tell you so—as a substitute for Diaz."

"I may deny categorically, upon a telegram from the minister of foreign relations, Creel, that the Japanese ever have made to the Mexican government a suggestion that they resign their naval bases on the Pacific coast or for control of the Tehuantepec railway."

"All insubstantial, all a dream," continued De La Barra, smilingly and with all appearances of frankness.

Senator Limantour, a revolutionary leader, dined and conferred this evening with Gustavo Madero, brother of the revolutionary leader in the field.

Limantour Angry At Report of His Succession to Diaz

NEW YORK, March 11.—Senator Limantour, the Mexican Minister of Finance, was manifestly indignant tonight when his attention was called to the story that American financial interests with headquarters in Mexico have on foot a plan to procure the resignation of President Diaz and to set up Senator Limantour himself in the executive chair.

The suggestion that private capital and foreign banks could make and unmake Mexican administrations and ministers provoked both his ridicule and his anger.

"How stupid," was his first word. "It should be the last person to be suspected of lending himself to such a design," he added, "even if by a stretch of imagination one could suppose it true. It is no secret that President Diaz has several times asked me to accept the presidency, but I have always refused because the duties I now fulfill are those most congenial to me and because I believe I can be of most service to my country by continuing with them. There is no truth in the report."

Mormon Colonists Deny Madero Has Taken Casas Grand

EL PASO, March 11.—Mormon colonists arriving here today from the Mormon settlements around Dublin, say positively that Madero and his insurgents force did not re-capture Casas Grandes after Col. Cuellar and his forces had taken them and drove them out last Monday. The Mormons say the federals were in possession of Casas Grandes as late as Wednesday and part of the federal force had been sent in pursuit of the insurgents.

Participant Tells of Casas Grandes Fight

EL PASO, March 11.—Roy Kelly, of Smithport, Pa., an insurgent, arrived here tonight, having walked 160 miles from Casas Grandes, where the battle occurred last Monday.

It proved to have been a complete rout for the insurgents, the advance command of 250 men having been practically wiped out by Colonel Cuellar's column, which used a three pound field piece and a machine gun with great effects. Almost all the Americans and foreigners in the insurgent command were killed.

Gutierrez de Lara of Los Angeles, who was killed, was a man of great force of intellect and a kindly hearted dreamer of an Utopian future for Mexico.

Kelly was one of five Americans who got away. Garbed in rags and with his clothes cut to ribbons by barbed wire, and the flints of Chihuahua plains scorching his feet, he made his way from the field last Monday night and has ever since been toiling to arrive here. He was a member of the Fourteenth infantry

HELL ROSE WITH SUN.

"As soon as the sun rose it was hell. The field piece smashed in the walls and roofs of the adobes and the machine gun fanned the openings. The man next to me while firing got a bullet in his stomach. He writhed about lying there on the ground. That was shot away. Sergeant Heath and Lieutenant Valencia were killed early in the fight. Before Madero was killed he cried, 'God! God! poor De Lara is killed, and I save the poor fellow lying there on the ground. That was tough, for De Lara was a fine fellow and the Americans all liked him.'"

"When we got through the barbed wire and to the river we found we were five Americans. This was a mile from town and I went as near Madero's camp as I dared, for I saw the federal cavalry coming and I saw nothing of the Madero main command."

"As I was running I saw young Madero and Garibaldi fall and I had to jump over their bodies. The Italian lay on his back with blood spouting from his mouth and Madero was tied in a knot. ### Demonstration Force Big as Scott's Army

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 11.—An army almost equal in numbers to the force that followed General Winnfield Scott into the City of Mexico on the 14th of September, 1847, is in camp tonight on the plain of San Antonio. Major General Wood, chief of staff, is coming to the camp at Fort Sam Houston next week. The date of his arrival is not officially announced here. He is due Tuesday or Wednesday.

News of his coming, passed from mouth among the higher officials today, served only to compound rumors and intensify curiosity among army men.

States of America, whose rulings will be final and executory."

The syndicate, according to the report, does not want to include these terms in the contract and President Cabrera is reported to be willing to oblige. What the national assembly will do remains to be seen. The assembly, according to the report, will convene on March 1 each year and sits until May 1. The president of the republic has the right to extend the session one month, but no longer. It is mandatory on the assembly to adjourn by June 1 at the latest.

COUNTRY BOUGHT OUTRIGHT.

Among financiers the deal that the Spriggs-Clark-Guggenheim syndicate has practically brought to a successful conclusion is regarded as one of the biggest things that has ever been accomplished by a group of American capitalists. Those familiar with the facts say that it amounts to the purchase by American interests of everything worth having in Guatemala. As one man put it today:

"It is the first time in the history of the continent that a country has been bought outright, just as a housewife would buy a spool of thread. If this deal is ratified there is nothing left in Guatemala for Guatemalans save that 10 per cent of the profits that the syndicate has promised Cabrera to turn over into his treasury. It is no wonder the Germans, who have been developing the rubber, coffee and other industries of the country, should be sore."

"So far as their mining concessions are concerned, the Americans have everything. There are some German concessions of mineral lands but they are small and the holders of them will be crushed to death if they attempt to fight the syndicate."

STRATEGIC IMPORTANCE.

It was also pointed out today that the American invasion of the Central American republic is of great strategic importance to the United States and that the syndicate has the backing of the Taft administration. The government influence behind the capitalists, however, cannot of course openly manifest itself."

The syndicate picked a most favorable time for its negotiations with Guatemala. The country has been in a bad financial state for years and repeatedly has tried to get large loans in this country. It is stated that it is an easy way for the country to get out of its trouble and place itself on a firm financial basis once more.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., March 11.—For the first time in the history of Kentucky a man has been sentenced to life service in the penitentiary for stealing a turkey.

Caswell McCatten, a negro, who had served time in the penitentiary twice before for other crimes, was brought today to court today, charged with having stolen one turkey gobler just before Christmas from the roast of Reuben Offutt.

Owing to the high price of turkeys at the time it was ascertained that Caswell had taken a fowl which was valued at more than $10. The jury brought in a verdict for life imprisonment under the habitual criminal act.

NUMBERLESS TRAGEDIES LAID AT THEIR DOOR

Assassination of American Detective Who Jailed Leader
Also Against Gang.

VITERBO, Italy, March 11.—The trial of the forty-one members of the Neapolitan Camorra, which has terrorized Italy for many years, was begun today. A jury was chosen more readily than had been expected and Cavaliere Binchi, the president of the court opened the interrogation of the accused. He limited his questions to an inquiry into their personal records. The prisoners are charged with the assassination of fellow-members in the Camorra-Gennaro Cuocolo and his wife, Maria Cuocolo, popularly known as "the beautiful Sonatina." But behind this charge are allegations of numberless murders and robberies perpetrated by what is perhaps the best organized and most desperate criminal society of modern times.

The real purpose of the government is to rid the country of this band. It is believed evidence will be brought out that will throw light on the assassination of the American detective, Lieut. Joseph Petrosino, at Palermo, in March, 1909, after he had been sent to Italy by the New York police department to seek information regarding Italian criminals.

DEATH PRICE PAID.

It was Petrosino who arrested Enrico Alfano, better known as Erricone, the alleged actual head of the Camorra, after the latter had fled to New York City. The American sent Erricone into custody and he was taken back to Europe and his death is believed to be the price paid for running down the man who for years had defied the authorities of his own country.

The murders of the Cuocolos, followed by revelations made by one Genovese Abbalemaggio, resulted in the present prosecution which was ordered by King Emmanuel and pressed by Signor Fani, the minister of justice. At daylight an enormous crowd gathered in the vicinity of the former church of San Francesco, which has been transformed into a court of the Assis.

ANGRY MURMURS HEARD.

Other crowds surrounded the Medici Monastery of Gradi, now a penitentiary, where all but two prisoners have been confined and the prison of San Lupaia in which the informer, Abbalemaggio, and the one woman prisoner, Stendardo, have been held. There was much excitement when the vans transporting the accused appeared from under the arched doors of the prison. The procession proceeded to court amidst angry murmurs of the people.

Precautions were taken against an attempt to free the prisoners, who had many sympathizers. In the morning, with the driver of each van were seated a policeman and a carabinieri. Another soldier sat just inside the door. Mounted carabinieri surrounded each van.

When the doors of the court were opened as many of the crowd as could rush in, occupying every available place.

The crowd in the square before the building was so great that a company of infantry was called out to reinforce the carabinieri and police.

AMERICAN REPORT READ.

Within the attention of the onlookers was absorbed by the appearance and behavior of the prisoners. All appeared to be in good health with the exception of the Priest Cleo Vitozzi, who seemed to be ill, and Maria Stendardo, who limped as she entered. The priest, who once obtained Erricone's freedom by telling the authorities that another man had confessed the murders under seal of the confessional, was allowed, when the proceedings opened, to sit outside the prisoners' cage.

When the jury had been sworn President Bianchi questioned the prisoners closely concerning their careers. The examination concluded, a mass of documents was presented by Cavaliere Santoro, the King's prosecutor, who has charge of the prosecution. These included the testimony of more than 400 witnesses.

PRISONERS CLUBBED.

When thirty-six Camorristi were wheeled into the criminal court room here this evening in a big iron cage to be arraigned on the charge of murder, a fight broke out among the prisoners and only the intervention of a small army of carabinieri stationed around the cage for just such an emergency prevented tragic results.

It was at first thought that the fight was started as a signal for an attack by confederates of the prisoners, and at the first sign of trouble soldiers shut off all spectators from the front of the court room.

Before they could restore order among the prisoners carabinieri were compelled to use the butts of their guns in clubbing them into submission.

20,000 REASONS

Why You Should Buy an E-M-F "30"—$1000

Twenty thousand of them, a composite living, overwhelming argument. Each reason—reason enough, convincing and satisfying, yet, were it possible for you to investigate, question, prove each separate reason, you would probably find some new point of interest to rivet your attention and create in your mind a like desire to own the car that could stir up such enthusiasm and scatter broadcast such satisfaction.

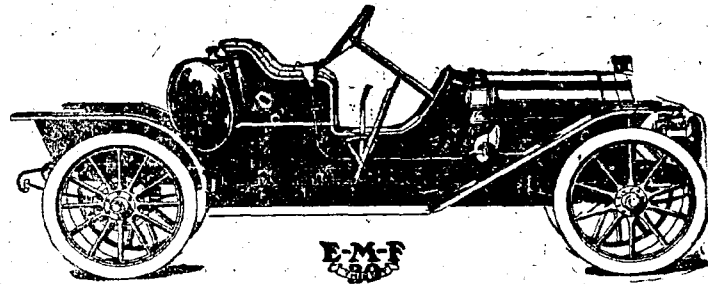

It is easy to write upon paper mere statements, to waste the public's time and abuse its patience by wearisome reiteration of platitudes that have been dished up in rhetorical display over and over again, talking the merits of this and that car, with the same old jaded adjectives. But, in the name of the great Automobile Industry, let us get down to the tangible, living thing that has the red blood of sincerity in it, the personal gripping interest that shines in the eyes of men as they talk face to face about the great thing they have put their hearts and faith in.

Reasons clothed in flesh and blood. And there is no argument like unto this argument—produce any man, no matter what his birth or breeding, whether he moves in high society or not, so long as he is honest in his opinions, strong in his convictions, has stood the test of experience and found out that it is infinitely better to "know" than to "believe," that man has a right to stand upon his feet and have his say, and what's more to the point, the world will surely listen.

Proudly and confidently we introduce you to twenty thousand such men. In a moment, as it were, we can usher you into the charmed circle of a great living friendship that with twenty thousand tongues will affirm one concrete, absolute fact, in twenty thousand different methods and words of expression, each and every one enthusiastically indorsing the same truth—a unity of "reason why" such as the commercial world has never before seen.

Twenty thousand E-M-F "30" owners. They are our reasons. Each one a thinking, separate personality—each one with likes and dislikes that differentiated him from all the others, for no two out of all that immense number approached the question of "shall I buy" or "I will buy" an E-M-F "30" from quite the same reasoning point. One had to weigh carefully the question of first cost, another the "after buying cost" of upkeep. One never considered price, but was attracted by quality; another, having a bent toward mechanics, saw quickly the perfect chassis. One considered the financial stability of the Company behind the product; another that same Company's good faith, and so on—ad infinitum.

But they all reached the same conclusion. There was some unanswerable argument presented, some fact of mechanical supremacy that could not be denied, some record of enduring quality that appealed, some enthusiastic owner that "boosted," which compelled each and every one of the 20,000 men to buy an E-M-F "30." Through the maze of all other rival cars for sale they found their way to the one car that expressed to them in terms of power, speed, reliability, comfort and serviceability the "ideal" each and every one possessed. That in buying an E-M-F "30" they proved their judgment to be correct is now a matter of record. These men are representative of all that is best and constructive in our great commonwealth.

Racy Roadster $1000
f. o. b. Detroit.

E-M-F "30" owners form a democracy of varied interests, among them being Bankers who know the value of money and its purchasing power—Lawyers who are skilled in discovering the weak points in any argument—Tradesmen who know how to buy for profit—Farmers who, as a class, are the most careful purchasers of automobiles—Businessmen in the great populous centers, who had every opportunity to draw comparisons and weigh the merits of rival cars—Doctors who demand the kind of car that must be always ready, at a moment's notice, to go anywhere over any kind of a road—every trade and profession—millionaires and men who live upon modest incomes—are all represented in the great army of E-M-F "30" owners.

But there is one reason why you should buy an E-M-F "30" that is greater and more convincing than any one of those 20,000 reasons that made men choose an E-M-F "30" rather than any other car at any other price. And this, what we call "the unanswerable reason" has been getting stronger and bigger every day, from the time the first E-M-F "30" passed into the hands of the first owner until this very moment; in fact, now it is like some irresistible power, moving all over the land and sweeping everything before it. We call this invincible "reason" by a simple name everybody knows—"Satisfaction." That's it. Each and every man who owns an E-M-F "30" is satisfied. They are all subscribers, as it were, to the enthusiasm and interest about that proved, enduring quality and record-breaking price which have made the E-M-F "30" the most talked-of automobile in America, perhaps in the world, because—and we say this without fear of contradiction—there is no car made upon which so many men absolutely agree. These 20,000 satisfied owners will tell you one story, simple and convincing, that they own a car they are proud to drive, to "boost," to indorse; a car that not only backed their judgment, but above all, taught them the lesson—that it isn't necessary to decorate a check book with a lot of fancy figures and rob a bank balance to buy an automobile whose quality is in the chassis, where it belongs.

The history of this universal satisfaction which, by the by, will sell another 20,000 E-M-F "30" cars this year, is the history of the E-M-F Company, an organization that revolutionized the automobile industry, not alone in values but in methods of manufacture; that gave the buying public a car which has literally defied competition and sold itself. The E-M-F Company has always been a year or two in advance of the times. We make practically every part of our car, cast our own cylinders, forge, stamp and heat-treat our own steel and make our own bodies. Mr. Flanders' forecast, published in March, 1908, that "we can manufacture more automobiles of a better quality at a lower cost than any other concern now in existence," was a prophecy that has been magnificently fulfilled.

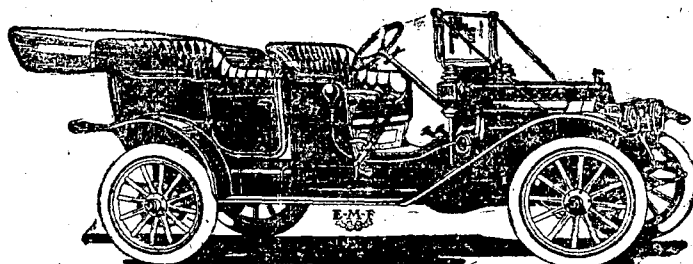

Why? Why was Flanders' prophecy fulfilled? Ask any one of the twenty thousand owners of an E-M-F "30." He will show you his car and say, "There is the reason." So you look at it, examine it, ride in it, listen to the owner recounting its prowess, its mileage, its speed, what it has done and the magnificent way it has "stood the gaff." Because an E-M-F "30" is such a glut-ton for service it sort of lures a man on to give it hard usage. Automobiles have their particular kind of personalities. You get to "know" a car—what may be expected of it under certain conditions, and an element of pride and friendship is established. So when Mr. Flanders' determination "to make a better quality car at a lower cost" than any other concern made or sold, took shape in an E-M-F "30," then also was created the "reason" of the enormous sales and colossal growth of the E-M-F Company. The car fulfilled the prophecy. That's why you can't purchase a second-hand E-M-F "30." Men don't sell "automobile satisfaction" when they "know" they own it.

We will visualize it for you. There it stands! A five-passenger touring car, graceful in body lines, with that "straight-away look" which is a symbol of strength, elegance and comfort. Not a fad or furbelow to cumber it with useless appendage. Under the hood, a thirty-horse, power noiseless motor that has won distinction upon racetrack and road; a motor so perfectly adjusted in power, weight and balance to the rest of the chassis that it creates an absolute unit of mechanical efficiency. To the expert engineer the chassis of an E-M-F "30" suggests the limit of scientific construction; to every owner it has proved it—proved it by enduring service, for no E-M-F "30" has ever been worn out. The ninth car built, shipped by us a little over two years ago, has traveled some 73,000 miles, which means nearly fifteen years of actual life, crowded into the thirty months of its existence, and it is mechanically ready for 73,000 miles more. The life story of "Bullet," this famous car, can be had for the asking. When you buy an E-M-F "30" the confidence you put into your purchase is returned to you a hundredfold.

The investment of $1000 in an E-M-F "30" will be the wisest expenditure you ever made, whether you own an automobile or not. The most you can get for your money would be 6 to 8 per cent interest. But here is the car at the price any man can afford. And to own a car is the ambition of every man. The automobile is a tremendous factor in our everyday life. Aside from its utility there is the pleasure it freely gives, the sense of freedom it imparts. It brings the country to the city, and makes every dwelling place a country home. At a moment's notice, it is ready to whirl you and your family upon the sunlit, open road into the world of green fields—the country's life-giving "out of doors." It means health to the wife and children, and binds the family in closer ties. It is a tonic, nerve builder; it trebles the value of time; it means recreation, the banishment of the doctor and incapacity for the duties of the day—in short, it is a necessity. An E-M-F "30" will meet this necessity and excel any expectation you may now possess in the purchase of a car.

The other day we read in an advertisement that "you can buy a real automobile now for as low a price as $1500." We can take $500 off that price and say the same thing, for you can buy an E-M-F "30" five-passenger touring car, fully equipped, which means Magneto included, for $1000, and that's the "realist" automobile value you can buy anywhere.

ARMY AND NAVY MOVES HAVE ALL EUROPE GUESSING

Conjecture Regarding President's Mexican Policy Quite as Varied on Continent as in the United States

LONDON, March 11.—From the concentration of American troops and warships at point contiguous to the Mexican border, Europe is drawing an extremely broad conclusion and one that cannot be modified easily by diplomatic notes. Summed up in a sentence it is this:

The United States is entering upon a new stage of national life on the southern frontier, just as it is entering upon a new stage in the northern frontier through the Knox-Fielding reciprocity agreement.

Paris, which views the situation more sedately than any other capital of importance, thinks, despite the excess of "messages for public consumption" between the Taft and Diaz administrations, that the United States is acting admirably in coupling with "its polite but inflexible demand upon Mexico for an irreducible minimum" military precautions which effective and not unnecessarily osten-tationary.

M. Leroy-Beaulieu, after pointing out that the aggregate of European capital invested in the "disturbed republic" is not greatly inferior to the American investment, argues that Washington has a stewardship for Europe, and must live up to it.

In Berlin, where anti-American sentiment is expressed with more can-didness than anywhere else on this side, the program of the American "imperialism" is being denounced with great vehemence by spokesmen of the Agricultural and conservative factions.

BERLIN, NOT TOKIO.

Both are smarting under economic grievances, the latest of which is the potash difficulty, and both were bitterly chagrined at the determination of Mr. Taft to fortify the Panama caanal, not to mention the oft-reiterated London insinuation that it is Berlin, rather than Tokio, against which the White House is taking thought for the morrow.

Mr. Taft's Mexican policy, according to the German commentator who goes further into the realm of irresponsible conjecture, shows "the knowingness of the old Monroe doctrine to be a safeguard for the Latin republics, now that all the world sees Taft using Monroe's mantle to cover a fishing expedition in troubled waters."

Apparently willing to scatter fire brands recklessly, another Berlin agitator declares that in ten years, or even in five, Mexico will have been "Cubanized into a docile Yankee Sa-trapy."

In London, where German criticism of American methods has had rather more space of late than is usual, the soil for the seed of misrepresentation of Mr. Taft's Mexican policy was prepared by Champ Clark's famous reference to Canadian annexation. Ambassador Bryce's disclaimer of any probability that the Pan-American propaganda of the United States will succeed either in the Dominion or in the Latin republics does not satisfy the average Englishman.

HOW TO SKIN CAT.

Under the caption, "Champ, Champ, Champ," the boys are marching, a clever writer hits off the suspicion of the "Man-in-the-Street" by saying that no one knows better than Uncle Sam how to skin a cat, or how many times there are of performing the operation, "the Hawaiian way," the Alaskan way, the Philippine way, the Panama way, the Cuban way, the Honduras way, and "other ways the plausible old gentleman is willing to illustrate if the cat will only catch."

He finishes his homily by hoping that the next cat to be the subject of experiment will not be the British Lion.

In the same vein of comment on the recent volte face of American public men, a satirist who suggests that Mr. Taft refuses to let the speaker of the next house of representatives outfoot him as a humorist and consequently is playing a colossal military joke, predicts that the honors will fall to the Democrat after all.

It will be a long time, he thinks, before John Bull forgets the humor of Champ Clark.

BOWLING NOTES

A merry duck pin contest was held on the Ninth street alleys Friday evening, and a very enjoyable time was had. After the game ice cream and cake was served and vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. F. Zeltch, Miss T.
Schirmer, Mrs. M. Bill, Mrs. W. McGuire,
E. Bankhead, F. Flynn, H. Stevens,
J. Reiland, V. E. Schirmer, Capt. J.
Waters and Miss Sophia. Harold sang their musical success. "Want Some One to Love me." L. Lewis carried the high score prize and W. E. Schirmer the booby prize.

On return of the Oaks from Spokane, where the Western Bowling Congress is in session, a banquet will be given them and their friends at the Ninth street alleys, where they will bowl the European Club of San Francisco.

Deserted By Lover Woman Tries Suicide

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Being deserted by her sweetheart, Florence Scott of 44, Mason street, became dependent and took bichloride of mercury tablets. She was removed to the Central Emergency Hospital. She will re-

TO TELL OF HER EXPERIENCES IN JAPANESE WAR

DR. ANITA NEWCOMB Mc-GEE, who will lecture on the Russo-Japanese war.

BERKELEY, March 11.—Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee, formerly acting assistant surgeon in the United States army, will lecture at 8 o'clock and 9 o'clock next Tuesday evening on "Women's Experiences in the Japanese Army." She will appear under the auspices of Sierra Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

A feature of the evening will be the singing of the Japanese national anthem by Mrs. Waste, wife of Superior Judge William A. Waste.

During the Russo-Japanese war Doctor McGee was supervisor of the Nurses' Red Cross Society of Japan, by appointment of the Japanese Minister of War.
Doctor McGee is the only person in America whose offer of personal assistance in the recent war was accepted by the Japanese government and Red Cross society. She was formerly president of the Spanish-American War Nurses, and as representative of the Red Cross Society of Philadelphia took a corps of trained nurses to Japan for a period of six months for service in the military hospitals.

The Emperor of Japan bestowed on Doctor McGee the Order of the Sacred Crown, a rare honor, and she also received the special decoration of the Red Cross Society.

Her lecture will be illustrated with 100 colored stereoscopic slides portraying scenes in the battle fields and other interesting glimpses of Japanese life.
Doctor McGee is the daughter of the eminent astronomer, Prof. Simon New-comb, and her husband is Dr. W. McGee, the anthropologist and geologist. She is a member of a number of scientific and medical societies.

WOMAN NOW HELD ON TWO CHARGES

"Mrs. Farrelly" Would Hinder Identification; She Is Still a Mystery.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—The woman now being held in the city accused of having attempted to borrow $10,000 by falsely representing herself to be Mrs. Robert S. Farrelly of Oakland, has two charges of felony against her, one for the alleged misrepresentation and the other for having obtained goods from a department store in a similar manner.

For a moment last evening Mrs. Farrelly lost her sweet temper and became so unruly that the police were required to force her to submit to being viewed for the purpose of identification. Charles H. Hale, cashier of the Bank of San Leandro, visited the city prison and said that he wished to learn if Mrs. Farrelly were not a certain Oakland woman whom Mrs. Robert Farrelly had once befriended. The prisoner drew her thick blue veil over her face and refused to remove it while Hale was present. The prison officials applied to Chief of Police Seymour, and he directed them to remove the veil by force if necessary.
Mrs. Farrelly weakened when the officers approached her and reluctantly removed the veil herself.

FAILED TO IDENTIFY.

Hale stated that he believed Mrs. Farrelly to be a woman whose name he gave to the police. Investigation proved that he was in error, for the other woman was found at her Oakland home.
Upon his return home Hale said that he had been unable to identify the woman in custody in San Francisco who claims to be Mrs. Robert S. Farrelly.
In an interview late last night he said:
"I do not believe that I have ever seen the woman before, and I feel quite certain that she has never been on the estate as she was not familiar with it in the slightest detail. At this time I would not say, however, that she is unknown in that vicinity."

Matson Steamers Sail a Day Late

Matson steamers, Capt. J. O. Youngren, and the Hyades, Captain J. Youngren, though scheduled to sail on Friday, did not leave until Saturday. The Enterprise sailed for Honolulu via Puget sound. Both vessels were laden with big cargoes of general merchandise, including large consignments of hay.
The Matson ships are handling almost all of the hay shipped into the islands from this country.

WILL PROTEST AGAINST OPPRESSION OF HEBREW

Mass-Meeting Is Called for Wednesday Evening by Rabbi Friedlander, to Be Held in Local Synagogue

Promises of a large attendance at the mass meeting called for Wednesday evening in the synagogue, corner of Twelfth and Castro streets, under the auspices of the First Hebrew congregation, and the B'nai B'rith lodge, is evident in the efforts made during the week by Rabbi Friedlander. The meeting has been called for the purpose of arousing sentiment and of enlightening the public as to the pitiable condition of affairs in Russia as affecting the Jew.

Those who will address the meeting are Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California; Rev. Frank L. Goodspeed, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and the Hon. William R. Davis, well known attorney of this city.

It is expected that the meeting will stir to protest American people in behalf of the Russian Jew and the methods of persecution now said to be enforced in that country. Following is an article from the New York Times of February 18:

Violation of Treaty Is Cause of Trouble

(From New York Times.)
"An effort to learn the precise nature of the restrictions imposed on American Jewish citizens whose passports are not recognized by the Russian government, brought forth the admission at the Russian consulate in this city that the existing treaty of 1832 between this country and Russia is not lived up to in the Russian empire."

"The explanation that while Russia does not live up to the terms of the agreement assuring free and unlimited travel to all American citizens, regardless of religious beliefs or other distinctions, she bases her failure to do so on the fact that the treaty conflicts with certain internal laws of the land against Russian Jews. Russia has refused to give Jews of other countries any more rights or privileges than she allows Jews of her own land."

"At the same time, it was indirectly admitted that American Jewish citizens seeking to enter Russia are subjected to even more rigorous restrictions and receive even less consideration than the restricted Jews of Russia itself. Whereas, any Jew in Russia can travel wherever he pleases in the pale of settlement, no American Jew—without the exception of specially exempted representatives of religious bodies or men who have managed to procure special permits from the minister of the interior—can set foot even in the pale of settlement, much less in the large cities."

TREATY VIOLATION ADMITTED.
The fact that the house committee has just reported favorably the bill of Congressman Parsons of New York, calling for the abrogation of the treaty of 1832 on the ground that Russia has violated its terms, was deprecated at the Russian consulate, where it was said that though "Russians can live without America, even as America can live without Russia," and the abrogation of the treaty would be regarded merely as a moral protest, it would probably do harm to both countries commercially.

"The Russian law provides that only such Jews as are university students, or long have a university training, or belong to one of the professions or are merchants of the first class or guild, can live in the old cities," said Vice-Consul Vladimir W. Yourieff. "All others are restricted to the pale of settlement."

"American Jews or Jews of other countries can have their passports issued by us and can go to Russia only if they are on commercial business and represent some large business house, or families to live in large houses. I mean houses that are well known to the government, and which we can vouch for, not every small east side business that may or may not be bona fide, which may be used as an excuse to enable persons to visit parents, relatives or friends. The passports of such merchants are regularly issued by us, and they can travel for six months without a passport in Russia. Other persons wishing for example to visit relatives, must procure a special permit of entry from the minister of the interior there, before we can give them their passports or their exit visas."

"Asked whether American Jewish citizens other than large merchants or their representatives—such as lawyers, doctors, teachers, or the like—could have their passports honored and visit at the consulate, the vice-consul said that without special permission from the minister of the interior in Russia they could not. A case in point occurred recently when Ambassador Oscar S. Straus planned a trip to Russia. Had he applied as a merchant instead of as a mere traveler, the vice-consul said, he would have had his passport issued at once. When a special permit of entry was offered to Mr. Straus he declined it."

The first article of the treaty of 1832 provides that the inhabitants of the respective states of each (with no discrimination as to race or religion) shall have the liberty to enter the ports, places, and rivers of the territories of each party, and to engage in commerce in the same. They shall be at liberty to sojourn and reside in all parts whatsoever of said territories in order to attend to their affairs, and shall enjoy, to that effect, the same security and protection as natives of the country in which they reside.

The only condition of such residence specified in the treaty is "on condition of their submitting to the laws and ordinances then prevailing, and particularly to the regulations in force concerning commerce."

"Because American Jewish citizens, for example, can have all the privileges of foreign citizens, in lawsuits in the courts and the like," he said.

"They can enjoy all privileges of foreign citizens in Russia, but they can't get in to enjoy them," was suggested to him, and Mr. Yourieff smiled.

"Russia allows all her Jews, regardless of wealth, education, or profession, to go anywhere they care in the large Pale of Settlement," the consul general himself explained; "and you must not think their segregation there is so terrible, as has been insisted in all this talk of horrible congestion and the like; for the pale is enormous in extent."

A few minutes later, however, he admitted that, aside from the exempt large merchants, no American Jewish citizen could even enter the pale, at the Russian border or elsewhere. Asked why this restriction placed on American Jews, he virtually according them even less privilege than the restricted Jews of Russia itself, rather than treating them as "on an equal footing with Russian Jews," the consul said:

"The pale is too crowded already."

The consul general said that one reason for refusing to honor the passports of Jewish citizens of the United States was that many outlawed former Russian subjects who had their own Jewish passports or other obligations in Russia might try to get back under the protection of the American passport. But he admitted that American Jewish citizens who had fulfilled all their obligations in Russia or native-born American Jewish citizens who had never been in Russia and whose ancestors had never lived there, are also excluded.

NOT A JEWISH QUESTION.
The attempt to base Russia's breach of her treaty with the United States on the Russian internal law, was declared by Louis Marshall, who has been urging the abrogation of the treaty before the house committee, to be irrelevant and a mere attempt to confuse the issue.

"We have nothing to do with Russia's internal policy," he said, "and are not trying to tell her what she should or should not do with her own Jewish subjects. But we have a right to tell her how she shall treat our citizens, be they Jews or Catholics or Protestants or of any other religious faith; and our government is in honor and duty bound to demand that all citizens are treated with the consideration and privileges pledged to them under the treaty. It is not a Jewish question at all, but an American question. As a matter of fact, Russia has never had a Jew in her pale of settlement of definite reasons why she excludes Jewish citizens of the United States, but has contented herself with merely saying that she does not propose to let them in. She has repeatedly ignored our protests, and flagrantly violated her treaty."

In view of this, he said, the United States was bound to ask of the one-sided treaty which it alone has constantly lived up to, while the other party to the contract was steadily disregarding its obligations under the agreement.

In connection with the proposed abrogation of the treaty with Russia, the American Hebrew this week says editorially:

"They are astute politicians in Russia. They are aware that the outbursts against the Jews are likely to bring active displeasure of foreign nations, a news item is sent around the world regarding some concession to be made to Jews. It is therefore not surprising when the house of representatives is considering action to abrogate the treaty of 1832, that the Duma should take up the bill for the abolition of the treaty. It must be remembered, however, that the concessions are only talked about. They are never made. They are talked about for foreign publication and not in good faith."

It was reported from St. Petersburg yesterday that the Council of Ministers had added a further restriction to Jews in Russia, holding that hereafter Jews shall be admissible to the state secondary examination only in the presence of a Jewish official of those in high schools, instead as in unlimited numbers as heretofore. Success in passing the examinations gave them right of residence outside the pale.

WOMEN INSIST ON NEW HOSPITAL
Realizing the desperate need for immediate relief for the unfortunate inmates of the Alameda county infirmary, and for a new county hospital, the club women have taken up the matter in a most enthusiastic manner and resolutions indorsed by the presidents of most of the important clubs and nearly all of those in Alameda county, and of many other prominent women of the east bay district, will be presented to the board of supervisors at tomorrow morning's meeting.

The resolution is in the form of an appeal to the board of supervisors to take some steps toward the immediate alleviation of the suffering caused at the infirmary by the overcrowding and the inadequate facilities of the institution and to commence at once the preliminary work for the erection of the new county hospital. The resolution is as follows:

ARCHITECT IS CANDIDATE FOR OAKLAND'S MAYOR

HERBERT C. CHIVERS, the genial landscape and consulting architect who is running for Mayor of Oakland.

35-MILE CANAL IS STOCKTON PLAN

Meeting Held to Determine Method of Raising Needed Funds.

STOCKTON, March 11.—About 100 persons interested in the delta lands of San Joaquin and Contra Costa counties met in Judge Norton's courtroom this morning pursuant to a call issued for the purpose of agreeing on a plan for solving the problem of how to deal with the flood waters of the San Joaquin river.

After a general discussion it was unanimously decided that a canal ought to be built from the San Joaquin river at some point near Kaspar's lake, a short distance above Panama dam, along the edge of the upland on the West Side and emptying into the river again at some point in the vicinity of Antioch.

Such a canal, which would be about thirty-five miles long, should be wide enough to carry the surplus water of the river after it reaches a certain height, and would prevent extremely high water in the vicinity of Stockton and in the delta district.

It was agreed that a paper should be circulated for the signatures of those who would pay an assessment of 10 cents an acre in the delta region, with the understanding that San Joaquin county, the city of Stockton and the railroad corporations interested would be solicited to contribute for the purpose of raising a fund to make a survey of the land and to meet other expenses of an organization to be formed to carry forward the project.

The meeting was called to order by George Wilhoit, the secretary of the bureau that was formed some time ago to get the land owners together.

The committee of five met during recess and selected fifteen men, in accordance with the instructions of the meeting, to act with it as a governing body of the organization. Those selected were J. A. Woodward, I. L. Borden, J. A. Aggeler, Supervisor Trythall of Contra Costa county, Frank S. Williams, H. Wright, John McCarthy, W. J. Phelps, A. Grunauer, Peter Ohm, Fred Stark, Henry Finck, A. C. Peck, W. B. Matthews and George E. Wilhoit.

The executive committee, empowered to choose the officers of the permanent organization, consists of O. E. Woodward, Henry Finck, E. J. Emery, I. L. Borden and H. J. Crocker.

MRS. DYKE IS NAMED IN SUIT
SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Mrs. Lena Dyke, well known in this city, is the latest San Franciscan to figure in one of New York's big divorce suits. She has been named in a sensational divorce suit filed by Mrs. Frances Mary Wilson against Harley P. Wilson, a millionaire stockbroker who formerly was engaged in business in this city and who has large holdings in the Western Pacific Railroad and the Southwestern Power Company.

Mrs. Wilson says in her complaint that she can live in New York on $300 a month, while her husband, she alleges, maintains several apartments in Gotham, one of which is presided over by Mrs. Dyke, who, Mrs. Wilson asserts, is also known as Mrs. C. A. Davis.

COMING MUSICAL EVENTS PROMISE A RARE SEASON

Lecture on Edward Macdowell and Busoni and Beel Concerts Are Attractions for the Near Future

(By DOROTHY PEPHYS.)

Mrs. Edward Macdowell, wife of the famous composer, will give a lecture tomorrow at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium in San Francisco and will also a little later lecture before the Berkeley Piano club, to the delight of the members.

One of the most indicative movements of the decade, and as wonderful a thing as has ever been undertaken in America, is the Macdowell movement at Hillcrest, the Macdowell farm house in Peterborough, N. H., which will be described by Mrs. Edward Macdowell, who can give the personal touch of absolute intimacy which thirty-five years as the companion of the American composer can give, and who helped him greatly in his work during his productive years, and was his mainstay and entire dependence when his health broke down. The woman has wide intelligence and is a musician and lecturer of fine parts.

Musical and club folk on both sides of the bay are deeply interested in the lecture, which will be illustrated by stereoscopic views and also by songs by Miss Zerlina Bartholomew, soprano, and by piano numbers of Macdowell's by Mrs. Macdowell. The program is as follows:

"The Peterborough Pageant of 1910," stereoscopic illustration. Pageant music, "To a Long Cabin," "Indian Idyl," "1620," "Indian Lodge," "Uncle Remus," "In Autumn," "To a Wild Rose," (Edward Macdowell). Mrs. Macdowell and Miss Bartholomew.

CONCERT AT YE LIBERTY.
The first Busoni concert is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, March 22, at Ye Liberty Playhouse and among the works to be played are the "Sonata No. 2" by Chopin, with its beautiful opening of hostilities and continued variations, Op. 1, by Schumann and the same composer's "Toccata," Op. 7; Liszt's "Rhapsodie" No. 13 and "Capriccio-Valse," and the same composer's transcriptions of Schubert's "Erlking" and "Hungarian March," besides Busoni's own transcription of the Bach "Chaconne" for violin alone.

The next star to follow Busoni is Alcega, the young Russian who is too well known to need comment and is called "the poet of the violin."

The Stewart Orchestral Concert took place Thursday evening at Ye Liberty theater and was attended by a large and enthusiastic audience who seemed to appreciate the hours of hard work necessary before a program such as was listened to could have a public presentation. Alexander Stewart directed his orchestra with much skill and deserves great praise for his earnest efforts to give works of the great masters. The performance throughout was marked by careful and scholarly interpretation.

CONCERT FOR MR. BEEL.
A concert is being arranged by a number of prominent Oakland women, for Sigmund Beel, violinist, formerly of Oakland, who has for some years been identified with the London music world. The concert is to take place Tuesday evening, March 21, at Beel's auditorium, and the program will be one of unusual interest. Mr. Beel will be assisted by Miss Maude Wellendorf, pianist.

Among the ladies having the project in charge are: Miss Edith Allen, Mrs. E. H. Benjamin, Mrs. Harry Bishop, Mrs. H. C. Capwell, Mrs. Charles Butters, Mrs. H. P. Charlton, Mrs. S. W. Cheyne, Mrs. Clara Day, Mrs. E. N. Ewer, Miss M. Ferrell, Miss Virginia de Fremery, Mrs. Edwin Garthwaite, Mrs. Frank C. Havens, Miss Lucy Herrick, Mrs. John Hoyt, Mrs. Bert Hubbard, Miss Edith Gertrude Jones, Mrs. J. A. Langstroth, Mrs. W. C. Latta, Mrs. H. S. Manheim, Mrs. Arthur Moore, Mrs. Neustadt, Mrs. W. S. Noves, Mrs. A. L. Parcells, Mrs. E. C. Peck, Mrs. Mark Reardon, Mrs. G. Richardson, Mrs. W. E. Sharr, Mrs. Alexander Stewart, Miss Jennie Tuttle, Mrs. Fred Turner, Mrs. E. F. Weihe, Mrs. F. S. Stratton.

CLUB PASSING IS MERRY SEASON
Knights of Pythias Ladies' Night Is a Great Social Success.

For the fifth time during the club passing season, ladies night proved one of the most successful in Pythian circles. The ladies of the hall of Phoenix Lodge No. 53 in San Francisco last Monday night. The usual large crowd of fans and lady fans were on hand, regardless of the inclement weather, to enjoy a pleasant evening with the knights, who were later rewarded for their trip, as a first class schedule had been prepared calling for some very exciting games. To make things interesting for the Oaklanders, California No. 1 trounced Live Oak No. 17 three times at the opening of hostilities and continued the winning tactics later on by defeating Liberty No. 35 of Oakland. Athens, the cellar champions, failed to materialize, and were compelled to forfeit the games with Phoenix and Phoenix. Unity also duplicated California's victory over Live Oak, while Harmonia lost 3 to 0 to the speedy Oakland team. The San Francisco boys kept up their winning streak in the game with Piedmont and in accordance with the instructions of the club, they were to win the first of the series. This, however, ended the victories for the metropolitan boys, as Phoenix was defeated by the undefeated Alameda Spiders from Lodge No. 4 of the Island City, the result being that Phoenix lost all their trophies and the Alameda boys were the next to tackle this lightning machine and the first heat resulted in the same way, Alameda winning 10 to 0. Employing the distinction of winning a total of 43 games for the entire season, including the finish of this final heat, the Oakland team, but alas, the erstwhile undefeated champions were suddenly stricken with "avalanche" and apparently tried to lower Arch Hoxsey's altitude record, for when they returned to mother earth they found themselves falling the speediest and foulest charged to their account, more than they had committed all season. For the next heat, they settled down and showed an errorless game and defeated the Oakland boys 10 to 0. The third heat played. One regrettable feature of the remaining schedule is that these two speedy teams will not meet again.

Oakland is scheduled to meet the cellar champion team at Alameda on March 17 and California No. 1 and Unity at Live Oak Lodge No. 17 March 26, which game will bring the tournament to a close.

Through a misunderstanding of the players of Liberty and Piedmont teams, who made their departure immediately after the first heat, the game scheduled between these two teams was necessarily postponed and will be played at the Alameda lodge, which will be at Alameda Lodge No. 49, Alameda, on Friday night, March 17.

Having become interested in this Pythian game, has invited the club-passing teams and their friends to visit them on the 17th of the month. The knights of Alameda county and San Francisco will journey to the Slough City special train, leaving Oakland, sixteen street depot, at 9 p. m. They have also invited the lodges from Lodi, Woodbridge and Fremont, and after the necessary instructions have been given the Valley boys, and some exhibition games played, the knights will hold their attention for the remaining hours of their visit, which is promised by the Stockton boys, to be late in the morning. The tickets will be honored on all regular trains out of Stockton up to the following Tuesday.

The knights are invited to join the club passing on this occasion and to obtain tickets from the following members of the order, as well as from their respective lodges: B. E. Decker, B. E. Bock, Ed Myers, G. H. Hagy and W. P. Dillon.

Mrs. Eddy's Estate
Valued at $2,512,146

CONCORD, N. H., March 11.—A valuation of $2,512,146 is placed on the estate in New Hampshire of the late Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, founder of the Christian Science church. The appraisers' report was filed in court today by General Henry M. Baker, executor of the estate. While the property left by Mrs. Eddy in Massachusetts has not been formally appraised, General Baker estimates it at about $250,000.

The chief items in New Hampshire are stocks and bonds to the amount of $1,057,738 and copyrights valued at $1,400,000.

EXTRA SESSION OF ASSEMBLY IMMINENT

Leaders in Both Houses Favor More Time to Finish Legislation

(Special Dispatch to THE TRIBUNE.)
SACRAMENTO, March 11.—The present session of the Legislature will not come to a close before April 1, and a special session later may be necessary. That is the conclusion arrived at by Walter Parrish, Secretary of the Senate, Speaker Hewitt of the Assembly, and several of the leaders in both houses.

This conclusion is the result of an investigation made today by these gentlemen. Two years ago, at this time, 35 per cent of the bills referred to committees had been reported. Today, there are 80 per cent of the measures introduced still before the committees.

Progress has been slow because of the extended debate on big measures. Probably two days will be consumed in discussion of the attempt of San Francisco to gobble the cities around the bay. This simply defers consideration of three other special bills. If the re-apportionment bill is not reported to the Legislature within the next five days, many of the best informed say that a special session must be called in August or September next.

GOTHAM CROWD NEARLY MOBS MAIDENS IN HAREM SKIRTS

Three young women who were the first to wear the bifurcated skirt in New York who were howled and jeered at by a mob along Broadway until they were forced to take refuge in a taxicab.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The vanguard of the approaching bifurcated skirt invasion has appeared in New York. Three young women, all correctly togged in fashion's latest edict—the Parisian harem skirt—took advantage of a mild day to stroll down Fifth avenue. Their mannish strides and still more mannish garments soon attracted the attention of the passersby and it was not long before they had the company of a considerable crowd of curious people.

The crush became so great that they were obliged to make their escape in a taxicab. They proceeded from Fifth avenue to Broadway, where they again alighted and continued their journey afoot. The Broadway crowd did not prove to be as gentlemanly as that of Fifth avenue, and the young women found themselves the center of a howling, jeering mob, from which they were again rescued by the timely appearance of a taxicab.

BRITISH FAVOR HAREM SKIRT.

LONDON, March 11.—British resentment of restrictions on personal liberty promises to result in a vigorous movement in favor of the "harem" skirt. The action of the mob in Vienna and Paris in attempting to block the innovation, by violence has produced a feeling of disgust in London.

Leading merchants intend to stock up with the garment and push its sale. Many letters are appearing in the press in favor of the new fashion. The celebrated artist, Harry Furness, says:

"One or more of the fashionable portrait painters should paint some of their fair sitters in harem dress."

"I am convinced that if the artists and their sitters lead the public will follow. More considerate people could see in the quiet of the Royal Academy how artistic and attractive the new dress is."

"In the name of common sense let us adopt the ankle dress as permanent and muzzle the changing, uncomfortable, microbe gathering custom and which the ever designing dressmakers invent."

"The reason many English women object to the ankle skirt, I am told by their French-American rivals, is that they have large feet. The fact is that in bygone days English women wore large and shapeless boots. The long nervous foot of the English girl is preferable to the squat, short toed French foot or to the narrow instep of the American beauty. Besides the ankle skirt can be made to hide the feet where it is necessary."

SKIRT HERE TO STAY.

BEVERLY, March 11.—The harem skirt has a defender. The threatened attack on the new mode in the legislature, led by Assemblyman Harry Polsey may bring on a campaign in its defense. "The style is here to stay; it is the beginning of a reform that will bring sensible garments and liberate women," said Alice M. Heynemann today.

To the interviewer, who wore trousers, she continued with a smile.

"Are the possibilities of the harem skirt so unreasonable and apart from common sense?"

"How would you like to sacrifice your freedom of movement and easy, swinging gait by four double-deck superfluous yards of absorbent goods on a raining, blustery day?"

"The accepted standard of woman's skirts, four inches from the ground, sweeps every crossing of the gutter and wipes the steps of the street cars clean."

"The harem skirt is but the street adaptation of the divided riding habit and outfit costume already accepted and admitted from a common sense standpoint."

"Before full credence is given to the opposition let each opponent attire herself or himself in low ties, thin stockings, over which hang eight loose yards of clinging goods; cinch the body into a gun-barrel corset, under a tight fitting coat covered with slippery fur boa; loose ends of a veil flying into the eyes; muff, hand satchel, a possible package; then try to raise an umbrella at a windy corner."

"Just try it yourself any of these March days and you will learn the cause of shattered nerves and broken constitutions."

"We have been educating our heads to the extreme in the present generation. Let us now go to the other extreme, and educate the heels of our women, with all unprogressive old fogies incidentally thrown in."

"The new model of woman's skirt has come to stay."

NATIONAL GUARD ARMORY ASSURED

State Engineer Has Had Plans Under Way for Several Weeks.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Grading for the foundation for the new National Guard armory at Fourteenth and Mission streets is to be undertaken as soon as the plans now being prepared under the direction of the state engineer have been completed. The plans have been in preparation during the past month and will be submitted to Adjutant-General Forbes for approval. This is the information communicated by the state engineer's office to the Mission armory site committee, which will make public the entire report Monday night at the weekly meeting.

The report states that the armory will be ready for occupancy before the end of the present year.

Although it was at one time announced that two armories would be built, the committee called the attention of the legislature to the fact that the $420,000 appropriation made by the legislature called for the erection of an armory in San Francisco, and the entire sum will be used to construct a building of bastion type on the Mission site formerly occupied by the Southern Pacific hospital.

The construction of the building and the installation of shelving and rifle racks will consume the entire amount appropriated, the complete equipment of the building and the uniforms and arms of the men being furnished by the Federal government.

The plans contemplate a three-story building with a first class storage basement. The first floor will be the drill room, the second club and reading rooms, and the third for lockers and equipment. Twenty-five companies of militia will be quartered in the building, and the adjutant-general has hopes that the structure will be completed before the end of this year, if at all possible.

LOOKS LIKE ATTEMPT TO COERCE THE ELECTORS

Election Circular Posted in the Corporation Yard at Melrose Causes Vigorous and Effective Protest

An interesting political story comes from the annexed district showing that a line-up is being attempted on the part of some of the city employees. A short time ago a man named Tony Machado announced himself as a supporter of P. C. Frederickson, candidate for commissioner No. 4. Mr. Frederickson has almost the unanimous support of the people of the annexed district. He is practically the only man running for a commission who represents the annexed territory.

FREDERICKSON POPULAR.

Mr. Frederickson is a business man and has lived in the district a long time and is very popular with his constituents. Machado, who is interested in a political club in that district, is looked upon as having some little political influence. He had told Mr. Frederickson's friends that he would support him for the commission. A few days ago Machado received an appointment from the city administration as an inspector, with a salary of $100 a month.

Shortly after he received this appointment he announced that he could not support Mr. Frederickson as he had received orders from the city administration to support other candidates on what is termed the "City Administration Ticket."

CIRCULAR POSTED.

It is asserted that Machado posted a circular in the corporation yard at Melrose reading something like this:

"For mayor, Frank K. Mott; for commissioner No. 1, Edwin Meese; for commissioner No. 2, Turner; for commissioner No. 3, Turner; for commissioner No. 4, Forrester."

When it was ascertained that objection was being made to politics being done in this way, the circular was torn down from the corporation yards and has not again appeared on the boards.

The friends of Mr. Frederickson have formed a strong organization in the annexed district and have promised him their stalwart support in that territory.

ORDERS PAVLOVA TO RETURN HOME

Famous Dancer to Testify in Case of Official Accused of Fraud.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 11.—The order of the Russian governor that Mme. Pavlova, the celebrated danseuse now in America, return immediately to St. Petersburg to testify in the investigation of official frauds, is reported to be based on the friendship between her and M. Dandre, one of the officials under fire.

It had been alleged by those close to Dandre that a considerable portion of the money supposed to have been devoted to the construction of bridges on the Trans-Siberian railroad went to gratify the whims of the dancer. It is not intimated that Mme. Pavlova had any knowledge of the source of the riches lavished upon her. Immediately on receiving the order to return Mme. Pavlova cabled to Senator Neffhardt, in charge of the investigating tribunal: "I shall return at the earliest possible moment."

DANCER MAKES DENIAL.

NEW HAVEN, March 11.—Mme. Pavlova, when seen here tonight, declared through an interpreter that she had not been summoned to St. Petersburg and that she never knew anyone named Dandre nor any government official involved in the graft investigation.

BOYS FELL TREE AND ARE JAILED

Orphaned Lad's Attempt to Repay Benefactors Leads to Detention Home.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Carl Nissen, 15 years old, like Tom Sawyer, knows a thing or two about human nature, especially juvenile human nature. He doesn't, however, know much about the law. Hence Carl, together with eight of his boy friends, is a prisoner at the Detention home.

Carl had no home at all until a week ago. Then a kindly disposed family in Merritt street took him up and housed him. All gratitude, Carl became anxious to return the kindness.

One day one of the family complained, "We are all out of wood," Carl overheard.

At 84 Merritt street there was a gum tree two feet in diameter and very tall. It sheltered an empty house. Carl gathered his boy friends about him and showed them what fun it would be to cut down the tree and chop it into saw wood. Four days the boys worked, hacking away. It didn't stay their enthusiasm a bit when the tree crashed into the roof of the empty house. Soon the whole tree, now stove wood, was neatly stacked in the back yard of the house.

Two days ago William Raghill, owner of tree, lot and empty house, came along to inspect his property. He was astounded at the damage that had been wrought. He started an investigation. The arrest of nine boys followed.

SAILING DATES CHANGED.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—The sailing date of the Pacific Mail steamer, City of Panama for Ancon, and lower coast ports has been changed from the 12th to the 17th.

PLAN RELIABILITY RUN FOR WEST

Vancouver and Tia Juana to Be Terminals of Proposed Auto Race.

From Vancouver, B. C., to Tia Juana, Mexico, the route of the Pacific highway, has been suggested as an admirable field for a reliability run. When it was learned that the Glidden tour would not be held West this year, Pacific Highway Association officials immediately began planning for a substitute event of the same nature. Motor enthusiasts all along the coast are highly in favor of holding such an event and there is now little doubt but what such a run will be pulled off.

Chairman A. G. Batchelder, of the executive committee of the American Automobile Association, who recently visited the Pacific Highway Association headquarters in Seattle, assured the P. H. A. officials that the powerful Eastern automobile organization would do all in its power to help make the event a success.

PRIVATE CARS IN RACE.

It is thought that by having a set of rules easily interpreted many of the private owners would enter the contest. This would swell the field of possible entries considerably and interest the private motorists as well as the dealers and manufacturers.

The proposed tour would be one of international interest, with the route laid out in the three countries of Canada, Mexico and the United States. Thousands of people would have an opportunity of viewing this contest for a great many of the important Western cities would be on the route of travel. Seattle, Tacoma, Bellingham and Everett in Washington, Portland, Albany, Eugene and Medford in Oregon and Redding, Sacramento, Oakland, San Francisco, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles and San Diego in California, would be on the route.

EXTRA SESSION IS NOT LIMITED

Congress Will Also Take Up Tariff Revision, Says One Representative.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—"Nothing in that," was the terse comment of Representative Underwood of the house committee on ways and means today, in referring to President Taft's suggestion that the extra session of congress should be confined to reciprocity legislation.

"There are two things to be done by the extra session," said Underwood. "One is the passage of the reciprocity measure and the other is legislation on the tariff. We will pass a reciprocity bill through the house, and we will put a tariff revision through."

Replying to suggestions that the President might veto any measure in which revision of the cotton, woolen or other schedules were tacked on as riders to the reciprocity bill, Underwood said that as far as the house was concerned, it was a matter on which no conclusion had been reached.

Aged Pensioners of London May Be Heirs

LONDON, March 11.—Two aged pensioners in the village of Blaby, near Leicester, are said to be among the joint heirs to a fortune of $1,000,000 made by a Elsie man, who emigrated to America fifty years ago. The fortune is reported to have been made by Henry Bowns of Salt Lake City, Utah, who died last year at the age of 70.

the more important cities on the route. By proper co-operation among coast automobilists, it is thought that a most successful reliability run may be pulled off early during the coming season.

CLEARING OF SITE BEGINS FOR NEW CITY HALL

Clam-Shell Dredger Will Be Employed to Make the Excavations.

OAKLANDER SECURES
CONTRACT FOR WORK

Municipal Officers Are at Present in a State of Upheaval.

With the cutting down of the old magnolia tree that has stood to one side of the entrance to the City Hall for many years, and the beginning of excavating for the new $1,000,000 building, actual operations toward the erection of the new City Hall were begun yesterday. The little building which houses the police station will be moved tomorrow to the cement directly in line with Washington street and in front of the old hall, and work will be commenced this week razing the old brick structure of the electrical and fire departments. The site must be entirely clear within thirty days to give the contractor for the excavation a free hand.

DREDGER FOR EXCAVATIONS.

The excavating will be done with a clam-shell dredger, such as is used in harbor excavations for quay walls, and for building canals. This will be brought to the city hall site tomorrow and the earlier part of the week will be taken up getting into operation and in place for the work. The contract for the excavation has been let to Just Anderson, an Oaklander and a member of the Western Reclamation company. He bid $6350 to excavate approximately 11,000 cubic yards.

As soon as the dredger is in operation, Anderson expects to have about thirty teams working and a big corps of men carting the earth away. The earth must be delivered at the various playground and park sites, and will be used for top dressing, loam, and clay for fill.

The site for the new City Hall lies between the main west wall of the present City Hall and the east line of the new H. C. Capwell building.
The excavation for which is now being completed between Fourteenth, Clay and Fifteenth streets. The City Hall site runs from Fourteenth to Fifteenth streets.

MANY ALTERATIONS.

The old structure will not be torn down until the new one is nearing completion, but many alterations have been necessitated by the building of the new hall. The bay window on the west side of the old building facing the new site just out over the proposed excavation, and will have to be cut off. This has necessitated the removal of the city clerk's office on the second story from the west to the east side of the City Hall, and a like removal in the case of the offices of Superintendent of Police Adelbert
Wilson and his staff on the first floor.
The clearing of the site for the new building has also necessitated the tearing down of the court room and chambers formerly occupied by Judge George Samuels in Fifteenth street.
His new court is in the old City Hall on the east side, and this has occasioned the cutting of a new entrance on that side of the building from the city prison for prisoners to enter the new court room. It has also occasioned the transfer of the city hall stables and the prison yard to the east side of the old hall, and work will be commenced this week on a fence facing the plaza park for the prison yard on that side.

CITY OFFICES IN UPIHEAVAL.

With these changes, and others occasioned by the moving of several departments to the City Hall annex at 1358 Broadway, the city offices are in a state of upheaval, which will not settle until all the readjustments have been made.

This week Fire Marshal A. N. Ball and his staff, as well as Fire House Company No. 1 will be removed from the old three-story brick building in Fifteenth street, as this has been sold to P. F. Greenhood for $825 to be torn down and removed. No place has yet been found for the fire marshal and his staff, but it is thought that a garage in Eighteenth street may be used.

City Electrician George Babcock will move this week to his new building on the corner of Lake Merritt at Thirteenth and Oak streets, the new building for the fire and police telephone and telegraph system for which bonds of $80,000 were carried by the vote. This will empty the building, and Greenhood will be able to start work wrecking it.

CHINESE HAS NAME OF 'SAM MAHONEY'

Adopted Cognomen in Order to Attract White Trade of Neighborhood.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—When the case against "Sam Mahoney," criminal to animals," was called in Police Judge Shortall's court today, there stepped forth from the prisoner's dock a Chinese lad in blouse, pantaloons and sandals.
His long queue was tied up in a neat knot.

For a moment or two there was an ominous silence in the court room. Defective Minahan coughed. Detective Colling looked at his eyes several times in rapid succession.

"That um my name," said the Oriental.
"All same Sam Mahoney." That um good name. Bling good washee to laundry."

Shortall held a whispered consultation with Policeman Kiddier who had arrested the Chinese.

"The officer tells me," said the court finally, "that you have been driving a horse with three feet to his wagon and that it was caused by shoes that were too small. What have you got to say to that?"

FEET GREW TOO FAST.

"Him small shoes. Feet him grow.
Him no good."

"I gather," said the court, "that you don't want a horse with big feet. That a horse's feet ought to be bandaged like a Chinese woman?"

Sam Mahoney nodded his head in approval. Shortall held another consulta-

MORGAN'S NIECE TO BE NEXT AMERICAN PEERESS

Clever Mrs. Lewis Harcourt to Grace the Round Table of the Favorites of Royalty

(By CHESTER T. OVERTON.)

LONDON, March 11.—According to the best political prophets the next American peeress will be J. Pierpont Morgan's clever niece, the wife of the Hon. Lewis Harcourt, secretary of state for the colonies.

Everyone seems delighted at the news for Mr. Harcourt is equally popular on both sides of the House of Commons, and Mrs. Harcourt is regarded as one of the most brilliant and tactful hostesses in England. Her receptions at her town house are as much enjoyed as her parties at Nun-ham, the magnificent country home on the Thames, which has been transformed and beautified.

Mr. Morgan has always been most generous to his favorite niece and it goes without saying that her husband's elevation to the peerage will be followed by an ample ability to maintain her added dignities with due magnificence.

The elevation of Mr. Harcourt to the House of Lords has been in the air for some time. There was a rumor some time ago that now the ambitions of his American wife are, according to all reports, to be substantially realized.

POLITICAL AT-HOME.
One of the most brilliant political at homes of the week was that given by Mrs. Harcourt at her fine house terfield house and Lady Granard has sponsored a royal dinner party at Forbes house to be followed by a dance.

As wife of the master of horse, Lady Granard has first claim on their modesties, but on the other hand, the Duchess has some of the best shooting in Scotland and the King, as Prince of Wales, has already enjoyed her hospitality.

Meanwhile Lady Decies, the bride of the season, is making a belated progress up the Nile with her husband. Both expect to be back in town the second week of April. Through agents they have been looking for a town house and it is believed they have practically settled to take Hughes house, which overlooks the marble arch at the end of Park Lane.

Some members of the America Sporting Club have been in town during the week, including Mr. and Mrs.
Strawbridge of Philadelphia, who have been hunting as usual in Leicestershire; Harry Payne Whitney and Forsyth Keene.

LADY PAGET'S DINNER.

Lady Paget has given a big dinner in honor of Miss Cecil Bingham, whose sister, Lady Newborough, has found a new home in Grosvenor Square, now known as the "Stars and Stripes" reserve.

Viscount Bridport is now on his way to New York, where he will remain for a time before going to Chicago and San Francisco and later to Japan and China. Lord Bridport's eldest son went out some time ago and roughed it in the West, finally settling down on a farm near Philadelphia.

It is now practically certain that Rembrandt's "The Mill" will leave here to become the property of H. C.
Frick of Pittsburgh, notwithstanding the efforts of the National Art Collection fund, headed by Lord Ebanries, only $50,000 having been raised of the half million needed to keep the picture.

Lady Warwick during the past year has been occupying the celebrated "little white house" in the Chelsea district of London, made famous by Whistler. But Lady Warwick is leaving London for the continent and the "white house" will be for rent during the vacation period and the London season.

Doubtless it will be rented and occupied by some Americans as there will be an enormous crowd of Americans in London this year and such and historical residences will be almost impossible to find.

OPENS DOOR AND FAWN RUSHES INTO KITCHEN

MONTICELLO, N. Y., March 11.—Mrs.
John Thornton of Merriewood Park was looking out of the window and saw a fawn enter her dooryard, closely pursued by two dogs. She opened the door and the frightened animal plunged into the kitchen, knocking the pancake griddle off the stove and doing other slight damage.

After the dogs had been driven away
Mrs. Thornton investigated and found the animal suffering from exhaustion and bleeding from cuts. Dr. J. F. Cur-lette administered chloroform to the little animal and sewed up the wounds.

Raising of Maine Progresses Rapidly

HAVANA, Cuba, March 11.—Colonel W. M. Black, in charge of the operations in connection with raising of the battleship Maine, announced today that the work had so far advanced that it would be possible within six weeks to pump out the coffer-dam and expose the hull to view.

WARMS HIS CORNS IN HOTEL; IS FINED

Took Off his Shoes in the Library and Fight Follows.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Floyd Zelle of Chicago was teasing his stockinged feet on a radiator in the library of Mills Hotel No. 2.

"Take down your feet and put on your shoes!" ordered William Hubert, a porter.

A mix-up followed, a bookcase door was smashed, Zelle, a well-dressed man of about 40 years, arrived in the night coat.

"I had just come from Chicago; I was tired; have corns; my feet hurt; the heat eased my suffering. This porter was arrogant, impudent and struck at me. I acted only in self-defense," he told Magistrate House.

"A public reading room is no place to take off your shoes," said the magistrate.

"If your corns hurt like mine do," Zelle began.

"Two dollars' fine," interrupted the magistrate.

"I want to appeal that!" cried Zelle indignantly.

Magistrate House very politely told him how to take an appeal and added:
"Continue to talk and I'll raise the fine."

Zelle paid.

HOW a Phony Railroad Came to Take Important Position

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—I hear from Sacramento that the Southerners are gnashing their teeth and beating their fists with rage over the defeat of their effort to set up a separate State University in their end of the commonwealth. But their present anger will be nothing compared to what will happen if they get euehered out of their pet reapportionment scheme.

There is on the reapportionment of the State an out-and-out battle between San Francisco and Los Angeles. It is a game of grab in which not much attention is paid to equity, honesty or fair-dealing. In the Assembly the south has set out to hog everything. In the Senate San Francisco is fighting to get the better of things in a rough-and-tumble way.

Los Angeles wants to lead San Francisco for once, as she now has in her big county a greater population than we have huddled on this little neck of land. But she wants to steal from us with a rude and hairy hand. San Francisco, on the other side, is only willing to let Los Angeles have the same representation—eight Senators and sixteen Assemblymen—as we are to have. At present we have nine Senators and eighteen Assemblymen. She five and ten.

There has been a great deal of skirmishing and maneuvering on both sides, and so much heat has been stirred that there is considerable danger that there will be no reapportionment at all, as was the case in 1881. This, of course, would be a great victory for San Francisco, as it would leave her with her twenty-seven legislators to fifteen for Los Angeles.

The Fight For Alameda County Votes

In all the scheming Alameda county has not cut much figure in the Senate calculations. Each side proposes that your county shall have four Senators, as at present. But in the Assembly the Los Angeles chaps have offered Alameda county ten Assemblymen. This is within two of the number the Southerners propose to give San Francisco, though our census population is 416,912 and yours 246,131.

But against this offer of Assemblymen to win the Alameda votes the San Franciscans turned a trick in the Throop Institute fight. Your four Senators were badly scared by the grabbing Southerners, and the San Francisco men said that if the university was to have their support your Senators would have to stand with San Francisco on reapportionment. Our boys held the balance of power and your lads had to come to time.

The Los Angeles people changed their bill to please Senators Walker and Black of Santa Clara. At first the Southrons were only going to let Santa Clara have one Senator; but they found that Walker had drawn the northern bill and had started a combine in the Senate to put through the San Francisco plan. So they offered to let Santa Clara have her two Senators under their bill. But Black and Walker said they would stick by the northern combine, and so the Los Angelenos gained nothing by their effort on Santa Clara.

I give you here the rival apportionments of the Senate districts as I figure the populations from the bills sent to me:

The game is made, messieurs! En garde! It is a pretty fight, and the present advantage is with Tom Finn, Senator and Sheriff, who, a few years ago, was currying horses for a living. But in the game of practical politics he seems in a fair way to overset a persistent Lieutenant Governor and men like Senators Lee Gates, Hewitt, Bell and Thompson, not to speak of Assemblymen Cogswell and Randall and their southern following in the "Steorage," as Ned Hamilton calls the lower House.

Everybody Worried Over Passes

When the Legislature passed the Stetson Railroad

Commissioner bill there was an idea the railroads would be all cut up, particularly over the section cutting off all passes. It happens the railroads are the only ones not cut up over that section.

"We have had more trouble over that than over all else combined," complained Commissioner John Eshleman, while the railroad men, who had called in passes right and left, laughed and laughed again.

There is no joke about this pass matter, however, as the little lift railroad at Shasta Springs has found. That road is 640 feet long. It has been accustomed to issuing passes as a joke. It had a pass reading:

"The world's straightest and safest scenic railway is operated at Shasta Springs, the home of Shasta water."

"This annual pass is transferable, is good for an interstate trip, afoot, over any other road in America, and if presented by other than the person named becomes non-forfeitable. The holder may collect full fare from conductors recognizing his right to do so."

"In consideration of the acceptance of this pass, the company waives all claims for damages to the person or baggage of the holder."

"The scenic railway train runs through the woods, never amuck; runs over an incline plane of equal distance in either direction; also runs overtime—time being no object to us, if only it be used drinking."

When the Stetson law went into effect it was proposed to continue the joke and Manager John S. Matheson sent out the following amusing notice:

Unwritten Law as Applied to Passes

"The framers of the unwritten law in recognition of the scientific methods employed in the construction and operation of our superb railway system resulting in the almost complete annihilation of both time and distance, specifically declare and direct that each holder of a free pass over the Shasta Springs Scenic Railway, notwithstanding the recent enactment of a law directing the recall and confiscation of all passes used over railways connecting and competing with our system, shall be permitted to hold and use same forever and a day, provided, however, the holder thereof believes in a short ballot, a short railway, the recall of judges, the recall of free passes over other lines than our own, and imbibes freely for his health's sake."

"Shasta Springs Scenic Railway Co."

But, bless me, the new Railroad Commissioners took the matter seriously. They made the 640-foot road a "common carrier." They forced it to call in its phoney passes except to employes and railroad officials. And now, against their own notion, the officers of the little road find themselves entitled to receive passes from all the railroads of the land. And of such is straightlaced reform.

Just a Suggestion for Abe Ruef

Now that Ruef is in San Quentin and is talking a free-hearted philosophy, let me call his attention and yours, gentle reader, to an unfamiliar excerpt from one of the greatest essays in our English tongue. See how it fits the case of the man across the bay:

"The only alleviation to the misery of constraint lies in the disposition of the prisoner. To each one this place of discipline brings its own lesson. It stirs Latude or Baron Trenck into heroic action; it is a hermitage for pious or conformable spirits."

"Beranger tells us he found prison life, with its regular hours and long evenings, both pleasant and profitable. The Pilgrims Progress and Don Quixote were begun in prison. It was after they were become (to use the words of one of them) 'Oh, worst imprisonment, the dungeon of themselves,' that Homer and Milton worked so hard and so well for the profit of mankind."

"In the year 1415 Henry V had two distinguished prisoners, French Charles of Orleans and Scottish James I, who whiled away the hours of their captivity with rhyming. Indeed, there can be no better pastime for a lonely man than the mechanical exercise of verse."

The quotation is from the "Charles of Orleans" of Robert Louis Stevenson, and those who have not read the sequence of "Yoshida," "Francois Villon" and "Charles of Orleans" have much of glory yet to know—and Abe Ruef may make of himself in his prison an immortal.

Fred Sanborn a New Boss

A new Republican boss has risen above the political horizon. Whether he will ever reach the zenith of that game as it is played in San Francisco, is yet to be determined, not by astrology, but by cold hard facts of a terrestrial order. This aspirant to local leadership is Fred G. Sanborn, who in the commercial world is the manager of a lawbook concern, in the political field the chairman of the Republican County Committee and president of the State Fish Commission.

Sanborn first came into political view as an active member of the Oliver Grand Jury of graft indictment notoriety. He was appointed Fish Commissioner by Governor Johnson with popularly reported instructions to put that department on a business basis.

SOUTHERNERS at Sacramento Raging Over Their Defeat

This task has occupied much of Sanborn's time of late, leaving but little opportunity for the development of his new bossship, which apparently does not extend to the Fish Commission. That body had in view the putting a stop to the shrimp fishing in this bay, as the supply and size of that crustacean, once so cheap and plentiful in San Francisco, have so diminished that they have become a luxury and are now only served in leading restaurants, intermittently and in much reduced proportions.

The Chinese have for years conducted the industry of catching, drying and shipping in large quantities shrimps to the Orient, until now the supply is so much reduced as to indicate its early exhaustion. Complaint has also been made that the use of bag nets by the Chinese destroyed many small fish, thereby working great damage to several varieties.

But Sanborn had not progressed far when he discovered that Grove L. Johnson, father of the Governor, is the boss of the shrimp industry, he having been retained by the Chinese to protect their legal interests, which for many years were looked after by the late Judge Henry C. Dibble.

Instead of putting the shrimp fishers on trial the Fish Commissioners found themselves up against an investigation of some of their employes on charges of having extorted bribes and hush money from those Pagan fish pirates of the bag net. Up to date the shrimpers appear to be in the lead, as Grove L. has kept the Commissioners busy defending their employes, if not the system of conducting their department. As Grove L. Johnson is a most wary and resourceful antagonist, the indications are that Sanborn will not have an opportunity to do much political fence building, for some little time at least.

Another undertaking of the Fish Commission that has not made much progress is the ascertaining why striped bass from San Francisco bay are found on the bills of fare and served to guests of hotels in Denver, Salt Lake and other cities outside of California.

The successful propagation of this valuable food fish is one of the achievements to the credit of the Commission. Under the law they may not be shipped outside the boundaries of the State—but they are, and in considerable quantities, and the Commissioners would like to ascertain how.

Laughing Water for Boosters

William H. Crocker, banker and otherwise big financier, as well as member of the board of directors of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition Company, is regarded by his associates in the latter enterprise as an iconoclast, and almost a cynic.

At a luncheon given to the Washington committee by the Rotary Club of this city Banker Crocker disclaimed any right to the designation of hero or that any valorous acts had been performed by the members of that committee at the National Capital. Crocker in his response to a toast declared that not only was the work in Washington "easy," but that the success of San Francisco was due to President Taft, without whose aid this city would not have been chosen by the Government as the site of the exposition.

At another banquet in honor of the victors who have been entertained in one almost continuous triumph since their return bearing as the spoils of war the pen with which President Taft signed the exposition bill, there was a little friendly contention over the wine bill of the committee. Leon Sloss spoke of opening "bottles" of champagne, and was later corrected by General De Young, who declared that "cases" and not bottles was the measure of the opening of fizz water in celebration of the victory in the House.

To be more explicit, De Young said that sixty-five cases of the sparkling wine of France had been used to give zest to the great event. Then it was Sloss' turn, and he spoke with authority, having signed the checks for the committee, and he placed the total number of cases required to give full stimulus to the joy of the Californians in Washington, which they sought to show in entertaining large numbers of guests, at sixty-nine cases, which may stand as the official record.

While Banker Crocker may decline to regard the battle of the Californians at Washington as a Marathon, yet none has come forward to dispute their princely hospitality as the representatives of the Exposition Company. One member of the committee had the bathtub in his apartments at a hotel filled with cracked ice, in which were planted quarts and magnums of champagne galore, the bathtub serving as a cooler. So lavish was the entertainment of this patriot that although known among his associates as the "man with the iron head," it was fully three days before he recovered from the effects of his enthusiastic toil in behalf of the exposition.

And yet Banker Crocker says that it was easy.

THE KNAVE

Probably he did not see that bathtub when at the zenith of its hospitality.

Preparing for San Diego Fair

San Diego is making no mean preparation for its fair, also to be held in 1915. Colonel D. C. Collier, the director-general of this enterprise, states that its motto is to be "History, Romance, Climate and Beauty." In the historical section will be assembled at least one hundred tribes of Indians, who will give exhibitions of their various crafts. The Western States and Territories are being raked, as with a fine tooth comb, for these descendants of the aborigines.

No effort will be spared to make the affair a thing of beauty. Arrangements have been made to set out one million geranium plants and slips. Preparations are being attempted to have annual flowering plants in bloom during the season of the fair, and they as well as perennials and intermittent blooms will contribute to make what the San Diegans believe will be the greatest flower show ever held on this earth.

As the fair will be held in the early and winter months of the year the flower exhibit alone will give color to both the climate and beauty sections under which it is to be conducted. No attempt will be made to present mechanical products as features of the southern display, as it is intended to make it the antithesis of what is popularly known as an exposition.

No Director-General Yet

The question of who will be the Director-General of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is still unanswered so far as public information goes, although the inner circles of the corporation of that name, which is promoting the great enterprise, may have made a selection. During the past week a local publication that is credited with, and is in position to have inside information, announced that the Director-General would not be selected from any of those gentlemen who have been mentioned in connection with that office.

With this wholesale elimination the contest for that office of great distinction will have to be begun anew. With the return of Theodore A. Bell from Washington, D. C., there was quite a canvass or boom started for him by his many friends, both in the Democratic party and in the Order of Eagles, of which he is past grand president and an active organizer. He was banqueted by the Eagles and the Democrats elaborately entertained him last night.

He was also given the usual floral wreath by Chairman Rolph of the exposition promoters in imitation of the custom of tendering tokens of regard and honor to the knights of old on their return from the wars. It was also a pretty practice of the race track here for years to so wreath the victorious equines, the famous Geraldine of the Ashes being the first to garland in this manner after her great race at the Ingle-side track.

With all the previously mentioned candidates eliminated a new field is certainly opened for those who wish to guess who the Director-General is to be. But there are those who still believe the choice will be from among the already suggested number.

Scandal in Society

For some time the society matrons have felt there should be a more rigid censorship of the young men who are permitted to mingle with the local Four Hundred. On different occasions they have suggested a more careful inspection of the morals and conduct of those men who are permitted to associate with their daughters in the higher and more select functions, although those associations be but temporary.

From time to time there have been bits of scandal, but as these ceased to agitate the social set the matrons became less vigilant. But a recent reproachful affair was so flagrant that even Ed. Greenway, the social czar, was not only shocked and pained, but filled with a startling fear that the foundations upon which he has so carefully built the social superstructure were endangered and the whole fabric might be wrecked.

A daughter of a family whose name has been prominent in social events for many years, and whose residence is not in excess of five blocks from the intersection of Pine street and Van Ness avenue, although not facing on either of those thoroughfares, became a subject of tender inquiry by her mother. At first the young lady was in doubt as to whom to name as the cause of her condition, but finally an angry and threatening brother called on the young man to whom his sister was engaged. The suitor denied sole responsibility for the plight of his fiancée, but chivalrously offered to become a member of a club, naming several men who were eligible for charter membership, and with them assume his share of a joint obligation, much the same as did the gentlemen of a tale by Gil Blas.

It is this incident that has caused some of our society matrons to renew their activities for a board of censors, with a view to minimizing such regrettable and troublesome scandals in the more select social circles.

Want Otis to Start Paper

At different periods during the past four or five years there has been talk of General Harrison Gray Otis establishing and running a newspaper in San Francisco. These subdued discussions have ceased in turn, almost invariably being followed by an announcement that General Otis, by reason of advanced years and already having a large share of journalistic and other business cares, did not wish to add to them.

Recently this line of talk has been revived and those participating in it say that this time something definite will result from it. Among the business men who are supposed to be in the know it is said that the present proposition is to raise $500,000 by, say, subscriptions of $500 each by 1000 citizens, and present it to General Otis in consideration of his starting in San Francisco a paper to be run on lines parallel with those on which his Times is conducted in Los Angeles.

It is said that this proposition is taking form and substance and that there are prospects of its being consummated. It differs from previous negotiations with General Otis, to the same end, in that this tender has no strings on it, as had the others. The $500,000, under the latest plan, is to be given Otis in cash, and he is to have sole control of both the business, and editorial policy of the journal.

BARONESS RUNS OUT OF MONEY

NEW YORK, March 11.—The Baroness de L'Obel, having run out of money "through a misadventure in Genoa," has had to put up for a week at the municipal lodging house. The fascinating Baroness, cousin of Mrs. Sterling Postley, native of San Francisco, where her relatives, Miss Ethel and Mrs. H. N. Cook, brought her up and sent her to Denham school, where she was the classmate of Virginia Fair (now Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr.). Afterward they sent her to a French convent for finishing school, then to Marquis de Rosine Laborde and to Busini for voice culture.

"Three weeks ago I sang for the de L'Obel, a maid of honor, where he is held prisoner by a guard of 200 soldiers," she said today. "My husband, the baron, having died, I started for America. At Genoa I had a misadventure regarding money and in order not to lose my ticket had to come away before getting it back. I arrived on the D'Abuzzi with $45 and went to the Hoffman House.

MONEY DIDN'T LAST LONG. "That money didn't last long and after ten years' absence I could not at once locate relatives or friends—and here I am waiting.

"Only ten years, yet what changes! I telephoned my friend Franklin Bartlett and they said he had been dead a year. Mrs. Postley I could not find and the Cooks of San Francisco have not had time to answer my letter. Miss Ida S. Coffey, my aunt, used to live in this city but she is gone abroad.

"Why not sing here? But I am so fat. Living in Turkey makes one so fat—streets are so bad one does not walk and there is no exercise. There, it is the thing to be plump; here it is the thing to be slender. Yes, I might be admitted to light opera which has the heavyweight singer."

Hunted Mystery Ship Lies Stuck in Mud

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—White special government agents and inspectors have been cruising up and down the coast in search of the power schooner Kate, supposed to be engaged in carrying contraband Chinese and opium from Mexico to American ports. The Kate has been heard in the Gulf of California, according to Daniel Archer, who arrived here on the steamer City of Panama today.

Archer was first officer of the schooner on the voyage when, shortly after the departure of the Los Angeles Times, Wilson B. Evans, ascorning teller of the merchants' National Bank of Los Angeles, took passage on her at this port as a sailor.

Evans is now free, because, it is said, friends have made good his defalcations and the charges have been withdrawn.

RIGGER FALLS TO DEATH

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—H. C. Ruch, while working in the rigging of the schooner, at Pier No. 26, fell from the deck and sustained a fractured skull from which he died while being taken to the hospital. Ruch was a member of the Pilgrims and Stewards' Union.

SLAVE GIRL ONE OF THREE SMUGGLED INTO PORT

Federal Officials Find Her Wandering in Chinatown; Seek White Conspirators.

SUBJECTED TO CRUELTY ON WAY ACROSS SEA

Victim Left Without Food in Yokohama Eight Days; Came On Manchuria.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Kidnapped in Hongkong by a band of Chinese slave smugglers and subjected to barbaric torture aboard the Pacific Mail liner Manchuria by the slave dealers' agents, Ah So, a sixteen-year-old Chinese girl, was arrested in Chinatown by federal immigration inspectors and she is now being detained at the Angel Island immigration station.

Federal secret service agents are scouring Chinatown for two other Chinese slaves who accompanied Ah So to this country and, aided by the confession made by Ah So, Uncle Sam's agents are looking for several white men and a number of Chinese who lowered the three slaves from the deck of the Manchuria and rowed them to a landing place.

RING STILL AT WORK.

The arrest of Ah So convinces the immigration authorities that in spite of the vigilance maintained by federal officials since the wholesale smuggling plot aboard the Manchuria was uncovered two months ago, the Chinese smuggling ring is still at work and is meeting with considerable success.

The capture of Ah So was guarded with the closest secrecy, for the immigration officers hoped that by making a secret raid they would be able in a few days to locate the white men and their Chinese allies. Immigration inspectors have gone about Chinatown with the girl for the purpose of having her point out one or more of the men who successfully carried off the smuggling plot here.

DRUGGED IN HONGKONG.

According to the slave's story, two men drugged her in Hongkong and placed her aboard the Manchuria. She went as far as Yokohama, when, for some reason, she was taken off the steamer. She remained in the Japanese port for eight days without anyone to care for her or provide her with food.

When the Manchuria called again at Yokohama on its trip eastward she was taken aboard the vessel and secreted in a room with two other Chinese girls, who had been kidnapped at Hongkong in the same manner.

After the Manchuria docked at the Pacific Mail wharves a party of white men and Chinese rowed to the side of the vessel under cover of darkness. A Chinese carried the three girls out of their prison and lowered them into the boat with a rope. They were rowed ashore. All three were then taken to a slave den in Chinatown, but Ah So managed to escape and was found wandering about the Chinese quarter.

PRECEDING PLOT FAILED.

The last Chinese smuggling plot attempted on the Manchuria failed when customs inspectors watching the vessel saw a boatload of Chinese coolies being rowed away from the vessel. They gave chase and succeeded in finding a band of fifteen Chinese men and several women hiding in a shed at the Santa Fe railroad depot near the Union Iron Works.

FORTUNE AND MISFORTUNE AFFLICT EARL OF CREWE

EARL OF CREWE and LADY CREWE, who are rejoicing over the birth of a little son and heir. Their home at Mayfair was recently burned and Lady Crewe and her baby son rescued and taken to the home of the Earl of Rosebery, the Countess' father.

LONDON, March 11.—There is great rejoicing in the household of the Earl of Crewe over the countess' having just given birth to a little son and heir. Although this is their first child, Lord Crewe has three daughters by a previous marriage.

Ill-fortune seems to pursue the Earl of Crewe. Almost immediately following the birth of his little son, Crewe House at Mayfair was burned and Lady Crewe and her infant son were rescued from the burning house and taken to the home of her father, the Earl of Rosebery. Now the Earl has been stricken with a fainting fit followed by concussion of the brain and will be out of public life for at least two months.

In the present crisis of the house of lords this is peculiarly unfortunate, for the Earl is the government leader there as well as secretary of state for India. He was stricken while attending a dinner at a London hotel, and he was kept at the hotel over night and then removed to the Rosebery home in an ambulance.

REGIMENT AWAITS FREIGHT STILL MOVES SLOWLY ORDERS AT THE PRESIDIO

64 Horses Needed But Only 22 Have Been Secured for Men.

SEND EAST FOR MORE ANTI FEVER SERUM

Training School of Bakers and Cooks Is Ordered to San Diego.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—The fourth provisional regiment of infantry at the Presidio is waiting under arms for orders to start for the frontier. The quartermaster department has so far only been able to secure twenty-two horses for the regiment. It should have not less than sixty-four, and even this number would work a hardship upon the troops.

The quartermaster discovered a possible means of making up this deficit today in case the troops should not leave for another week. About a week ago a number of horses were ordered sent from Fort Keogh, Mont., to the Presidio to be used by the First Cavalry, which was to have been stationed at the Yosemite Valley this summer. The First Cavalry was one of the first ordered to the border line and if these horses are en route they will be used to equip the provisional regiment.

FULL WAR STRENGTH. The provisional regiment, when it takes the field, will be the largest infantry regiment that has ever been in service during peace times. The regiment numbers 1284 men and 44 officers, or about 1500 more men than a regular infantry regiment would have.

The regiment was to have been vaccinated with anti-fever serum today, but this has been postponed until a fresh supply can be received from the East.

Telegraphic orders were received from General Bliss this afternoon to send to San Diego by the first available transportation the training school of bakers and cooks from the Presidio. The school consists of 115 men. They will take with them a full field equipment, including a rolling kitchen, trucks and wagons and field covers. The men and their equipment will probably go on the steamer Yale which leaves this port Monday.

WAGON EQUIPMENT GOES.

In addition the quartermaster's department will dispatch five carloads of escort wagons, Dougherty wagons, mules and other field transportation equipment tomorrow. The shipment will be in charge of seven civilian teams.

Captain E. W. Rich, attending surgeon at department headquarters and lieutenant of Fort Mason, was attached today to the provisional regiment as ranking medical officer.

REGIMENT AWAITS FREIGHT STILL MOVES SLOWLY

Recent Washouts Delay Arrival of Shipments Over All Railway Lines.

Incoming freight is still being held up on the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific lines and the bulk of freight received at the Kirkham street depot last week was considerably less than usual. Yesterday freight came in at a more normal rate.

The Hay City Mills expects two cars of Eastern flour from the Yost Milling Company, which is delayed owing to washouts.

The Hunt-Hatch Company is receiving shipments regularly. Yesterday one car of bananas from New Orleans and oranges from Redlands and two of potatoes from Stockton were received.

The George F. Hallett was taken from the Pacific ways and shipyards to the United Engineering Works yesterday, where she will be repaired.

'FORTIFY CANAL' IS BUILDERS TO TAKE ADVICE GIVEN BY ROOSEVELT

Speaks Before New Orleans Audience and Urges Protection for Panama.

Denied Relief by Committee and Requests Are Turned Down.

MORAL CONDITION OF NATION IS CRITICIZED

TIDELAND BILLS ARE IN ATTORNEY'S HANDS

Wolfe "Gobble" Bill Will Cause One of Most Spirited Debates.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 11.—"Fortify the Panama Canal." For the first time since the inception of the controversy over the question of armament, the sage of Sagamore Hill, in a straight-from-the-shoulder talk, declared himself last night to a New Orleans audience. Roosevelt did not mince words. He spoke simply and clearly on this mooted question of fortification, without bantering words of pity for those so "soft-hearted" that it has extended to the head, who could not see the necessity for such a safeguard. He pointed out that there were only two nations in the world that are bound by treaty to respect the neutrality of the canal—Great Britain and Panama. No other nation is in the least bound to recognize the neutrality of the canal. Indeed, failure to fortify would bring upon this country the decision of the world. In time of war any nation would have the right to seize the waterway. Roosevelt went so far as to declare that fortifications lacking, the canal in time of war would be very easily turned into an instrument for the ruin of the United States.

SPEAKS FOR AN HOUR.

The ex-President spoke for nearly an hour. He opened his address with complimentary references to the progress shown by New Orleans, and by the prophecy that this city will, in every sense of the word, "become the gateway to the Pacific." He then turned to the industrial, economic and social forces which naturally make this the "logical" world. He touched upon the criticisms put upon him while President, for undervaluing the canal, and a defense of his attitude seemed to win him the audience. Roosevelt touched also upon private, corporate and public morality and corruption. He gave a little moral talk which was a sermon—a little talk in which he embraced individuals and corporations, the successful scoundrel, who becomes the social outcast. He concluded with a stirring appeal to the people of New Orleans to set forward every man, woman and child, and every part of the country in a movement to exorcise conditions of industrial and political corruption and mob violence, which "rends up this nation to the mirth of the enemies of the Republican government across the waters."

WANTS PURER NATION.

"By cleansing itself, by leading a purer national life, the United States will not only be doing itself a great service," he said, "but will be conferring an everlasting benefit upon mankind, by proving that a government of the people by the people and for the people is not an impossible ideal. And on the other hand, by failing to lead a purer national existence, the country will be doing an inestimable harm by retarding the growth of popular government in the rest of the world."

New Orleans, he declared, is destined to become probably the greatest seaport town in the western hemisphere.

BLISTERED FEET CAUSE BLOOD POISONING CASE

NEW YORK, March 11.—Physicians have given up all hope for A. Harold Vernam, son of the late Albert H. Vernam, president of the First National Bank of Morristown, N. J., who is lying ill at his home. Mr. Vernam, who is prominent in Morristown, New York society, blistered his feet last fall when attempting to walk for a wager with Josiah Macy, secretary of the Morris County Golf club, from Far Hills to Morristown. At Mendham he had been picked up by an automobile. Blood poisoning resulted from the foot sores contracted. He is associated with the New York brokerage house of H. E. Edwards & Co. Because of his illness the dance at the Morris County Golf club tonight has been abandoned.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE.) SACRAMENTO, March 11.—The representatives of the Oakland Builders' Exchange have been denied relief by the sub-committee of the judiciary committee of the Senate in an attempt to amend the Kehoe bill, No. 273, relating to mechanics' liens, and will fight the measure on the floor of the Senate. They say they will defeat the measure. They appeared before the judiciary committee this evening when the sub-committee offered a number of amendments to the bill, limiting the responsibility of the owner to the amount of the contract and requiring the contractor to give a bond. The request of the delegation for an amendment protecting the contractor and the material man equally with the owner greatly to the displeasure of the visitors, was ignored. The builders thereupon withdrew and decided to carry the fight against the bill to the floor of the Senate. The Oakland delegation comprised Hugh Hegan, L. N. Cobblehead and several others.

TIDELAND BILLS.

WHALING BARKS SAIL FOR NORTH

Jeanette and Gayhead Pass Through Golden Gate for Annual Cruise.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Each fully manned with an optimistic crew, the whaling barks Jeanette and Gayhead raised their anchors this afternoon and sailed out through the Golden Gate for the annual cruise to the north.

The Jeanette, which had been commanded by the old Nantucket whaling skipper, Captain Charles Foley, for the last few years, went out in charge of Captain Porter, himself one of the few survivors of the old school that a few decades ago made the Atlantic port famous. The Jeanette will proceed direct to the Arctic in a hunt for oil and bone. Captain Foley, though grieved to see the old craft put to sea without him, will probably follow a little later with another command.

The Gayhead, which is in charge of Captain Wing, will sail direct to the Japanese coast, where Wing expects to accumulate a full cargo of sperm oil.

SCHOONER HUME A TOTAL WRECK

The Hume is a total loss. Captain Hansen is remaining with the wreck, superintending the salvage of the cargo. Lucian W. Wooster, a retired naval officer living at Los Angeles, was among the passengers. There were seven cabin passengers from New York, 21 from Ancon, Mexican and Central American ports and 16 stevedore travelers. There were 1100 tons of general cargo, including 1400 bags of coffee, 33 bundles of hides, 237 boxes of limes, 157 sacks of pepper, 351 crates of tomatoes and treasure to the value of $2,500.

CORRECT TIME FOR SHIPPING

The Monster Clock in Skyscraper Will Regulate New York Harbor.

NEW YORK, March 11.—By day and night the correct time is to be signalled throughout the length and breadth of New York harbor for the benefit of its enormous traffic. The captains and officers of its great fleet of ships are obliged to consult various clocks ashore at present, without any single standard.

It is proposed to establish a master clock at the top of one of the great skyscrapers—either the Metropolitan Tower or the Whitehall building—high above the city sky line to be visible in all directions. The time will be supplied by the United States Naval Observatory at Washington. By day, a giant time ball will drop, at fixed intervals, while at night the hour will be flashed over an enormous area. Arrangements are being made by Lieutenant Ridgely Hunt, U. S. N., at the Branch Hydrographic Office, New York. The master clock will thus fix the time for thousands of marine clocks and watches.

Deceptive Clearing-House Reports.

When Judge Lovett, the President of the Harriman railroad system, recently addressed the directors of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, he made a special allusion to the manner in which he had been deceived as to the commercial and financial status of this city by the weekly reports of the bank clearings and that, until he had been enlightened by those members of his staff who had a thorough knowledge of actual conditions here, he had labored under the impression that a community which showed a weekly business in the clearing-house reports of the country of only approximately $3,500,000, was not entitled to a $275,000 passenger depot at its main entrance. This reference to the published clearing-house reports shows the important bearing they have on the minds of those controlling the great transportation systems of the country, eastern kings of finance and investors residing abroad, who have no means of understanding the real amount of business actually transacted in Oakland and Alameda county and reconciling the clearing-house reports with the claims as to population.

The clearing-house reports show that the total business done each week on this side of the bay—in trade and commerce and in the products of the soil and of the vast and important industries located here—average only $10 per capita. This showing is, of course, misleading and ridiculous. If there had been any doubt lurking in Judge Lovett's mind regarding the representations which had been made to him by his chief aids that the Bradstreet clearing-house reports were totally unreliable as an index to the volume of business and the value of the industrial products of Oakland and its environs, it was wholly dispelled when he visited the city and saw for himself the bustling crowds in its business thoroughfares, the streams of people passing in and out of its banks and the broad and continuous line of prosperous manufacturing industries stretching for ten or fifteen miles along its waterfront. That was convincing evidence, and he left Oakland with a vastly different idea regarding its business importance, from the standpoint of a financier and a railroad man, than he had been harbored from reading the weekly clearing-house reports.

A year or so ago, the American Banker's Magazine sent out a representative to Oakland to make a special investigation of the financial situation here and in other bay cities and reconcile, if possible, the apparent inconsistency between the claimed population and the clearing-house reports. The bankers on both sides of the bay furnished him with all the facilities to get at the true facts. The investigation showed conclusively that Oakland was then doing actually from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 more business weekly than the clearing-house reports indicated, and the credit for this was given to the San Francisco clearing-house because of the practice in vogue by thousands of families resident on this side of the bay by drawing checks on San Francisco banks, where the head of each household had an open bank account, in payment for household supplies. The same course, he discovered, was carried out by the greater number of the manufacturers located on this side of the bay, for the reason that their main offices are located in San Francisco. All such checks, he found also, passed through the San Francisco clearing-house, swelling that city's clearings inordinately and reducing Oakland's correspondingly.

The only way to correctly clear up the situation and give Oakland credit for that which it is justly entitled to is for the Oakland and Alameda banks to combine in the employment of a clerk in the San Francisco clearing-house to check up daily such checks on San Francisco banks as represent Oakland and Alameda county business. Then Oakland will come fairly to its own.

Unfortunately, only the principal banks in Oakland are members of the clearing-house here, and possibly no unity of action will be taken to reach actual facts until all of the banks doing business in the county join the clearing-house. But the cost of establishing an Oakland or Alameda county check on the clearing-house across the bay would produce results of immense importance and benefit to Oakland and its neighboring cities and place them in an entirely new business light abroad.

If the health office is sincere in its investigation into the quality of the milk delivered by the various dairies to their customers, the samples to be analyzed by the city chemist should be obtained from consumers, not from the dairy wagons, in order to get correct results. Most of the dairies are delivering milk that is almost absolutely destitute of cream, showing positively that it has passed through the separator before being sent out for delivery.

This winter's rainstorms have been hard on the railroads, floods and landslides sweeping out bridges, damaging road beds and blocking traffic in almost all directions. Their losses will amount to an enormous sum of money, but the moving later on of the extraordinary big crops which promise to follow the big rainfall will amply compensate them.

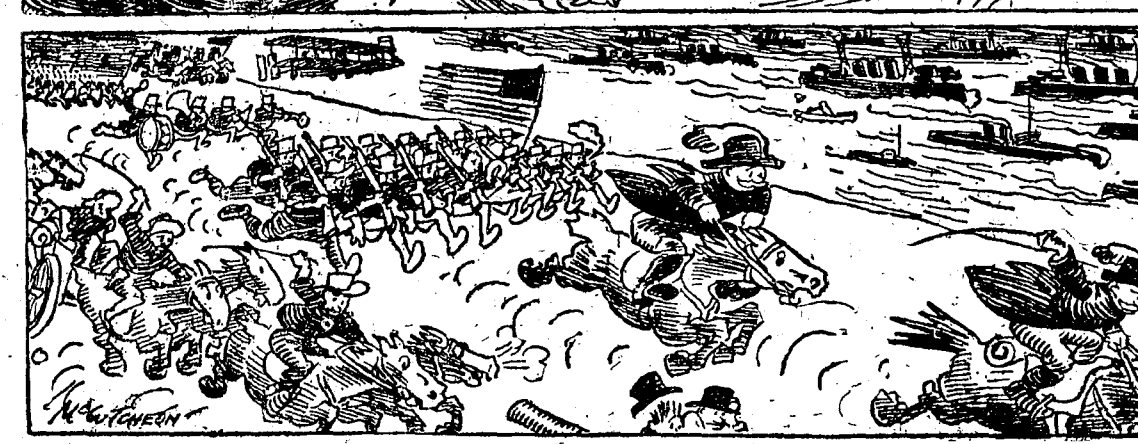

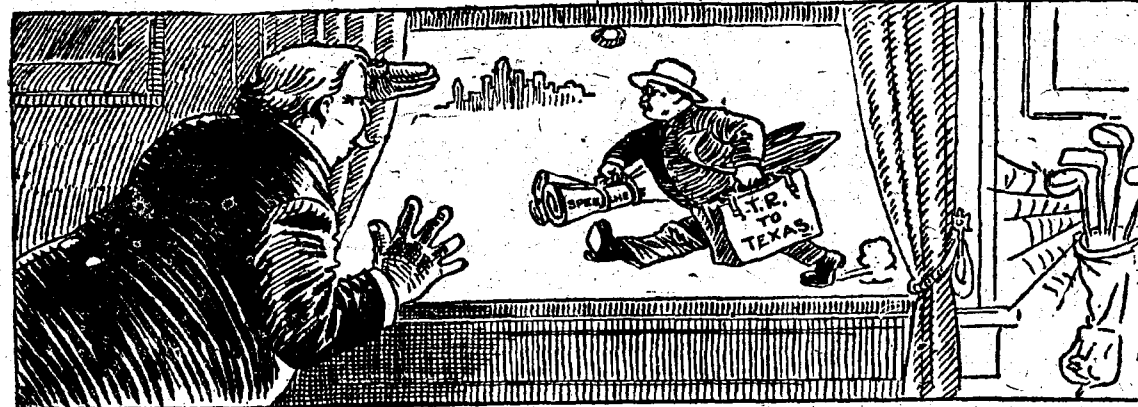

The return of fair weather is hailed as a godsend by baseball players and fans who have chafed immeasurably during the prolonged succession of rainstorms.

Sunshiny weather and growing pastures ought to have the effect of reducing the cost and improving the quality of dairy products sold to consumers.

Oakland's Hotel Development.

It might as well be stated and it should be known that transbay influences stopped the completion of the Claremont tourist hotel and delayed the construction of the Oakland (Bankers') hotel. The promoters of both enterprises did the foolish thing of consulting the promoters of the big hotels across the bay as to what they thought of the prospect of the two hotels on this side of the bay. Of course, the answer was discouraging, as the promoters of the big San Francisco hotels intended it should be, and the promoters of the big Oakland tourist and commercial hotels got cold feet, which gave the other fellows a chance to develop and mature their plans. Since they have been laughing at Oakland's hotel builders up their sleeves. But the way plans are shaping their laugh will be of short duration. The construction of the Oakland hotel is under full headway and its completion assured and the Claremont tourist hotel, which was started over five years ago and ought to have been a revenue producing proposition to its stockholders years ago, is now in a fair way of being finished. These two hostleries, when they are ready to receive guests, will attract the latter from every part of the globe, because of the superiority of the climate on this side of the bay and the picturesque character of their environments and their easy and expeditious access to all of the bay cities and the amusement attractions which they possess, for Oakland's playhouses are today in no sense inferior to those of San Francisco. If our own hotel promoters had only been possessed of a timely nerve there would have been nothing to the hotel development across the bay.

An Englishman on American Speech.

There has been considerable discussion of late in the American press about singing opera in English. Commenting on this a London newspaper says "vocalizing in the nasal yankee dialect cannot be called singing, or English." It makes other sneering remarks about American musical taste and American peculiarities of speech.

Perhaps this British critic is not so wise as he thinks. We are not perfect in pronunciation and enunciation over here, nor do we claim that there is uniformity of speech in this country. But in what respect can England claim superiority? There is nothing in America to compare with the argot of the Whitechapel district. No such divergences in speech can be found in this country as the harsh dialects encountered in Cornwall, Yorkshire, Cumberland, Lancashire and the broad, throaty accents to be heard in the southern counties of England. Some of the American colloquialisms the Londoner terms barbarous are survivals of the English of an earlier period brought over by the colonists. They are not indigenous to this country but came out of England before the language had been smoothed down and dressed up.

It is notorious that the best English in the United Kingdom is spoken in Dublin, but even there it is spoken with a brogue. In Glasgow the common speech is a harsh mixture of husky Saxon and Highland gibberish. It resembles correct English about as nearly as a Highlander's bonnet resembles a grenadier's shako. Opera sung in that dialect would be a joke sure enough, though not quite so vulgar and unintelligible as the slang spoken around Trafalgar Square. The speech of the Cockney costermonger probably sounds quite correct to the captious London editor. At any rate nothing resembling it is heard in the United States.

A nine-year-old Los Angeles boy who was crippled for life through the carelessness of a Standard Oil company's driver has just recovered a verdict for $20,000 damages from the corporation, whom the Superior Court jury before which the suit was tried held responsible for the act of its agent. Whether or not the Standard Oil company will pay the damages awarded the boy as a balm for crippling him remains to be seen. If it does, it will be an exception to the rule. Corporations are notoriously soulless, and it is just in such cases as the one adjudicated in Los Angeles that the popular adage regarding their lack of a soul is usually demonstrated. If the regular policy is carried out, the oil monopoly will, through retrials and appeals to higher courts, put off the day of settlement indefinitely until the plaintiff's patience shall have been exhausted and he will be ready to compromise on any sum it may offer to pay.

Commenting on the fact that the supplies of live stock received at the great slaughter markets show an increase of fourteen per cent, while prices have gone down from twenty to thirty per cent, the Springfield Republican says it is pertinent to inquire of the whereabouts of the meat trust which was popularly supposed to be responsible for last year's high prices. There is a meat trust which does the best it can to keep up prices, but some things are impossible. The enormous corn crop of 1910 is being turned into beef and pork which increases the meat supply. This additional supply must be marketed and prices had to be lowered to increase consumption. The big corn crop is responsible both for the increased meat supply and the drop in prices.

Senator Bailey will have hard work explaining to his Texas constituents why he tried to let New Mexico, a Republican territory, into the Union while laboring with all his might to keep Arizona, a Democratic Territory, out. The Texas Democrats do not understand the kind of party loyalty Senator Bailey's conduct displays.

The Des Moines Capital says Senator Bourne of Oregon is suffering from a bad case of liver complaint. That accounts for the political bile on the Senator's stomach.

He Is a Great Bookman

During the past week there was stopping at the Palace one of the best known of American bibliophiles, Edmund D. Brooks of Minneapolis. If Brooks had happened to be a successful dealer in beans or buttons instead of in rare books and manuscripts, his presence in San Francisco would have been extensively advertised, but as it was he moved in a small and select coterie where ostentation is rigidly banned and departed as quietly as he came. Brooks is a familiar figure in the bookshops of London, Paris and New York. J. Pierpont Morgan, Harry Widener of Philadelphia and Solicitor General Lehmann are among the men who eagerly bid for the treasures which are constantly coming into his hands. He took the occasion of his wife's sojourn in Redlands to pay a visit to this city and was a good deal entertained in an informal way. His wife's sister, by the way, is Miss E. E. Brooks, a teacher at Mills College. Book collectors all over the country know Brooks' place in Minneapolis to the time of his tragic death. Upon was drowned about two years ago in Lake Minnetonka and the first intimation of his fate came when some of the manuscript poems which he carried at the time were picked up wet and water-stained, on the shore of the lake. Brooks was formerly a banker but his bibliophilic tastes led him into his present business. Once a year he goes abroad and returns laden with tempting items for his wealthy clients.—Town Talk.

Some of His Treasures

One of the most interesting items which Brooks brought with him to San Francisco was the original manuscript of "The Last Rose of Summer" in Tom Moore's handwriting. The text differs somewhat from that finally adopted by the poet. I think it is too bad that one of our millionaires of Irish descent didn't secure this prize when it was within reach. Brooks also had with him an unpublished lyric by Thackeray. It is a poem of five stanzas in the best style of the author. An unpublished manuscript of Carlyle's, a collection of unpublished letters by Charles Lamb; a collection of letters written by Whistler to a pupil and so far unpublished, a first edition of Holbein's Dance of Death with original drawing by Leuch bound in a first edition of Gulliver's Travels in two volumes, a manuscript of Sir Edwin Arnold's, an original miniature of George Eliot with a lock of her hair enclosed and several first editions of Dickens with the rare green covers bound in were among the other rarities upon which friends of Brooks were allowed to feast their eyes during his visit here. Brooks attended the recent auction of the first editions collected by F. D. Brandon, the local attorney, and bought a number of volumes. He was surprised at some of the high prices obtained and characterized this city as a fruitful field for the dealer in rare books.—Town Talk.

A Maid's Caustic Criticism

Shortly before her marriage to Templeton Crocker Miss Helene Irwin attended a very fashionable ball and had the misfortune to lose a diamond earring. Thinking that she might have dropped it in the ladies' dressing room she hurried there and acquainted the maid with her loss. The maid was sympathetic but pessimistic. "I don't think you'll ever find it," she said. "Why?" asked Miss Irwin. "Because there's an awful tough crowd here tonight," was the calm reply.—Town Talk.

THE HUNDRED-POINT MAN

(By ELBERT HUBBARD.)

THE other day I wrote to a banker friend inquiring as to the responsibility of a certain person. The answer came back thus: "He is a hundred-point man in everything and anything he undertakes." I read the telegram and then pinned it up over my desk, where I could see it. That night it sort of stuck in my memory. I dreamed of it. The next day I showed the message to a fellow I knew pretty well and said, "I'd rather have that said of me than to be called a great this or that."

Oliver Wendell Holmes has left on record the statement that you could not throw a stone on Boston Common without coming on three poets, two essayists and a playwright. The hundred-point man are not so plentiful.

The hundred-point man is the antithesis of the average man. He is being wronged, that some one has it in for him and that the world is down on him. He is given to that which is strange, peculiar, uncertain, eccentric and erratic.

Hundred-point men may vary much in ability, but this is always true—they are safe men to deal with, whether drivers of drays, motormen, clerks, cashiers, engineers or presidents of railroads.

Paranoids are people who are suffering from fatty enlargement of the ego. They want the best seats in the synagogue, they demand bouquets, compliments, obeisance, and in order to see what the papers will say next morning they sometimes obligingly commit suicide.

The hundred-point man is the antithesis of the average man. He is being wronged, that some one has it in for him and that the world is down on him. He is given to that which is strange, peculiar, uncertain, eccentric and erratic.

The hundred-point man may not look just like all other men, or dress like them, or talk like them, but what he does is true to his own nature. He is himself.

He is more interested in doing his work than in what people will say about it. He does not consider the gallery. He acts his thought and thinks little of the act.

I never knew a hundred-point man who was not one brought up from early youth to make himself useful and to economize in matter of time and money.

Necessity is ballast. The paranoid, almost without exception, is one who has been made exempt from work. He has been petted, waited upon, coddled, cared for, laughed at and chuckled to.

The excellence of the old-fashioned big family was that no child got an undue amount of attention. The antique idea that the child must work for his parents until the day he was twenty-one was a deal better for the youth than to let him get it into his head that his parents must work for him.

Nature intended that we should all be poor—that we should earn our bread every day before we eat it.

When you find the hundred-point man you will find one who lives like a person in moderate circumstances, no matter what his finances are. Every man who thinks he has the world by the tail and is about to snap it, is a demagogue head off for the delectation of mankind, is unsafe, no matter how great his genius in the line of specialties.

The hundred-point man looks after just one individual, and that is the man under his own hat; he is one who does not spend money until he earns it; who pays his way; who knows that nothing is ever given for nothing; who keeps his digits off other people's property. When he does not know what to say, why, he says nothing, and when he does not know what to do, does not do it.

We should mark on moral qualities not merely mental attainment or proficiency, because in the race of life only moral qualities count. We should rate on judgment, application and intent. Men by habit and nature who are untrue to a trust are dangerous just in proportion as they are clever. I would like to see a university devoted to turning out safe men instead of merely clever ones.

How would it do for a college to give one degree, and only one, to those who are worthy, the degree of H. P.? Would it not be worth striving for, to have a college president say of you, over his own signature: "He is a hundred-point man in everything and anything that he undertakes?"

Elbert Hubbard

20 YEARS AGO IN OAKLAND

A charming party was given last evening at the residence of Mrs. Adams, 822 Fifteenth street, in honor of Miss Nellie Moore. Among those present were: Horace Allen, R. E. Allen, L. Allen, H. Allen, Misses Blanchard, Louis H. Jones, Charles A. Katzenbach, Miss Besse Katzenbach, Miss Susie Hobart, Sam P. Leach, W. F. Dingley and Miss Maude Byrnes.

The people of Oakland have for years been paying from $20,000 to $60,000 each year to swell the receipts of the San Francisco postoffice. The result is, that the receipts of that office are yearly between $800,000 and $900,000, with a population of less than 300,000, while Oakland with a population of over 50,000 has heretofore contributed but an average of $40,000 for the support of its office.

Jack Kilrain knocked out George Godfrey at the California Club last night after a hard-fought battle of 44 rounds for a purse of $5000—$3500 to the winner and the rest to the loser. It was a hard-fought battle throughout, as neither man had much advantage as far as boxing skill went.

James E. Crane, county clerk, has bought, through M. J. Layman & Co., two lots in the Piedmont tract, upon which he expects to erect a fine residence in the near future.

C. P. Cook, the artist, is sketching for a prominent San Francisco auctioneer a prospective view of what some of the sand hills in the vicinity of Golden Gate Park will be ten years hence. Mr. Cook's pencil levels those glistening heaps of drifted sand, builds streets and paves them and strews them with buildings not much inferior to those that now line Van Ness avenue or Sutter street. All for the benefit of the auctioneer.

Rev. Edward Everett Hale, the eminent preacher and philanthropist, who will be heard in Oakland next Friday evening at the First Congregational church, is a man of remarkable versatile talents, indomitable energy and lofty aim.

Those present at the meeting of the Oakland Benevolent Society last evening were: E. W. Playter, M. J. Holcomb, M. K. Keller, Rev. C. W. Wendt, Otto Von Lenche, Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. Betts, Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Scotchler, Mrs. Dick and Mrs. Williams.

Jova H. Tuttle of the postoffice is a candidate to the appointment of clerk of the board of public works.

H. F. Moreau has contracted for the erecting of a house on Willow street and San Jose avenue, Alameda, for $2600, and Lester W. Forsting has contracted with H. S. Kribbs to build him a house on the Fifty Associates' tract to cost $2425.

The two pitchers of the New Oakland arrived yesterday. G. B. Stephens of the Tacoma Club of last year and W. M. Garfield of the Cleveland team. The remainder of the team will not be here until so late the Fresno trip will have to be abandoned.

Of the 1239 prisoners at the Federal prison near Atlanta, only one died during the past year. That is one of the interesting features of the annual report of Warden Moyer, recently published in the Constitution.

Those figures do not, of course, mean that there was no sickness at the prison. During the year 14,323 cases of varying severity were reported, and 25,937 prescriptions were dispensed.

It is extremely doubtful if a similar number of individuals enjoying their freedom ever have shown, or ever will show, so low a death-rate.

And yet, there is no reason why the average community should not attain at least a relative approximation to the prison statistics.

The explanation of the remarkable hygienic conditions thus reported lies in the rigid regime enforced by prison regulations. The men who involuntarily entered therein, are, literally, sentenced to health, as a rule, unless their constitutions are broken beyond repair before the doors close on them.

Regular hours—regular time for rising, for retiring, ample sleep, sensible diet, freedom from dissipation or excesses—these are the influences that make for health, anywhere, whether in prison or under the blue canopy of heaven.

It is even reported that a distinguished prisoner who, some years ago, entered the institution in the last stages of locomotor ataxia, usually regarded as incurable, has been restored to health. Had he succeeded in staying on the "outside" it is likely he would now have been in his grave.

All of which does not, necessarily, mean that the health-care should apply for admission to a penitentiary. But the temperance and sanitary features that are necessary at such institutions are well worth remembering for their practical value.—Atlanta Constitution.

FATIGUE AS A MALADY

Fatigue, following long continued exercise, is really a mild form of illness, which arises from over exerting some part of the body. Every strain mental or physical, requires a certain amount of time for recovery; and if a sufficient period is not allowed between repeated efforts there results a certain clogging or congestion of the tissues about the points of tension. In writing, for instance, the fingers move up and down hardly more than a quarter of an inch as they travel across the page. Yet this is hard work for their little muscles, and burns up tissues in the fingers very fast.

If rest intervals are too short and infrequent, there is not time for the removal of the waste products of this destruction through the normal channels of the body, and congestion results. This waste material is in effect somewhat poisonous, as it tends to decompose; that is, break up into several simple chemical elements and gases. The feeling of fatigue or pain that follow long continued use of any of the muscles is due to the influence of such poisonous material as well as to the stretching of the tissues caused by the pressure of the blood which settles there.—Atlantic.

MANY TO ATTEND HYGIENE EXHIBIT

Tuberculosis Fighters Coming From Far-Away Rome to Convention.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Word was received today from the headquarters of the Seventh Triennial International Congress on Tuberculosis at Rome that an American committee of one hundred members of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has been appointed, and that preparations have been made for the special participation of the United States in the exhibition of Social Hygiene which will be held under the auspices of the Congress. The dates of the congress are from September 24 to 30, but the exhibition will probably open on June 1st and will continue until February 28, 1912.

The American committee of one hundred has been selected from practically every state in the United States. In addition to this committee it is expected that the Federal Government will also send official representatives to the congress and probably several of the states will take similar action. The headquarters of the American committee are in the office of the National Association, New York City.

GREATEST OF KIND.

The exhibition of Social Hygiene will be the greatest of its kind that has ever been assembled. Among the different sections of the exhibition are those on tuberculosis, general prophylaxis, history of the hygienic movement, and the prevention of disease in general. The exhibition will cover a large area fronting Piazza Cavour. The authorities in charge of the exhibition are planning to set aside a separate pavilion for the United States exhibits provided these are numerous enough. All of the 500 state and local anti-tuberculosis committees allied with the National Association will be asked to contribute to this exhibition. Other bodies engaged in the campaign against preventable disease and for the betterment of public health will also be asked to contribute. The committee in charge of the exhibition has extended the time for the reservation of space until March 31 and the time for the receipt of material to June 30.

MANY COMMITTEES.

Committees similar to the one appointed in the United States have been designated in over thirty different countries and representatives at the congress will be present from every civilized section of the world. The exhibition and congress will be a part of a general celebration extending over several months, to commemorate the founding of Italian liberty. The entire movement will be held under the patronage of the King and Queen of Italy.

Any inquiries concerning application for membership in the congress and space in the exhibition should be addressed to the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 105 East 22d street, New York City.

March Wind Sends Six to Hospitals

NEW YORK, March 11.—Six New Yorkers are in uptown hospitals today as the result of the pranks of boisterous March winds. Three of them were struck by falling signs. The Rev. John J. Frey, a Brooklyn preacher, lost his balance while attempting to catch his hat and was blown down an embankment. Alexander Pearson, 5 years old, was blown off a bridge into the East river and rescued by a life saver. Joseph Arelio, an East Sider, was caught by a gale of wind as he was coming down the stairway from the elevated station and fell thirty feet to the pavement below.

BIBLE STUDENT IS DEAD.
CHICAGO, March 11.—Rev. Charles Little, president of Garret Biblical Institute of Northwestern University, well known educator, author and lecturer, died in Evanston today of heart disease. He was born in Philadelphia, September 21, 1840.

PIGEONS WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD

San Antonio Man Pays $12.50
Each for Birds He Confiscated.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 11.—Pigeons at $12.50 each makes the much-sought dish of squabs almost as expensive as the fabled hash of humming bird tongues. Sammie Uvalde paid $12.50 each for two pigeons in this city yesterday, and it is understood that the birds are just ordinary plebeian pigeons without any pedigree showing that they belonged to the royal bird family.

Uvalde did not think the birds were worth the money but the judge of the corporation court did under the circumstances by which they became the property of Uvalde. The two birds were taken from the coop of a grocery company when nobody connected with the institution was present and under the circumstances the court decided that Uvalde had fractured the law $25 worth and the accused man was tagged for that amount.

While values have been mounting in this part of the country for some months and the price of pigeons no doubt has

FARMER NEARLY LOSES HIS HEAD

Blow on Skull With Hatchet
While Sleeping Almost Causes Murder.

SAN JOSE, March 11.—While Henry W. Whipple, a farmer residing on the Alameda Road, a few miles south of this city, was soundly sleeping in his bed at 3 o'clock this morning he was awakened by a blow on the head with a hatchet. His yell of fright brought the housekeeper and the hired man, and the person who had crept into his room and assailed him succeeded in getting hurriedly away. Whipple will recover.

ROYAL BOYCOTT ON ITALY LIFTED

Emperor Wilhelm Changes His Mind and Will Visit Rome.

(By CAMILLO CIANFARRO.)
ROME, March 11.—The royal boycott of Italy which month ago seemed impending and which, if it had been carried into effect, would have robbed the festivities of the fiftieth anniversary of Italian independence of half their glory, has happily been lifted.

The story of the impending boycott and its removal is remarkable. On December last, secret notes to the chanceries of Europe informed the several governments that during 1911 the doors of the Vatican would remain closed to Princes and Kings or any other exalted personage visiting the Eternal City. As an evidence of the sentiment with which the Vatican looked on this event, modern Italy was preparing to celebrate.

The Vatican had hardly expressed its view of the festivities when a strange duel began between the Italian and the Pontifical diplomats. Ambassadors and ministers on the one side and nuncios and apostolic delegates on the other, both tried with the utmost skill to achieve their respective ends.

INSIDE HISTORY.

The inside history of this diplomatic duel will not be told for many years to come. At present the situation indicates that for some time the efforts of the Italian diplomatic corps were successfully mutualized by the shrewd members of the Vatican diplomatic service.

For a time, indeed, it looked as though the Vatican had prevailed upon the monarchs of Europe to remain away from Rome and news came from several capitals that they were visiting the Greek island. Similar intimations were next made about King Albert of Belgium and King Haakon of Norway. The first was to spend his usual fortnight on the Riviera and the other a month or so at his villa at Capri, but nothing was said of a visit to Rome.

Then the lay diplomacy backed by popular and press opinion seemed to prevail, and it was learned that the Kaiser had changed his mind and the intricate situation was solved by the remarkably certainty that Emperor William would visit Rome as a concession to the democratic press of both Germany and Italy.

STEAMER BATTLES WITH ELEMENTS

Waves More Than 100 Feet
High Sweep Suruga's Deck.

BOSTON, March 11.—It is a tale of unusually boisterous winter seas that the Barber line steamer Suruga, from Manila and Singapore brings to port here today, accounting for extensive damage to the vessel.

Waves more than a hundred feet high swept the deck on March 7, Captain Best said, and he pointed out the results of the loss of the deck houses and ventilators, smashed woodwork, battered life boats and ruin in cabins and quarters. Even the saloon bulkhead, constructed of heavy steel, gave way under the heavy onslaught.

Captain Best was four days and nights without sleep, on duty continually in pilot house. The vessel has a cargo of 25,000 bales of hemp.

PLATINUM LEAPS HIGH IN PRICE

Metal Quoted at $43 Ounce in Maiden Lane; Production
Small.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Platinum, which now is far more costly than gold, has been advancing rapidly in price in the last few weeks. It is quoted in Maiden Lane at $43 an ounce for the hard platinum and $41 an ounce for the soft metal. These are the highest prices ever reached, and indicate an advance of about $10 an ounce in the last six months.

The present upward movement in platinum was nearly equalled several years ago. In 1905, pure platinum was selling at $18.50 with only a languid demand. Early in 1906, the sales began to increase and prices steadily advanced until in December of that year, pure platinum was selling at $38 an ounce, and hard platinum touched $40. Then a decline started and continued until 1908, when the price declined to less than $20 an ounce. The present upward movement started soon afterwards.

The production of platinum in this country is small, for all that is obtained comes as a by-product in working the gold placers of California and Oregon. The chief source of supply is the Ural

It is to be completed in February, 1913, and will have a frontage of 375 feet with a depth of 335 feet.

The site adjoins that of the new Pennsylvania railroad station at Eighth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, and the architecture of the two buildings is similar. Nearly 2000 men will be employed in the various departments. The Pennsylvania railroad will run its mail trains directly into the basement.

Talks on Teeth

BY REX DENTAL CO. (Incorporated.)

He Forgot His Teeth Troubles

A prominent physician of Alameda, Dr. C. A. Stevens, recently sent us that greatly to be desired thing, an unsolicited testimonial.

He has a set of REX DENTAL CO.'S Alveolar teeth (without plates) put in by us some time ago, and his letter deserves to be given in full, but space forbids.

But a quotation or two will be helpful to you, perhaps, if you are halting between two opinions, viz.: A dentist who believes in printers' ink and one of those "family" dentists who hold forth in the front room at home.

"Incompetent dentist," he says, "with an insane desire to dig holes in my teeth"—(you know those fellows).

"I lost six perfectly good teeth because dentists sawed them off to make way for 'bridges.'" (Many a victim can say "Here, too," to this statement.)

And, after saying what he thought of the butchers who had mutilated his mouth, he turns to the other, the pleasant side of the picture, and says: "I have had a set of Alveolar teeth put in by you, and now have forgotten my tooth troubles!"

He could have closed his letter right there and have told the whole story.

People so fortunate—remember this—we say fortunate—as to get into our offices and have their teeth saved, instead of losing them, are to be numbered among those whose teeth troubles are forgotten.

The Alveolar teeth supply those which are lost, and they don't make one conscious of having artificial teeth in the mouth. They are so placed as to be natural in looks and feeling.

They are not false teeth, such as you see in some mouths, but match in shape, size, color and other characteristics Nature's teeth.

Even those who know the wearer intimately, would never guess that the Rex Dental Co.'s Alveolar teeth were not real.

Now a word to you, who may have read this far:

Will you give us the benefit of the doubt and come in for an examination?

Come out of curiosity. There are none of the "dental parlor" methods in practice here. You come on business—a serious business—and we want you to feel that your coming entails no obligation to spend a penny. We can't diagnose your case at long range—but don't look upon a visit as carrying with it any sense of putting us to trouble.

We are here to explain the virtues and blessings of a new plan of dentistry (seven years old) which has made thousands forget their teeth troubles.

The free book is for those who cannot call in person. It is the next best thing to a visit—and paves the way.

Mail us coupon for "ALVEOLAR" booklet.

EAST SEES BRIGHT FUTURE FOR CITY

New York Paper Predicts Greater Oakland Will Soon Be Reality.

The following is taken from the Mercantile and Financial Times of New York:

Oakland.—From San Leandro bay, on the east, to Antioch on the north, the main-land shore of San Francisco bay makes a tremendous circular sweep, forming an arc not less than forty miles from point to point. All this is water frontage, full of wharf, dock, railroad terminal, manufacturing and industrial potentialities. And in its midst is Oakland, California—the commercial land's-end of central California's ocean front.

At present only a small portion of this great meeting place for sea-going vessels and trans-continental railroad freight carriers is utilized; but great things are stirring and the beginning of a movement that certainly will place Oakland to the fore as a national and international seaport of supreme importance, is discernable. Younger members of the present generation will live to see astonishing changes here, when, with the Panama canal open to the world's traffic, with the Orient aroused to its industrial and trade advantages, and with great American commercial fleets steaming on the highways and lanes of the Pacific, that ocean shall become more important, even as it is larger than the Atlantic.

GREATER OAKLAND.

By that time, too, all the smaller cities and towns on the hither side of this splendid land-locked, deep-water bay will be included in a Greater Oakland, whose commercial, industrial, warehousing, railroad and shipping interests will bear much the same relation to San Francisco and the western country that those of Jersey City and Hoboken, with Brooklyn, Williamsburg and other western Long Island cities all together bear to New York and the east. San Francisco will be the main port of the western American, resort of pleasure seekers and tourists, a place of great financial and commercial importance; and with land area bound down and little (as is Manhattan) room for the very waters which give to the opposite shore its unlimited possibilities of supremacy in industrial railroad and shipping affairs.

This is not a prophetic mind you, nor merely a fanciful tale of what may take place in the future; it is fact, and already so evident in its beginnings that none but the most ignorant fails to see and sense the developments that are taking place and that will continue to take place until the conditions outlined have been reached—yes, and surpassed.

HILL OPTIMISTIC.

Mr. James J. Hill, who certainly knows all about railroad matters, saw his road enter Oakland last April, says that the most serious problem confronting railroads today relates to adequate terminal facilities. That problem is satisfactorily solved in Oakland, at least. For it is upon the Oakland side of San Francisco bay that all the big railroads terminate; and here too, are located such colossal industries as the Standard Oil company's plant that is fast becoming the largest in the world; the California Wine Association, another worldwide industry; the only cotton mills in the west, and one of the country's largest; big iron foundries; shipbuilding plants—one of which is giving practical evidence of its capacity by repairing the government transport Thomas, and employing over eight hundred men on the job. The great Pullman corporation has not only chosen the Oakland side of the bay as the site for its far western activities, but has just completed here a plant that in size and importance is exceeded only by the works at Pullman, Illinois. There are many other significant industries operating on this side, and still more are coming; though space does not admit of our mentioning them in detail.

CHEAP FUEL PROBLEM.

But, why all this? Largely because the cheap fuel factor in California has been solved by the development here of the greatest oil territory ever discovered in any country. This oil fuel is produced in the central part of the State and from the wells it is flowed by pipe lines directly to Point Richmond, a suburb of Oakland, and thence piped to the hundreds of factories at present in and around Oakland.

With regard to Oakland's residential advantages—which mean so much to the owners, managers and employees of great industrial establishments—nothing could be better. From the almost level lands that gently slope up from

DANCE GIVEN BY AID ASSOCIATION

Several Guests From Other Councils Visit Oakland Organization.

The members of the Fraternal Aid Association held their weekly meeting last Friday evening at their hall on Thirteenth street, the occasion being devoted to whist and dancing. Several guests from other councils of the organization were present, among others being Mr. and Mrs. Folk and Dr. E. L. Lichty of San Francisco, and a large delegation from Richmond. At the next meeting of the Oakland council, Friday evening, March 17, the initiation of ten candidates will occur.

On Thursday, March 17, the Richmond council will entertain members and friends at an "Irish Tea Party."

Will Discuss Plans To Fight Consumption

A dinner will be given by the Alameda County Society for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis next Thursday evening at the Hotel St. Mark. The purpose of this dinner is to get the members of the organization together for the purpose of discussing future plans. Addresses will be made by the officers of the society and others interested in the work.

The officers are the following: Rev. Clifton Macon, president; Edward von Adelung, M. D., first vice-president; Mrs. Mark Regua, second vice-president; George P. Baxter, treasurer; Miss Annie F. Brown, secretary.

RECEIVED BY NICHOLSON.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Bentley Nicholson, tenor, who was soloist with the Seattle symphony orchestra last season, will give a recital at the Hotel St. Francis Tuesday evening. He will be assisted by Mrs. John Darwin Gish, soprano, and Mrs. Edward B. Young, pianist.

the bay, back over the foothills further inland, no grander home sites can be found. Almost invariably do travelers say that Oakland and the bay and the country round about can be compared to nothing at home or abroad, except the Bay of Naples and its surroundings. And Oakland's climate record proves it to be the most equable place in the United States. It is never very cold nor very hot, but always comfortable and just about right. In fact, Nature seems to have lavished here all the conditions required for the most pronounced development. And far seeing Easterners who appreciate the influences that the Panama Canal and the multiplication and extension of Pacific trade routes has upon this western coast, will know that as New York harbor has been the front door to the Atlantic ocean, so must the San Francisco and Oakland harbor be the front door to the Pacific. And any school child will tell you that, with such an awakening as is taking place in the Orient now, this country must have a front door to the Pacific ocean.

HIBERNIANS WILL HOLD GRAND BALL ST. PATRICK'S DAY

FRANK J. YOEUELL, who will be the floor director of the ball to be given by the Ancient Order of Hibernians the night of March 17.

A sufficient sum of money was voted by the committee for that purpose. Beautiful souvenir flags, emblematic of the day, will be presented all who attend.

The large sale of tickets, as reported by the committee, is very encouraging and a good attendance is assured.

County President John Cox will deliver a short address on "Why We Celebrate St. Patrick's Day." Miss Francis Keith and her Gaelic dancing club are rehearsing daily for the affair. These lads and lassies, dressed in Irish costume, will be the surprise of the evening.

YARDS OF CANVAS FOR CHILI GULCH

Lodge of Moose Hard at Work Building Town of Cloth.

The canvas which will be used in the construction of Chili Gulch, the mining camp to be established by the Local Lodge of Moose in Piedmont pavilion March 30, arrived yesterday and everything is in readiness for starting the work of construction. The size of the camp will be appreciated by the amount of canvas necessary to build it. Yesterday afternoon 65,000 square yards of canvas was unloaded at the big pavilion and according to the plans drawn up more will be necessary. The plans call for the construction of a mining camp as near as possible for an exact reproduction of those of the days of '49. There will be a bank, several gambling halls, saloons, grocery store, variety theater, restaurant and all the other old-time institutions. Nothing will be missing, as the management is determined to make the camp one of the biggest shows ever held in the west. The various candidates for office in Chili Gulch Township are putting in some strenuous days gathering in the stray votes. A number of Insurgent, Stand-Pat, Suffragette and Vigilante clubs have been organized and the lodge members are working faithfully for the success of their candidates. There are four nominees for each office and the competition for honors is very keen. Of course the Suffragette candidates are being subjected to a whole lot of joshing, but they are taking this good naturedly and promise to elect the entire ticket. The Stand-Pats, led by City Councilman Stachler are making a hot campaign and promise to produce a good old landslide in favor of his party.

Russian Government in Fear of Second Boxing Outbreak in Starving China

The great wall at Peking, China, and a victim of the Chinese famine which followed the plague outbreak. Though foreigners are bringing succor and food to the distressed population, the ignorant natives believe they can trace their evils to the introduction of a foreign population into their country.

GREAT WALL PEKING CHINA

Alarming reports come from St. Petersburg of the possibilities of another Boxer outbreak in China. The unrest among the natives grows out of the famine which followed the plague outbreak. Though foreigners are bringing succor and food to the distressed population, the ignorant natives, who have always referred to the civilized as "foreign devils," believe they can trace their evils to the introduction of the foreign population into their country.

The greatest danger, of course, is to the missionaries in the interior. In the treaty ports there is comparative safety. The legation quarter in Peking is now much safer than it was when the last Boxer outbreak occurred. Then the legations were under siege for a long time and only the fears of the Tsung Li Yamen and the absence of modern soldiers prevented the massacre of all the foreign representatives.

ATONE FOR MURDER.

The Chinese atoned for the killing of Baron Ketteler of Germany. But no doubt the government turned the incident to its own advantage in giving accounts of it to the population. Although the legation quarter is better protected now, China has a large modern army which it did not have during the former outbreak.

The present feeling is directed particularly against the Russians because of the reports that Russia will seize northern Manchuria. Ostensibly it is directed against Japan, which is in control of Southern Manchuria, but there is a suspicion that Japan may have had a hand in fomenting the trouble.

HAY MAY COME IN DUTY FREE

Treasury Department Will Give Liberal Construction to $100 Exemption Law.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Under the law, a home-coming American is allowed to bring in $100 worth of merchandise, but the nature of the goods remain in dispute. The head of the Treasury Department once announced that a returning tourist could import $100 worth of hay, if he chose, without paying duty. Under a rigid enforcement of the law this $100 worth of goods has of late been restricted to property of a very personal nature. A toy intended as a present has been judged liable to duty. In the past few days a reaction has set in, and it is now announced that Franklin MacVeagh, Secretary of the Treasury, is preparing a new order to go into effect immediately. It is understood that the new order will allow the tourist much greater liberty than heretofore in spending this $100, even permitting him to import a ton of hay if he chose.

Next Time You Buy a Suit

Remember this, look for a good tailor

If you have a suit now that does not fit, hands under the arms, climbs up around the ears when you sit down, makes you uncomfortable every time you put it on, don't blame anyone but yourself. For only a little more you could have a suit made by BYRON RUTLEY. Every time you put it on you are pleased. It costs more to make that kind of a suit, but it's worth the slight difference in price. We think so. That is why we make high grade clothes. Write us for your next suit and see the difference.

AEROPLANES USED IN HUNT FOR FOX

Americans Are Responsible for Their Successful Introduction at Pau, France.

PARIS, March 11.—Thanks to the American element of the Pau hunt, for the first time in history a fox hunt has been simultaneously on earth and in the air. At the latest meet near Pau two of the planes attended in aeroplanes. Three foxes were found in rapid succession. Lieutenants de Mailherbe and Prineadeau flew their aeroplanes over and after the pack of hounds "with an enthusiasm greater than that which fired the men on horseback. When the fox was killed, though, they were in at the death and with true French rivalry they presented the brush to the first lady who came up. Now arrangements are being made to have a number of aeroplanes, so that the hunt can go on at the same time on the earth and in the air. There are Americans in the Pau hunt, all of whom favor the picturesque innovation. Since the formation of the Pau hunt, three Americans have been members of the hunt, namely, T. Burgess of Boston, Henry Ridgway of Philadelphia, and now Frederick Henry Prince. Among the Americans on horseback when the air hunt was inaugurated were John Wright of Boston, Henry Ridgway's father and son, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert King and the Countess de Gontaut-Bryon, formerly Miss Martha Leishman, daughter of the American ambassador at Rome.

BOY SCOUTS TO GO INTO CAMP

Patrols From San Francisco to Join Those of Alameda County.

Because of weather conditions a scout camp planned for Friday night and yesterday at Melrose, was postponed until next Saturday. Several patrols of California Boy Scouts from San Francisco will join a number of patrols of Boy Scouts from Alameda county, who will be housed in tents supplied by the White Fox patrols of Elmhurst.

Over 100 new California Boy Scouts were enrolled last night at the Armistice Orphanage, San Mateo. Secretary Edward Rainey of the Division of Northern California acted as enrolling officer, assisted by Superintendent William Hutton of Armistice.

Three new troops of scouts were organized on Friday evening. Major Bustace Flexotto, in command of the scouts of the Mission district, various points near San Francisco during the coming weeks. These boys under Major Muller are finely equipped and have received valuable instruction from the Major and his son, Lieutenant William Muller, who has returned to duty in the Philippines after having spent a four months' leave in Elmhurst.

MAJOR FRED R. BURNHAM, who is heading an expedition to Africa for the purpose of bringing animals to this country to domesticate them.

Major Fred R. Burnham, who was chief of scouts of the British army in the Boer war, is heading an interesting expedition to Africa. Burnham is not a faunal naturalist and is not going to slaughter big game by the herd. He proposes instead to tame the wild animals of Africa and so create a new source of food supply.

Interested with Major Burnham in the project are John Hayes Hammond, who formerly lived in Africa, Hammond's son and others in California and Louisiana. It is proposed to bring certain animals to this country and domesticate them.

NATIVES READY TO GIVE CIRCUS

Rich Men and Politicians Will Sell Peanuts and Red Lemonade.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Promptly at 8 o'clock Tuesday night will begin the initial benefit performance of the Al G. Barnes three-ring wild animal circus under the auspices of the Native Sons at the familiar show grounds, Larkin, Hayes and Market streets. From then until and including the following Saturday night will be two performances daily, the matinees beginning at 2 o'clock.

SOME SPECIAL FEATURES.

A herd of elephants reproduce ludicrous scenes in a barber shop, burlesque the workings of the laundry, play musical instruments, stand on their heads and go through a score of specialties.

Barnes, who will be in personal charge of the rings and arena, will also present a challenge troupe of Bengal tigers valued at $20,000.

When seven full-grown bears come on there's more fun. They juggle, dance, give imitations of many human weaknesses, and are quite capable of entertaining an audience for an hour.

Marvels in acrobats are accomplished by a collection of sea lions.

Then there are the high school horses that do cakewalks and stroll about the rings on their hind feet with apparently human ease.

A complete dog and pony circus, assisted by goats, sheep, pigs, etc., is introduced, and is always fascinating to the children.

Professor Nichols' military concert band is also a feature of the big show.

Rich men and politicians, including Mayor McCarthy, will appear with Barnes in the ring, "spiel" on the outside, sell peanuts, lemonade and candy, act as "ballyhoos," ushers and in other ways initiate the "professionals" in the employ of Barnes.

The tailorwork, even to the most trifling detail, is honest and painstaking.

DEAD RESTORED TO LIFE BY SURGERY

DAINTY SUFFRAGETTE WINS PLAUDITS BY FIERY SPEECH

LARGE NUMBER OF MEN IN AUDIENCE

Wave of Approval Bursts Forth
As Energetic English Woman Talks.

Smartly-Gowned Women and Men of Affairs Attend Big Demonstration.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst's lecture on "Votes for Women" at Idora Park last night was heard with great interest by an audience which crowded the theater. At first, slow to show approval, in spite of the hand-clapping that greeted the fragile English suffragette, the audience was won to hearty applause and spontaneous outbursts of approval before the conclusion.

Miss Pankhurst's audience was one composed of well-gowned women and intelligent men of standing. There were many elderly men and a large proportion of women of mature years. Women prominent in club and social life and men of large affairs were numerous throughout the gathering. They listened with sustained interest while the building that has so often echoed to the lilting strains of the "Love Takes of Hoffman" or the arias of grand opera reverberated to a new message in the fire of Miss Pankhurst's words.

MEN ON PLATFORM.

Women and men sat on the platform, which was draped with English and American flags. Miss Pankhurst was introduced by Miss Caroline Jackson, the president of the College Equal Suffrage League, under whose auspices Miss Pankhurst was brought to the city. Those who sat with her were: Professor W. F. Baile of Berkeley, Mrs. A. F. Lange, Mrs. C. Turner, Countess Ellen, Mrs. C. Hall, Mrs. John D. Smith, Mr. F. S. Brush of Alameda, Miss Anita Whitney.

Miss Pankhurst, who was gowned in simple white silk, wearing her hair plainly parted, looked far different from the popular conception of a militant suffragette as she stood alone and told in her unadorned manner of the progress of the woman's suffrage movement in England.

Graphic wit and flashes of irony enlivened her most earnest manner in many parts of her address. Deep feeling was evident in her voice when speaking of the injustices sustained by women wage-earners. She held her hearers breathless with a story of unusual interest and dramatic value from beginning to end. Handclapping interrupted her at unexpected moments in the course of the evening, and at several places, and even feet, added to the sounds of approval many times. Men were fully one-half of the audience, and seemed even more quick than the women to show their approval of a point well made.

LAUGH AT JAIL STORY.

"Suffragettes" was a term frequently used throughout the evening, as if it were a name of honor instead of the sarcastic designation which was originally applied to the equal suffrage adherents. The representative American audience laughed when it heard the words, "The first time I went to jail, from such youthful life. It sounded like a joke to them that a gentle, well-bred woman should be sent to jail. When they heard, however, the story of how those women were threatened with jail the laughter gave way to sounds of sympathy and terror.

"I am glad to know," said Miss Pankhurst, "that you in California are so near to getting the vote. The cause of equal suffrage, which is so necessary, is sure to win."

"Why do we want the vote? For the same reason as men do, and for several reasons in addition. Our reasons are more acute in England. We have been working since 1865, but the movement in America was started before that by such women as Susan E. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Loretta Mot and others.

MEN ORGANIZED WORLD.

"Why do we feel the need of vote? Because men alone have organized the world in which we live and some of its laws press hard upon the women."

"In England a married mother is even the guardian of her child. It was the same in Maine until the women worked fifty years to change it, and the same in Colorado until the women voted."

"Before the shrieking sisterhood, as they called us, tried to change things in England a married woman had almost no legal existence. She could be assaulted, slandered, robbed or cheated and could not protest if her husband had deserted her, because he was the only one who could bring suit in her behalf."

"Even here in California married women have not all their rights. By the law of community property the wife has not the sole right to her earnings or her children."

"In every country women are the underpaid and overworked workers. A ringing tone of the voice and earnest gesture of women workers. 'In some places the wages of women are not enough to support in decency one human being.

LEADS TO CRIME.

"Underpayment leads to loss of self-respect, to worse things. It leads to crime. If women had a vote such conditions would stand more of a chance of improvement."

"When I was in jail," laughter interrupted her for a moment at this statement. She resumed as soon as the house was still, "when I was in jail I met a woman of 76, respected all her life, who was in jail for non-payment of taxes. She could not vote, but she had to pay taxes. It doesn't matter what the law is we have to obey it just like the men.

"Here in America you always say the conditions are not so bad with you—but I want you to know that they are probably worse than you think. Four saws are not what they ought to be for the protection of women workers."

Miss Pankhurst gave a resume of the English political structure on which this slender slip of English womanhood showed a grasp of affairs and understanding of politics usually not thought possible for a woman.

She recounted the rise of the militant suffragette movement in England, from the time when her sister and other women were beaten and thrown out of a cabinet meeting for asking a simple question, until the present day, when the violent methods have been largely abandoned.

JAIL EXPERIENCE.

She told of the time when she and 12 others first went to Holloway jail for the cause, and of the time when the women marched four hundred strong to the House of Commons to present their petition for the vote and were ridden down by the mounted police and dragged away by those on foot from 8 o'clock in the afternoon till 10 o'clock at night. Many other stories of like interest were told.

At the mention of the adage: "Taxation without representation is tyranny," Miss Pankhurst was stopped by loud applause from an audience which owed its identity as part of a separate nation to that principle.

Politics is the machine by which civilization attempts to make sure that the weak, the young, and the old will be cared for and not oppressed. Without politics we have either anarchy or autocracy. Neither desired or desirable. In England families are caused largely by the fact that men and women have not enough interests in common. Women's interests are in the majority of cases too restricted to interest the men of the family. Little is known of them on the state and the public welfare would bring about the opposite. 'Votes for Women' would not bring discussion in the home, but would drive it away.

EACH FOR ALL, SHE SAYS.

"Each for all and all for each—all working for the common good—that is the spirit of woman in politics."

"I want to see every woman in this state asking for suffrage and I want to see every man clamoring for her to have it."

Many moments of hand-clapping followed the conclusion of her speech. One man asked the question "What is the chief objection to the granting of woman's suffrage?"

"Prejudice and fear of the unknown," answered Miss Pankhurst, quick as a flash.

A number of men and women went up on the stage afterward to speak to Miss Pankhurst. All were eager to shake the hand of the little woman who had in her small person taken so large a part of one of the most significant movements of modern times through complete words and simple manner had not advertised the fact in the course of her speech.

SUN STILL IS SHINING FOR HER

Anita Turnbull Lost Her Law Suit But Not Her Suitor

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—As an aftermath of the recent two months' bitter fight in the superior court here of Beatrice Anita Turnbull to establish her claims to a daughter's share in the $11,000,000 estate of the late E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin, announcement of the engagement of Miss Turnbull to marry Warren G. Heima of Philadelphia, was made today.

The announcement of the engagement, which followed a romantic courtship of only a few months, was made shortly before Miss Turnbull, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Lillian A. Turnbull, and Heima boarded a train for Boston. Heima was constantly at the side of the young girl during the will contest and was very attentive.

Before leaving Mrs. Turnbull stated that the defeat of her claims in the courts had not been a discouragement to either herself or daughter. They will remain in Boston until the appeal from Judge Rives' decision is either affirmed or reversed by the State Supreme Court. Little is known of Heima here. He is said to be of a prominent and wealthy family in Philadelphia.

TO TELL OF THE HAGUE TRIBUNAL

Prominent French Member of Peace Conference Arrives in America.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Paul d'Estournelles D. Constant, former French charge d'affaires at London and a member of the chamber of deputies, winner of the Nobel peace prize and a member of The Hague tribunal, arrived today on the French liner La Provence. In speaking of his mission here he said: "I will show just what The Hague conferences were, the difficulties they met with in language, race, religions and ideas. Their long labors, their work, though incomplete, their quiet unhoped for success. I will comment on their dispositions relating to the rights of man and to the duty of the government to the people."

He is insistent on the necessity of preparing a platform for the third conference and of developing methodically the progress of compulsory arbitration.

TRY FOR 45TH BALLOT.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—The 45th ballot for U. S. Senator was brought up but there was no quorum.

'HA' SAYS TENOR AND AGAIN 'HA-A-A-A'

What Is the Difference, Eh? You
Newspapers Are Much Too Anxious.

"I will Not Talk, Madam Calve
Will Not Talk, Why Not,
That Is Nothing."

NEW YORK, March 11.—The mystery that has cloaked the relations of Mme. Emma Calve and Alnor Gaspari, the Florentine tenor, was cleared up today when they sailed on the American liner St. Paul, admitting that they had been man and wife for a year. They were married in Marseilles, France, last March, but kept their union a secret save from their most intimate friends.

All sorts of rumors and scandals followed them on their honeymoon tour of the world, but they maintained an unbroken silence. Even upon sailing today, they were entered on the passenger list as Emma Calve and Alnor Gaspari, no mention being made of their relations as man and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaspari have been in New York a week. Upon their arrival here they went to the Hotel Plaza, where they registered separately and were provided with separate suites. They spent most of their time away from the hotel and at the home of Jessie Borno Baskerville, the Metropolitan Opera house coach.

Miss Baskerville knew that they were married but respected their wishes in maintaining the secret. Several other intimate friends of the couple who discussed the marriage today, said that Calve and Gaspari had maintained the silence for professional reasons.

ALL ARTISTS ARE SHY.

All artists of their standing in the operatic world do not like to intrude their marital relations before the public.

Miss Baskerville purchased the steamer tickets for the honeymooning couple and at their request had their names entered separately on the passenger list. They did not board the St. Paul until almost the last minute. Then the bride hurried to her stateroom and locked herself in. Gaspari stood guard at the door.

When approached he laughed and said: "Well, what have you come to learn?"

"I would like to interview Calve about her marriage."

"Impossible," cried Gaspari. "She will see no one."

"Why have you kept your marriage a secret?"

"Ha," exclaimed Gaspari, "that is nothing."

"HA!" AND AGAIN "HA!"

"Why not? But I tell you, Madame Calve can see no one. She will not talk. I will not talk. It is no use. What is the difference? Bah. You newspapers are too curious."

Gaspari is a tall, fine looking man of about 35. He has a great bushy head of hair which he combs back from the forehead. He has fine dark eyes and heavy drooping eyebrows. He has never sung in this country, but has a big reputation abroad.

Calve and Gaspari were married in a little out of the way chapel in the city of Marseilles. Only two intimate friends witnessed the ceremony and they were bound to secrecy. The bride couple did not return to Paris but went for a few days to the beautiful villa that Calve has built at Montpelier in the southern part of France.

Then they sailed from Marseilles for the Orient shortly after their marriage. They arrived at San Francisco about two weeks ago.

It was their original intention to return from San Francisco to the Orient to get back to France via the trans-Siberian railroad. Important business affairs drew them to New York. They will go at once to their country home in Montpelier upon their arrival in France, but their effort to keep up the appearance of being single will end when they disembark from the St. Paul at Southampton.

Present Texas Representative Announces Candidacy to Occupy Bailey's Place.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Representative C. B. Randall of Texas announces himself as a candidate for the United States Senate from Texas.

In his signed statement Randall says: "Knowing that the enemy has not yet been routed from the senate and that the fight for supremacy there is important, and being painfully mindful of the political situation in Texas and the vital importance of the contest there, both to people and to the whole country, I have decided to submit my name to the Democratic party in Texas as a candidate for nomination to the position of United States Senator."

TO BATTLE WITH MIGHT.

"In making this announcement I am not unmindful of the great responsibilities that attach to that high office and am impelled solely by a determination to meet every issue in the open and to battle with all my might for the maintenance of the great principles and policies of our party and for the honor, welfare and happiness of our people. As soon as my public duties permit I will move fully present to the public the issues involved in this contest."

Randall, if elected, would succeed Senator Bailey.

Isn't This Suggestion in Line With Harem Skirt?

CHICAGO, March 11.—"Married women should be tattooed," a has the wedding ring, vixen the tattooed lip and chin.

The Rev. Francis Ravel, a Methodist minister in Auckland, N. Z., a visitor here today, urged Chicago husbands to tattoo their wives. Mr. Ravel talked before a meeting of the Cook County Teachers' Association today on "From Cannibalism to Culture."

"I think this is a magnificent custom," he said as he caused to be thrown on the canvas a picture of a

New Zealand woman thus tattooed. "These marks are put on the chin in order that the young men may know that a woman is married. When I go to Washington I am going to suggest this to President Taft as a convenient manner of conveying information of women married state."

"Another innovation that the speaker suggested, was the former New Zealand method of greeting, namely, the rubbing of noses together. Mr. Ravel's wife, Mrs. Hine Taimoa Ravel, and their daughter, Piwa (Eva) Ravel, gave an exhibition of this manner of greeting."

Jack to Be Guarded When Not Bounding Over Main

NEW YORK, March 11.—Two very different classes of workers will profit by action announced today by two of America's richest women. Mrs. Russell Sage has given a preliminary $25,000 to afford a proper home for the thousands of merchant seamen who ship from this port and receive them from the crimp, the dive-keeper and boarding house runner who mainly look after poor Jack when he is home. Mrs. Sage will do this work through the Seamen's Friend Society, which already has a home in this port. She has become greatly interested in the hard life of Merchant Jack and is determined to do for him what Miss Helen Gould is doing for the navy sailors.

NEW IBERIA, La., March 11.—Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of the late Senator from West Virginia, reached here tonight aboard the house boat Russell as a member of the launch Annie party of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter of Chicago, after spending a week in the bayous of the Atchafalaya swamps. As Elkins shot and killed her first alligator, whose hide she will preserve. The skin measures fifteen feet in length. At sunset last evening, in a narrow bayou, she encountered thousands of ducks feeding. Miss Elkins using two double barreled shotguns, fired as fast as an attendant could reload and bagged more than 500 birds.

SCIENCE WILL OVERCOME DEATH

Dr. Simon Flexner Tells of the Wonders of Modern Surgical Experiments.

Valvular Diseases of the Heart
May Be Cured by

DEATH OVERCOME BY SCIENTISTS

Persons apparently dead can be restored to life.

Hearts which have ceased to beat are made active again.

Operations on the lungs may some day effect recovery from advanced tuberculosis, lungs that no longer breathe can be forced to take in air and resume their functions.

Men and women who are practically dead are restored by pumping blood from another into their arteries.

There is every reason to believe that valvular diseases of the heart, for which no remedy was believed to exist, may be curable by surgery.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Dr. Simon Flexner, head of the Rockefeller Institute of Surgery, the man who conquered meningitis, believes that finally medical science will overcome death and man can live to an indefinite period. When surgeons first tried to open the chest cavity to reach the heart and lungs, the lungs collapsed like a pair of bellows punctured.

A German surgeon constructed an air chamber over the heart, with room for the operating surgeon and his assistants. In this sauerbrun chamber, named after its inventor, many operations on the chest cavity were performed. Recent experiments at the Rockefeller Institute, however, indicate that the chamber can be done away with and the lungs kept going by a tube placed in the wind pipe through which a current of ether and air is forced into the lungs. Thus far these tests have been confined to animals, but their successful application to man is promised.

LIFE RESTORED.

"Could this process be used to restore life?" Dr. Flexner was asked. "Oh, yes; it does now," he replied. "It is similar to the process of resuscitation in drowning. The person pumped into the lungs can actually bring a person to life who has to all intents and purposes been, you might say, practically dead. And the same way with the heart. But the operation has to be performed while the tissues are still alive. Thus the heart can be made to resume its action again is one of the most amazing things that have been able to do with the human body."

CURE BY SURGERY.

"With valvular diseases of the heart," Dr. Flexner continued, "we now have reason to hope that a cure may be found in a surgical operation. It may become possible, too, in cases of advanced tuberculosis, to cut out the diseased portions of the lungs as we now operate on a diseased liver or kidneys. We do not need all the area of the lungs to breathe with you know. This discovery will undoubtedly result in prolonging life, or saving some of those who would otherwise die of tuberculosis."

"Could persons suffering from a disease like typhoid fever be cured by Dr. Flexner was asked, 'by transfusion of blood from another when that blood contained an antidote for the disease?'"

"I hardly know about that," he replied. "In typhoid fever, though, lives have been saved after hemorrhage by the transfusion of blood from another."

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

Should Never Be Removed With Poisonous, Pasty Compounds
Because They Are Dangerous and Increase the Growth.

The preparations above referred to are invariably in the form of creamy pastes. These are easily recognized by their pale grayish-greenish color. They are to be spread upon the skin to remain until they are dry. These contain the sulphide of barium, an insoluble chemical which cannot be dissolved, therefore cannot be absorbed by the skin. The very fact that you are told to leave these pasty compounds on the skin until they dry and then lift off with a knife is proof positive that they are not absorbed. If they are why do they still remain on the skin? The most they can possibly do is to remove the surface hair which in consequence will reappear stronger and thicker after each removal.

There is only one logical and scientific way to remove hair and that is by means of a liquid containing soluble ingredients which can be absorbed by the skin. DeMiracle, known all the world over as the only real superfluous hair remover, is just such a preparation. It is easily and quickly absorbed and after you have used it you will note there is nothing left on the skin. It leaves the skin free from irritation, and what is more to the point, it is absolutely non-poisonous and it will not produce eczema or blood poisoning. Remember, no matter what claims are made for any compound, no poisonous, pasty compound or so-called "liquid cure" ever did or ever will destroy a single hair and we can prove it.

The extravagant claims recently made by unscrupulous manufacturers of hair removers in sensational advertisements unquestionably justify physicians in cautioning the public against the use of this class of depilatories. How many people have been enticed into using these dangerous preparations with consequent injury to themselves cannot be estimated but only guessed at, therefore beware of fake free advertisements and claims. The worth of their advertisements try to give the impression that newspapers and other reputable publications endorse their worthless preparations. Don't be deceived by them. DeMiracle is the only preparation which is so endorsed.

No honest dealer will offer you a substitute on which he makes more profit. We will send you a booklet containing full information concerning this remarkable treatment, as well as testimonials of prominent physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and the principal magazines and newspapers. You should read this booklet before you try anything. Write to DeMiracle Chemical Co., Dept. K 10, 1005 Park Ave., New York, simply saying you want this booklet, and it will be mailed, sealed, at once.

Note—All readers of this paper who are afflicted with superfluous hair growths are strongly advised to write for information concerning this wonderful method, which is endorsed by the World over by eminent authorities who have made a lifelong study of this subject.

HAYTI ASPIRES TO HAVE NAVY

Has Purchased Italian Cruiser as Basis of Fleet; German in Command.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11.—A new naval power is being organized in the Caribbean sea. The republic of Hayti, under the direction of President Simon, aspires to be a sea power and has laid down its navy by purchasing the Italian cruiser, "Antiope," renaming it the "Antiope Simon." The navy at present, comprising several smaller ships, has been placed under the command of Captain Willy Meyer, one of the best known of the younger officers of the German Naval Reserve, who will organize the navy of the republic along modern lines.

Captain Meyer, who is but 33 years of age, has served on the Hamburg-American line, and in 1906 was recalled to the official service and appointed captain of the naval construction yard at the Krupp works at Kiel. Since then he has had charge of the trials of all the war vessels built in the Krupp works. He is a recognized expert in the handling of submarines and torpedo boats, and has taken two boats from Kiel to the Mediterranean, and delivered the war vessels built for Russian and Turkish governments.

As head of the Haytian navy, Captain Meyer will command the flagship. In such experienced hands, the Haytian navy promises to become a power in the American Mediterranean.

KNOWLAND BRINGS COLLIER TO THE MARE ISLAND YARD

Victory Crowns Representative's Fight for Building of Vessel on the Pacific Coast

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The long drawn out fight for the building of the second collier at the Mare Island navy yard has finally ended with a victory for the California Shipyard won by Senator Perkins and Congressman Knowland. This means an expenditure in California of $1,500,000, a large part of which will be distributed among the mechanics of this state.

The collier in question was originally authorized in 1903, the act providing that it should be constructed at a government navy yard on the Pacific coast, and the Mare Island navy yard was designated. This marked the beginning of a desperate and protracted fight on the part of the private shipbuilding interests to prevent the will of congress from being carried out.

When it was thought that private yards were to build this collier the limit of cost was fixed at $1,500,000. As soon as congress directed that one should be constructed at a navy yard the price dropped to $823,500, a private firm actually building one at this figure in order to afford the secretary of the navy an excuse to delay action in commencing work at the navy yard. That the private firm lost money on the contract is generally admitted, and is not improbable that the loss was shared by others.

In 1909 the house committee on naval affairs inserted in the naval appropriation bill an authorization for the secretary of the navy to give the Mare Island collier to a private firm but Congressman Knowland raised the point of order when the item came before the house, claiming that it was an attempt to change existing law in an appropriation bill and after argument the chair sustained the point of order and the item went out.

INVEST AMENDMENT.

The committee then, in view of the low private bids, inserted an amendment under construction and machinery in the naval bill limiting the cost of all colliers to $900,000 which was not subject to a point of order and tied up the appropriation.

In 1910 private firms refused to bid as low for these colliers and the limit of cost was raised to $1,000,000, a figure, however, admittedly below the price at which one could be built at a navy yard. At the $1,000,000 limit but one bid was received for the colliers by private yards, owing doubt to the fact that congress stipulated that the eight-hour law should apply, and this bid was $1,536,500.

In the naval appropriation bill of last year another attempt was made to take this collier away from the yard but congressman Knowland again made the point of order and the item went out of the bill. It was found that the appropriation would lapse and during this same year the law was reenacted but the naval committee insisted on inserting a $1,000,000 limitation to deprive Mare Island from beginning work.

INVOKES RULES.

The naval appropriation bill of this year again contained the provision that a private shipbuilding firm be given the collier and again Representative Knowland invoked the rules of the house. The representatives from the Third Congressional district were extremely anxious to raise the limit of cost to meet the department's estimates and permit the yard to build the ship, but to raise the limit of cost is subject to a point of order. A happy thought came to Congressman Knowland which enabled him to accomplish what, under the rules, appeared impossible. During the discussion of the naval bill it was brought out that in figuring the cost of government-built ships that "overhead charges" constituted a large percentage of the cost, the definition of these "overhead charges" being rather hazy when the department and committee attempted an explanation, but the amount always being large and augmenting the cost price.

FRAMES AMENDMENT.

With this in mind Congressman Knowland adroitly framed an amendment to the collier limitation, apparently not increasing the amount, which provided that the $1,000,000 limitation should be exclusive of indirect charges. The four words "exclusive of indirect charges," in reality raised the limit of cost over $400,000. The amendment was sprung so suddenly that at first even the chairman of the naval committee did not at first grasp its full significance. A point of order was raised against the amendment but the chair ruled that it was merely a limitation. An amendment directly increasing the limit of cost might have called for a different ruling.

The committee opposed the amendment and an interesting debate ensued. The house was with Congressman Knowland and by a vote of 79 to 37 agreed to his amendment.

After the passage of the bill in the house Congressman Knowland took up his amendment, which had been hurriedly framed, with the department which informed him that the indirect charges were not quite as much as had been estimated and that the limitation should be increased slightly in order to leave no question, this increase in effect practically not raising the cost from that estimated under the Knowland amendment.

DANGER OF LITIGATION.

Owing to the many previous limitations placed upon this particular collier by congress it was feared that there was a slight danger of legal questions arising unless certain wording was used. The changes were made in the senate committee by Senator Perkins, chairman of the senate committee on naval affairs, and passed by the senate. The house conferees, when the bill went into conference during the last hours of the session refused to accept the amendment, agreeing upon practically every other amendment and jeopardizing the whole naval appropriation bill rather than make it possible for the yard to build the collier. They came before the house with a disagreement at 5:30 on the morning of March 4, the day of adjournment.

Congressman Knowland had remained up all night and was ready. He moved that the house recede in its disagreement and concur in the senate amendment. A spirited debate took place, Knowland advancing a strong argument in favor of agreeing in view of the decisive vote upon his amendment, similar in purpose to a few days previously. The house supported Knowland by a vote of 64 to 10 and the final victory was won which marked the close of one of the most interesting fights in congress over naval matters for some years. The fight was not directed solely against Mare Island, but was a fight, backed by potent influences, against the policy of constructing the ships of the government in the navy yards of the nation.

GLENVILLE HEN PROVES TO BE GOOD RETRIEVER

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., March 11.—John Grohan, of Glenville, believes he owns the most intelligent hen in New York State. The hen, a White Leghorn, is a pet and Grohan has taught it many tricks. Grohan, who is employed in Tarrytown, has to take the trolley every morning. The hen follows him to the tracks and when he goes aboard, the hen turns around and goes home.

This morning Grohan overslept and was in such a hurry to catch the trolley that he forgot about the hen until he boarded the car. He heard a flapping of wings behind him, and turned to see the hen close by. It lighted on his shoulder and, as it did so, a coin fell to the ground. It was a nickel.

In his hurry to get away, Grohan had dropped the coin and the hen picked it up and ran after him. Grohan told the story when he reached town, and his friends admitted it was the best one that had come out of Glenville in many a day.

INJURIES COST RAILROADS DEAR

Almost $57,000,000 Paid Out in Claims During Year

CHICAGO, March 11.—The enormous and growing total disbursements of the railroads of the country for personal injury claims and damage to freight, amounting in 1908 to $56,700,000, is urged as one of the most pressing factors of railroad expenses to be reduced as a result of the Interstate Commerce Commission's refusal to permit an advance of rates.

Chairman W. J. Wood, of the Indiana Railroad Commission, who is also chairman of the advisory board of the League for Public Safety with headquarters in Chicago, found on investigation that in ten years this drain has more than doubled.

"While the gross earnings increased approximately 130 per cent, in ten years from 1897," he said, "the sum paid for claims increased 335 per cent. As between 1907 and 1908 the gross earnings made a moderate increase, estimated at about 5 per cent, and one might reasonably suppose that the tonnage would cause proportionately small increase in the amount of claims. On the contrary the figures compiled from the returns of twenty-one leading railways, show that the claims leaped forward 19.8 per cent between 1907 and 1908, and would have been much greater but for a phenomenal decrease of over three-quarters of a million in payment for personal injuries by one road, which materially reduced the total percentage of increase."

"The total of $56,700,000 thus withdrawn from the revenues of the companies, is a burden whose weight is most onerous. It is equal to all the freight earnings of the State of Texas; it equals the total revenues of all the railways of Belgium; it exceeds the total earnings of the railroads of Sweden, Norway and Denmark combined; it is more than one-third the annual earnings of all Canadian roads; it exceeds the yearly compensation of all the firemen and conductors of all the railways in the United States; it is double the yearly pay of the 35,000 station agents in this country; it is three times the aggregate salaries of all the general officers of the railways in the United States."

"If this vast drain accomplished its ostensible object, if it actually made adequate compensation for injuries and losses suffered, there might be some consolation for the roads in contemplating it. But it is consumed in the payment of counsel fees, court costs, the writing of briefs and even the part which reaches the hands of the complainant, often does not remain in his possession, but is soon dissipated."

BRIGHT FUTURE LOOMS FOR CALIFORNIA FIGHTER

Frankie Burns Has Been in Three Professional Contests Only But Each Was a Creditable Performance

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

THE future looms as brightly for Frankie Burns, the young California fighter, as it does for any of the new crop of lightweights. Burns' professional contests number only three, but each of them was a creditable performance. Strange to say, his first was his most important engagement. That was his bout with Owen Moran.

It was one of those bouts in which the referee simply acts as a deaf mute, but by striking an average of the "popular decisions" rendered, it was agreed that the affair deserved to be known as a draw, and as such it has been referred to ever since.

Burns' peculiar crouch—or, rather, his "crouch and cover," as it has come to be called—no doubt helped him to weather the storm in the Moran affair. Moran, as all the sporting world knows, is the personification of coolness and confidence. What he doesn't know about locating openings is not worth knowing.

Moran was baffled by the way the California Cub barricaded himself. Owen soon decided that to lash out indiscriminately would mean injury to his hands by contact with Burns' elbows or forearms. Moran also discovered that Burns was liable to unwind an arm from his head and let go a whizzing punch when least expected.

MORAN GLAD WHEN IT WAS OVER.

All things considered, it was probably a relief to Moran when the thing was over, even though the novice was thought to have held his own.

In Burns' bout with "One-Round" Hogan the latter went up in the air before half a dozen rounds had been boxed. Burns covered up to some purpose in this go. He and Hogan are rivals of the deadliest kind, and have been such ever since the beginning of their amateur days. Each of them just hated the idea of losing to the other.

Burns, by his crouching and covering tactics, baffled Hogan completely. Hogan pecked and prodded, and was puzzled. Once, while he was craning his neck like a chicken sizing up a half-stripped corn cob, Burns lashed from ambush. The left wallop he planted on Hogan's jaw made Hogan gasp, and all but unbalanced him.

After that Hogan went to pieces, and Burns, who is a level-headed fellow, contrived to keep his arch enemy confused. Once he gained the upper hand, Burns varied his style, and by free fighting and fighting from cover in turn he soon discouraged Hogan. The latter resorted to butting, preferring disqualification, it is thought, to being beaten down by his get-toed rival. And disqualified he was.

Burns had a comparatively easy time with Low Powell. The latter seemed to have withered up physically. Although he still retains his knowledge of boxing,

St. Mary's Crack Team Wins From Sacramento Pennant Hopes

Oakland's Hopes Will Meet Boston Red Sox at Freeman's Park This Morning

From this line up Manager Harry Wolverton of Oakland says he will pick the winner of the Coast League pennant for 1911. ### RED SOX DEFEAT SEALS IN FIRST GAME OF YEAR

Both Teams Play Good Ball Considering That Grounds Were in Sloppy Shape

By BERT LOWRY.

NOT counting the impromptu game of last Wednesday when the Boston Red Sox met defeat in the hands of the St. Mary's, the baseball loving fans saw their first real ball game of the season over at Recreation Park yesterday afternoon, when Taylor's aggregation hung the big sign on the greats and near greats of the San Francisco team by a score of 6 to 4.

It wasn't one of those slam bang games of ball that one expects to see when two crack teams begin a struggle. Of course we must stop and admit that both the Sox and Seals have been greatly hampered in their desires to condition themselves through the continual upsets of our usually good weather, and if they didn't play right up to the handle we must surely forgive them.

Through a kindness of Manager Patsy Donovan who allowed Harry Hooper to go to his home town, Sacramento, to umpire the St. Mary's-Senators game, and the illness of the great Tris Speaker, Boston sent a patched up outfield into the game, but that didn't mar the day's sport.

Being it was the first time we have the big leaguers it would not be right to say whether they are world beaters or just plain every day ball players, but this is suffice, the Beantown aggregation has a world of confidence, and their pitchers have reputations that should carry them through.

GROUND'S MADE FAST WORK IMPOSSIBLE.

The way it has rained hereabout for the last several days made a whole lot of the fans think that there would be no game at that, and many of the regulars were among the missing when Umpire George Hildebrand gave the sign to begin play. Even with the unsettled condition of things fully four thousand fans and pianettes were on hand to see the day's sport.

Of course, the home team feeling was there, and San Francisco got the best end of all the applause, but those Boston boys did things now and then that brought forth a cheer even if it was faint hearted.

The grounds were in good shape considering all that Ground Keeper Nelson had to contend with, and he deserves credit for making it possible to play at all.

The infielders couldn't keep the pegs on their shoes stuck deep enough in the ground to keep from slipping, and the outfielders were like a lot of anchored ships through the heaviness of the outfield, so they couldn't move very fast over the turf. This is the reason that a couple of doubles were chalked up against Frank Easley and a hit or two went against the Boston slabbers.

BOSTON SCORES ONE IN OPENING ROUND.

Without pomp or ceremony Hildy sent the Boston pennant chasers to the bat and Second Baseman Gardner poled a beauty into left field that netted him second base. Don't hold this against Frank Easley, for had the sod been less filled with water Outfielder Powell would have nailed the ball. Nebringer endeavored to show the westerners how to hunt, but failed miserably, and "Fat" Ryan merely poked out his mitts to get the ball. Duffy Lewis, idol of the Oakland fans, also the pride of St. Mary's college, took a swing at the pellet and he, too, grabbed off a two-bagger for the same reason that Gardner did. This was the reason that Gardner did. This was the reason that Gardner did.

Mr. Lewis then bethought himself to show us that he had learned a whole lot in the big brush as a base runner and moved off second base. Easley snapped the ball to Mohler, though, and Duffy was out a city block. Here he lost his confidential smile. The Wagner boy poled one to Weaver at short and the mud puddle there caused George to bobble the pellet. The man with the thin part of his name like the great Honus was second, but that was as far as he got for Bradley flew out to Weaver.

SEALS TIE UP THE SCORE.

Powell, who will take Ping Bodie's place in left and will cause the fans to forget the "wonder" if he behaves as well in the future as he did yesterday, stood around to the annoyance of Mr. Wood until he walked to

TOM SHARKEY HAS 20 HORSES FOR TURF PURPOSES

Tom Sharkey is a trotting horse enthusiast, who has abandoned racing temporarily until some of the youngsters of his own breeding are old enough to be prepared for the big futurities in which he has kept them eligible. Tom's best hope for his stock farm are those out of the famous race mare, Lily Strangler. Sharkey has now twenty head, including a few select brood mares, the remainder being all of the high school type, and he expects to have a few more for their speed ability as early as possible.

Two Teams Tied in School Shoot

Change in the leadership of the interscholastic rifle shooting league as a result of matches for the seventh week. Harvard school of Los Angeles, Cal., and Morris high school of New York City are tied for the leadership with slight victories and no defeats.

THREE PARK TEAMS TO PLAY BASEBALL

ALAMEDA, March 11.—An interplayground baseball league will be organized among the boys who frequent the playgrounds of San Francisco, Oakland and Alameda by April 1. The league will include the North and Southside playgrounds, and will be organized by the Alameda Recreation League, which is now in the process of organizing a similar league for the city of Alameda.

BIG MEN AT CLEVELAND.

Twenty of the thirty-six players that compose the Cleveland squad are over six feet tall. Pitcher Falkenberg tops the bunch with 6 feet 6 inches, while Eddie Jones is next in line, measuring 6 feet 3 inches in height. Knepp is 6 feet 7 inches, and the team, measuring 6 feet 7 inches.

BOSTON GRABS TWO IN THE FIFTH.

Johnny Kilenow was given a pass by Harry Starnes, who had gone to the mound in this round. Then the left handed boy fanned Wood. Gardner had better luck for the poke he gave the ball carried it over the fence. The next two batters, Nebringer and Lewis, bit the dust.

In the sixth the Beantowners gathered two more. Wagner walked, but was forced at second by Bradley. Hugh went to second on a piece of juggling by Terrible Tommy at first base. Purcell singled. Then he started for second. Lewis Schmidt now catching, pegged far into center field and Lewis, picking up the ball, pegged far over third, the result being that the two runners tallied.

In the eighth Boston made its sixth run. Wagner hit to first on a pass. A sacrifice put him at second. After Purcell had flown out to McArdle, MacDonnell, who played center field, poled one to the clubhouse, sending the shortstop over the pan. That's all.

This morning, with the weather like it was yesterday, the Sox will give it a chance to show their skill against the Oaks at Freeman's Park. And if it's still good in the afternoon will make their final appearance in the west on the pre-servers over the bay. Here are the figures:

NEVADA LOSES TO CALIFORNIA IN ELEVENTH

Goodwin, the diminutive second baseman of the University of California, came to the rescue in the eleventh inning of a closely-contested game with Nevada on California field yesterday afternoon, and with a neat drive to center field scored Price with the winning run, making the score 3 to 2. The game, while somewhat errorful, was exciting in the extreme, especially in the three innings of play during which the score stood California 2, Nevada 2.

During the early part of the game the University of California players seemed to have the best of it. Haskell, the freshman, pitched excellent ball up to the sixth inning, when Porter was put into the box. In the next inning Nevada's run getting began.

California's first two runs were made in the third and sixth innings. O'Kelly, who played the third base, was hit by a line drive from Porter in the third. The other run was scored by Haskell in the sixth. Porter was hit by a line drive from Haskell in the sixth. Porter was hit by a line drive from Haskell in the sixth.

The ninth passed without scoring, and in the tenth California succeeded in getting O'Kelly around to third with zone out, when an attempt was made to connect and O'Kelly was caught at the plate. In the eleventh a clever double play by Goodwin and Price narrowly averted another score by Nevada. Then in California's half of the inning Price got on first through a bad throw by Goodwin's two-base hit to center.

Sandwich, who played first base in the absence of Captain Goodwin, was injured by colliding with a Nevada runner and had to leave the box.

U. C. ATHLETES CAPTURE DUAL MEET FROM OLYMPIC

Varsity Track Men Show Class in Many Events Scoring Majority of Points

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA.

March 11.—The Olympic Club-University of California track meet on the 'Varsity oval this afternoon was won by the college athletes, who scored 32-3 points to the Olympic Club's 2-3 points.

The visitors showed up well at the start, getting first place in four out of the first six events, but after that practically everything went the way of the blue and gold.

The Olympics were handicapped by the absence of Ralph Rose, hammer throw champion. Craig of the same club also failed to appear in time for the mile run, although he ran in the relay.

Holder of the world's pole vault record, was on hand to help out in the scoring for the winged athletes. Emerson first, 11 feet 9 1/4 inches, his record being 12 feet 10 1/4 inches.

The loss of the two-mile event was a sad blow to the college men. Garvin of the Olympics came from behind and won easily in the last lap after Rathbone had set the pace and seemed to have the race won.

There was a close finish in the 100-yard dash between Garvin and Claudius of the Olympics, the victor, and Claudius of U. C. Another good finish took place in the 440-yard dash, won by a visitor.

The events were witnessed by a large crowd of college people and friends of the Olympic club men, who were seated on the bleachers on the sunny side of the oval.

The results of the dual meet events were as follows: Mile run—Wood (U. C.), first; Crabb (U. C.), second; Rhodes (U. C.), third. Time, 4:40.

OLD TIMERS COULD HIT PELLET ON THE NOSE

Not long ago a baseball enthusiast picked the following team as the best of the old timers in the major leagues last year:

Name, Position, Club, Average. Name, Position, Club, Average. Name, Position, Club, Average. Name, Position, Club, Average.

Wagner, short., Cleveland, .334. Wagner, short., Cleveland, .334. Wagner, short., Cleveland, .334. Wagner, short., Cleveland, .334.

An old-time fan studied the above selection and then smiled. Yes, I suppose that was a pretty good team, but I could pick a better one.

If you pick a nine of the best stick-ers since professional baseball was organized, you would have a team that would do you suppose would make it? Not one. They'd all be warming the bench.

Now, let's look over the records. Now, let's look over the records. Now, let's look over the records. Now, let's look over the records.

BENDER HAD EASY TIME FOOLING CHICAGO

"Bender was made for the Cubs." That line appeared in an article last fall in which a Chicago writer made an attack on the Athletics, tending to show that they were outclassed by the Cubs. Big Chief Bender of the tribe of threw the books into the Cubs in the first game of the world's championship series, holding them down to three hits and striking out eight.

The Rodkin had his revenge. This is the story: "I could never have lost our last trip around the circuit when a friend happened to show me a newspaper containing a severe report on our team. Of course, a ball player who would kick at anything some fellows write is a cheap. But this was funny to me, so I got the clipping and I would remember the next time I was in Chicago. I used to pull it out every once in a while and smile."

OAKS TO MEET ALAMEDA TODAY

Weather permitting, the Oakland Coast League team will play Alameda, champions of the Central California league last year, at Freeman's park today at 2:30 p. m. The game will be a practice game and it is probable Oakland's battery will work against Oakland, and Alameda's battery against Alameda at Manager Wolbert's suggestion. The Central California league season opens March 9th.

SACRAMENTO TEAM IS HUMBLBY BY PHOENIX

SACRAMENTO, March 11.—The team representing St. Mary's College won from the Sacramento Red Sox yesterday by a score of 4 to 2. Owing to the poor condition of the grounds the excitement was slow one, but the Senators showed enough speed to bring forth very favorable comment from the fans. Harry Hooper, the St. Mary's star, pitched a fine game, winning for St. Mary's. He was the hero of the game, crowding the plate in the ninth inning with two bases and a runner on first. The Senators, however, failed to capitalize on this advantage, and a run to be forced across.

EUROPE HAS EYE ON SITUATION IN MEXICO

United States Mobilization Means Only War to the Continent.

Taft's Orders Not Believed Across Pond

Fire on British Naval Estimates Will Be Opened Monday.

(By WILLIAM T. STEAD.)
LONDON, March 11.—When half the standing army of a great power is suddenly dispatched with horse, foot and artillery to maneuver close to the frontier of a neighboring state, no one in the world ever accepts the official assurance that "there is nothing in it."
In the new world things may be managed differently, but with our old world habit of disbelieving an official explanation as to peaceful significance of military movements, no one need be surprised that in Europe everyone believes there is something behind the army maneuvers in Texas.
President Taft's orders to the army raise only a mild emotion of inquisitive curiosity. No one on this side of the Atlantic would mobilize an army or move a battleship if Uncle Sam was suddenly to announce that he had resolved to annex Mexico. Friends of America would mourn such a diversion of the civilizing energies of a great republic to the purposes of conquest; her enemies would chuckle inwardly at the thought that America was going upon a long, troublesome and unprofitable campaign, but neither friend nor foe would lift a finger to prevent the United States doing what it pleased.

ONE MOVE IN GAME.
That is one move in the great game of universal acceptance of the Monroe doctrine. No one ever dreams of interfering in Mexico from this side of the Atlantic. John Bull has about two hundred million dollars invested in President Diaz's country, but from a dollar and cents point of view, he would probably rejoice if the Stars and Stripes flew all over the country between Texas and the Panama canal. His investments would be quite as safe and in a few years they would probably be quadrupled.
Official statements that American overtures for a treaty of arbitration between Great Britain and the United States will receive most sympathetic consideration and are universally welcomed. The only regret on this side is that such a treaty has not been ratified twenty years ago.
On Monday the invincible and purblind group of navy men is to open fire on the naval estimates. They show an increase of thirty-one and a half million sterling. There are none so blind as those who will not see. So far from our estimates being excessive, they are dangerously low. Instead of spending two pounds for every German pound spent in naval construction, as we ought to do if we are to keep up the two keels to one standard, we are only spending pound for pound.

FACTS ARE PLAIN.
Fortunately, the facts and figures are too plain to be obscured, and the estimates will not only go through, but will certainly be increased if the little navy men had any chance of seeming to influence the policy of the government.
I regret to hear that Lloyd George is likely to be more or less on the shelf until mid-summer. He has been living on his nerve for so long that unless he takes more rest than he is doing at present, his throat troubles may develop into laryngitis and the most eloquent voice in Britain might be permanently silenced.
I met Lord Morley when lunching at the United Service club, which he prefers to the Athenaeum. Notwithstanding the double duty thrown upon him by the sudden illness of Lord Crewe, I was glad to find him fresh and vigorous and quite undisturbed by his sudden elevation to leadership of the House of Lords and his recall to the India office.

WILL TRY EDUCATION.
The experiment is about to be made by the Indian government of substituting for twenty-five good copies of the new weekly, "The Loyal," a vernacular paper for the postoffice distributing it about the country is one which will be watched with interest. Gov. Ignatieff tried something like it in Russia twenty-five years ago with a fair measure of success.
It will soon be a perilous thing to publish jokes in any English paper, even a joke at the expense of a contemporary. A verdict of four thousand dollars against a penny illustrated paper for promulgating a fraudulent article claiming whether the Daily Express, a flamboyant jingo paper, was not a German spy is surely the limit of such prosperous attempts to prevent the publication of anything but summary compliments concerning anyone or anything who is not Liberal. The Daily Express has three naturalized British subjects, "Made in Germany" on its staff. Hence the joke.

CHURCH BURNS.

TO GROW HAIR ON A BALD HEAD

BY A SPECIALIST.
Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their hair is not necessarily falling out. It is only dormant. The following simple home-prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out, and removing the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist. 2 ounces, Menthol Lavender, one-half drachm. If you wish it perfumed, add half to one teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Do not apply to the face or where hair is not desired.

ROOSEVELT DAM SOON WILL OPEN

Cost Nearly $3,500,000 and Holds Water to Flood 2000 Square Miles.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 11.—The United States reclamation service, in its work of supplying moisture to arid lands has given the world five of its largest dams. It was quite appropriate that one of the largest of these, a part of the Salt River project, in Arizona, should be called the Roosevelt dam in honor of the man who as president signed the act which made its construction possible.

Colonel Roosevelt, in connection with his visit to Phoenix, March 12 to 20, will formally dedicate the dam named in his honor. In this connection it is interesting to note that the Nineteenth National Irrigation congress, at which it is expected Colonel Roosevelt will be one of the principal speakers at Chicago, December 5 to 9, has for its president Hon. E. A. Fowler, of Phoenix, Ariz., who for many years was president of the Salt River Valley Water Users' Association.

enough water to flood 2000 square miles a foot deep. The reclaimed land will make 25,000 farms each large enough to support at least five people, making homes for fully 125,000 Americans. Each acre, it is estimated, will yield yearly crops valued at $50 to $125.

STOCK MARKET AT DULL STAGE

Lightest Trading of Year Is Reported From Wall Street.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The week in the stock market was the dulllest of the year, with few price changes of note. The market held up well in the face of unfavorable influences and the good tone which was shown during most of the week seemed to indicate that stocks are in strong hands. Mexican affairs were brought to the fore during the week by reason of our government's activities, but aside from some weakness in Mexican railway shares, the Wall street market was not influenced by these developments.

Reduction of the New York Central's dividend rate, while not a surprise on account of the decreased earnings of the road, was another of the week's unfavorable happenings and helped to restrain bullish operators. The United States Steel Corporation's monthly report of unfilled tonnage was in line of expectations of a gradual increase in operations, although the increase was not sufficiently marked to lend impetus to speculation.

COLONIST RATES ARE ANNOUNCED

Southern Pacific Issues Folder Giving Reduction for Summer.

The Southern Pacific has issued a folder with a mailing card attached with a full list of the unusually low colonist rates offered this year, taking effect March 10, lasting to April 10. In the reading matter emphasis is laid on the desirability of Oakland and vicinity as a home spot. Oakland is referred to as the second city of manufacturing importance in the state, with figures to substantiate the assertion. It shows the value of Oakland's manufacturing industries in 1910 to be $55,652,100. The extensive water front improvement now under way is also mentioned, and the fact that Oakland is on the continental side of the bay, which is a fact that boosters have wanted brought to the notice of the country for a long time.

Western Pacific Folder.
The Western Pacific railroad has gotten out one of the most elaborate folders, with information for travelers, ever issued by the road. A feature is the prominence given to Oakland, which is shown on the map in large black type with the stations at Twenty-third avenue, Fruitvale, Melrose, Fitchburg, Elmhurst and San Leandro under the heading of Oakland.

The folders will be distributed throughout the country. There is a large amount of general information of interest to the general public incorporated and particulars regarding points of interest in this vicinity on the Western Pacific line.

BRITISH TO MOVE AGAINST MORMONS

Churchill Orders Investigation of Charges Against the Colony.

LONDON, March 11.—Hans Freese, who was sent to England by the American council of women, has seen Weston Spencer Churchill, the home secretary, concerning Mr. Churchill's statement in the House March 6 on Mormonism. Mr. Churchill at that time said the government's attention had been attracted to recent allegations of Mormon activity among English women, and that he was having an investigation made. The assertion was that young girls were induced to emigrate to Utah. Mr. Freese said that Mr. Churchill told him that he has been convinced by later information on the subject that the matter was exceedingly serious and he would do his utmost to put a stop to the practice. Mr. Freese also has enlisted the active help of the Archbishop of Canterbury and of the Bishop of London.

EXPANSION OF OAKLAND'S RETAIL BUSINESS DISTRICT IS PROGRESSING RAPIDLY

Important Developments Are Taking Place in All Directions and Enhancing Property Values

The retail business district of Oakland continues to expand in all directions. The erection of a five-story reinforced concrete block on the southeast corner of Broadway and Nineteenth street, the excavation for the foundation and basement of which will begin during the coming week, expands the modern retail business district one and one-half blocks farther north than it has been. Small classes of businesses have been established in that direction even farther north, but they have been located in ancient and dilapidated frame structures.

Progress of Development Northward

The type of buildings that are being substituted for these dilapidated shacks which have long since outlived their usefulness, promises to advance upper Broadway's business development very materially. If the First Methodist Church trustees finally close the deal to the Twenty-fourth street tract extending from Broadway to Webster street and erect thereon the new church, its temporary effect at least will be to induce business to follow whatever may be the subsequent result. One thing is certain—since the announcement was made that negotiations were in progress between the trustees and the owners of the tract, Broadway values farther north have materially stiffened and property north of Twenty-fifth street has been in demand. Frontage prices named by present owners to intending buyers seeking options have somewhat surprised the latter. As a matter of fact, it should be no cause of surprise to any one, for frontage values all along Broadway north of the Telegraph avenue junction have been extremely low. In fact, this section of Broadway up to the present time has received little attention from investors and realty dealers. Now the views of both regarding the future possibilities of this part of Oakland's main thoroughfare are undergoing a material change. The addition of eight stories to the Realty Syndicate building, the prospective extension of the Key Route to the eastern end of the county, the construction of the Southern Pacific's electric railway system, the proposed improvement of the Chris Bauer estate property on the southeast corner of Broadway and Nineteenth street and the possible erection of the new First Methodist Episcopal Church on the south side of Twenty-fourth street, on the property extending from Broadway to Webster street, have placed a new aspect on the northern extension of Broadway, tributary to which a large volume of new settlement is in progress. The opening of Jefferson and Washington streets to San Pablo avenue will also have a big influence on the business growth of that thoroughfare.

Business Creeping Westward

The recent transfer of residence property at the northeast corner of Grove and Fourteenth street indicates the early extension of business development westward on the latter thoroughfare. It is understood that the buyer will at an early date remove the two dwellings now occupying the lot and substitute a modern business structure there. The presence of the Free Public Library building on the southwest corner of the two streets makes the lot ideal for

NEW TERRACE TO BE OPENED

Four Groups of Villa Sites in It Sold Before Being Put on the Market.

Fred B. Reed, subdivision manager of the Layman Real Estate Company, reports that four large villa sites in the Rock Ridge Terrace tract have already been reserved and full payments made on them, before the property has actually been opened and put on the market. One of these sales comprises eight villa lots and another five lots to each of which $10,000 building restrictions are attached. That is, the buyer has made it a condition of the purchase that residence improvements costing at least $10,000 shall be erected on each lot. Two other plots—one embracing five villa lots and the other four villa lots, have been taken by the buyers with $15,000 restrictions attached to the deeds. Certain parts of the Terrace will carry $20,000 restrictions to each villa lot. The object of the Terrace promoters is to make it the most exclusive residence park district in Oakland.

Rock Ridge Terrace is the last of the Rock Ridge properties to be marketed. It comprises seventy-three acres of the foothill upland overlooking the valley in which Temescal lake and Claremont are located and it commands an unobstructed view of the east bay shore cities and San Francisco bay, the city on the western peninsula, the Golden Gate and Marin county, a glimpse of the Pacific ocean beyond, and a full sweep of the amphitheater of the Contra Costa range. It is a part of the old Jack Hays property purchased by Mr. Hays years ago when Horatio F. Livermore and his brother Charles bought and built on what is now Rock Ridge Park, the Claremont Manor tract, and the villa home of F. B. Bowles.

LEASING MARKET SPECIALLY ACTIVE

Many Transactions Recently Closed; San Francisco Firms Seeking Locations Here.

"Leasing in the downtown district has been more than unusually active," reports the Layman Real Estate Company. The firm has just leased the storeroom at 468 Thirteenth street, 18x66, to a cloak and suit house for five years at a total rental of $22,650. This is probably the highest rental paid in this block for a similar space. The firm has also leased the storeroom at 410 Fourteenth street to a realty firm for the unexpired term of an option company, which has in turn leased the storeroom in the Macdonough building, 1168 Broadway, for five years at a total rental of $12,800. The storeroom at 230 San Pablo avenue, near Sixteenth street, has been leased at a total rental of $900.

The firm has under negotiation a leasing deal which will cause the erection of a building on Twelfth street near Broadway on a lot 100x100. A. W. Finn, manager of the leasing department, also reports that he has had several calls during the last week from San Francisco tenants who are looking for Oakland locations. In a conversation with the Pacific coast manager of one of the largest retail stores in this city, the latter stated that he knew of ten large San Francisco firms who are only waiting for the proper locations to come to Oakland. If the owners of inside real estate would only evince a desire to put modern improvements upon their property they would have no difficulty in getting the very highest class of tenants.

SECOND PAYMENT ON M. E. CHURCH

Syndicate Clinches the Purchase by Turning Over $100,000 to Trustees

On Thursday the second installment of $75,000 on the First Methodist Episcopal church property, at the southeast corner of Fourteenth and Clay streets, recently purchased by the Layman Real Estate Company for a syndicate of local and outside capitalists for $250,000, was paid. A deposit of $25,000 had been made at the time the trade was closed and to secure it. Since then the to be entirely clear. The installment paid Thursday brings up the total payment up to date to $100,000 which is not only a guarantee of the final passing of the property into the syndicate's hands, as the remainder, it is understood, will become due when the church trustees are ready to transfer possession to the syndicate. The payment of this $100,000 puts the church organization in a place where it may purchase a new site. It was announced nearly two weeks ago that two plots of land extending from Broadway to Webster streets with frontages on both thoroughfares and on the south side of Twenty-fourth street had been purchased by the church for a site for a new church edifice for approximately $80,000. THE TRIBUNE is authoritatively informed, however, that the trade has not yet been finally closed. Since the payment of the $100,000 by the buyers of the Clay and Fourteenth street property, the church trustees are now in a position to either close the deal or to buy a suitable tract for their purpose elsewhere.

SUBDIVISION OF RETAIL BUSINESS DISTRICT INTO SPECIAL TRADE SECTIONS

One of the Marked Evidences of Oakland's Modern Metropolitan Growth and Development

During the past two or three years the central retail business district has been through an experience of classification as well as readjustment, in which special lines of business are being grouped together.

Dry Goods Importers District

The erection of the Taft & Pennoyer block which is now being followed by the building of the four-story modern emporium for the H. C. Capwell Company and the prospective construction of a magnificent arcade building by the Kahn Brothers with frontages on San Pablo avenue, Telegraph avenue and Sixteenth street, fixes the big dry goods importing houses permanently in the territory surrounding the new city hall site.

Center of Furniture Trade

The erection of the A. D. Wilson building on the south side of Fourteenth street, near Clay, for tenancy by the furniture firm of Bussey & Mihan, which is to be completed by August 1st, firmly establishes a group of large furniture importers in the territory between Washington and Jefferson and Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, the Jackson Furniture Company and the Metropolitan Furniture Companies being already located under long leases in the new Heeseman and Larkey blocks, the one having frontages on the west side of Clay, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, and on the north side of Thirteenth street, between Clay and Jefferson, and the other located in the center of the block on the south side of Fourteenth street, between Clay and Jefferson.

Oakland's Financial District

The financial quarters have been firmly established and clearly defined by the erection of the big bank buildings in the territory lying on the east side of San Pablo avenue and Broadway, south of the line of Sixteenth street to Eleventh street and to the east side of Franklin street. Seven of Oakland's largest banks are now located inside the boundaries named. Most of them are already quartered in massive bank buildings and before the end of the year probably the Security Bank and Trust Company will be quartered in a new seven-story Class-A modern structure of handsome type on the northeast corner of Broadway and Eleventh street.

The Garage and Auto Supply District

Twelfth street, west of Alice, has been taken up almost wholly by the automobile trade and dealers in automobile supplies, and has become special garage district. The trade has become anchored on this thoroughfare because it is the main artery to the eastern section of the city and the county and is more traveled by automobiles than any other street in Oakland.

Metropolitan Development

These special groupings of various lines of businesses is what is giving Oakland the metropolitan form of development which has been rapidly taking place in it during the past two or three years.

CONTEST GINGER.

Why not go a mile a minute until 9 o'clock tonight? That is "going some" and it is what you need to take you round the laps before your rival.

Be a pace-maker, and a pace-breaker. Break all your own previous records of vote-getting as well as those of others.

We know what people can do on a BIG VOTE NIGHT when they set their minds to it. Is Oakland slower than any other city? Well, we should hope not.

Look like a winner on February 25th and you are likely to BE A WINNER on March 22.

Very few races are won on the home-stretch unless the rest of the race has been consistently run, and when you can go so much faster at first than later on it would be the most foolish negligence not to "put your best foot foremost now."

The more you do on Saturday the better you will feel on Sunday. Run along now and tell all your friends what you expect of them.

There will be no further change in the vote rate up to the end of the Contest. The only way in which you can now secure more than 8000 on a New Yearly is by securing an EXTENSION of a subscription given you during one of the previous periods.

Look over the list of candidates. You will see that there are but a few actively at work. Have you given a subscription to your favorite candidate? Not an apology for a subscription, but a real paid-in-advance subscription for a whole year? It will certainly make some heart glad, and they may be the votes necessary for your favorite to win. Of course you can afford it. Remember the five spot you blew in on the boys the other night. A subscription to THE TRIBUNE will bring you good cheer and plenty of bright news for a whole year.

HOW MANY VOTES WILL WIN.

Many are the guesses and surmises as to how many votes it will take to win the Chalmers Touring Car. We are just as much in the dark as the most inquisitive candidate of them all.

Of course the more it takes to win, the better pleased we shall all be, but we can't tell any more than you can whether the Big Car will go for many more than the next one, or whether the first, second, third or fourth district will come in at the last triumphant over all the rest. The work done during the next eight days will decide the winners as well as the number of votes necessary to win.

It would be perfectly impossible at this minute to form any definite opinion even if you knew just where each candidate stands today. In the opinion of the Contest Manager you would make a safer bet to lay your wager on what you know of the character of the contestants rather than on anything that has been done so far.

There are some who by their spirit of cheerfulness, diligence and intelligence, show that they are naturally in the winning class. On the other hand, if you have ever conducted a Contest you would know that there is no business in the world more full of surprises, and the very candidate whom you have mentally tagged as "Slow" may surprise you with a brilliant burst of speed which you were far from guessing they were capable of, and which may keep the leaders panting to keep their places.

FOUR PRIZES FOR EACH DISTRICT.

Each district will be awarded four prizes, as follows:
 AUTOMOBILE. TRIP.

DIVISION OF TERRITORY.

District No. 1.—Comprises the city of Oakland west of and including Grove street and Emeryville.

District No. 2.—Comprises the city of Oakland east of Grove street and East Oakland to Fruitvale Creek, and Piedmont.

District No. 3.—Comprises the cities of Berkeley, Alameda, the annexed territory consisting of Fruitvale, Melrose, Fitchburg, Elmhurst, etc.

District No. 4.—Comprises Alameda and Contra Costa counties and all places not named above.

The classified columns of THE TRIBUNE are an ideal medium for the sale of realty. Each day many who are interested in the purchase of farms, suburban and city property, look over the offerings that are listed under the various headings among the wants.

In describing realty for sale use enough words to tell concisely the location, acreage, special advantages, description of buildings and all other information that is necessary to insure for the reader a good description of the property that is offered.

Be explicit, be concise, but do not sacrifice too much to brevity. There's a buyer ready for property that is presented in the right way at the right price. You can find the buyer by inserting a small for sale ad in these pages. Try it.

LAUNCHES BEAUTY ON SEA OF PARIS SOCIETY

Holman Paints Picturesque Princess Erisdoff of St. Petersburg.

COMBES ANNOUNCES HIS RECOLLECTIONS

American Colony Stricken by Craze to Publish Memoirs.

(By MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE.)
Paris, March 11.—To an American artist belongs the distinction of having launched in an artistic way, the most picturesque princess who has visited Paris since the days of my youth. The American artist referred to is Frank Holman, the well-known painter and colorist. The picturesque Princess is the Princess Erisdoff of St. Petersburg.

I first met her at a reception given in her honor by Mr. Holman. Here were exhibited not only the paintings of the host, but many painted by the Princess herself. She is really a great artist and one of the most beautiful women I have ever seen. The night I was presented to her she wore a yellowish dress striped in black which gave her somewhat the appearance of a tiger.

Although her face is extremely gentle in expression, her eyes are quite yellow and they look as though they could be cruel. Otherwise this Russian princess is so lovely that words fail in all attempts to describe her.

SUPERB PORTRAIT.

Mr. Holman has painted a superb portrait of her which will be seen in this year's salon. At this reception I met Countess de Coelogen, who was Miss Blake of Boston, and Mrs. Hal I. Burton of Bridgeham and Miss Fanny Reid.

Every one of note seems to be publishing memoirs. We have memoirs of Waldeck-Rousseau, who established the ministry of republican defence and secured the pardon of Dreyfus. Old Emile Olivier, the unfortunate prime minister of Napoleon when the Franco-Prussian war broke out, is working day and night on his autobiography.

And former Minister Combes announces his recollections. Some of the mite must find very unpleasant. For instance, he promised a pension should be paid from the proceeds of the confiscated church property, but these billions have been stolen and squandered until there is not enough left to pay the lawyers and other officials engaged in the sale.

Combes declares that his memoirs must not be published until twenty years after his death. It is probable that by that time no one will care to read them.

COLON YEFFECTED.

The craze for publishing memoirs has struck even the American colony. Miss Fanny Reid has published a volume of Parisian memoirs and the Countess de Spottiswood Mackin has published her recollections of a society woman on two continents.

Last year Lole Fuller brought out one volume of her experiences and is writing another. So it may be that memoirs are the fashion.

May I utter a word of warning to those good American women who are the best customers of Parisian dog merchants. The French love their bull dogs, tiny creatures that are more fashionable than any other. Now our dog merchants are not always satisfied with a fair profit. Here is one of their ways of getting rich.

The dishonest dog merchants, before delivering the dog to its owner, administer a slow poison. The American lady who has purchased it is usually self-hearted. Where dogs are concerned, as the poison works, the lady's sympathy goes out more and more to the poor little animal. By the time the dog dies she is greatly attached to it. In her sorrow she goes to the dog merchant and asks him to get her another like the dear one departed.

COUNTESS MAKES BOW TO SOCIETY

Daughter of Grand Duke of Russia Is Picture at Debut Ball.

LONDON, March 11.—Much to the disappointment of the London society, Countess Zia, daughter of the Grand Duke of Russia, decided that their lovely daughter, the Countess Zia, should make her debut at Cannes instead of at the English home of Kensington. Countess Zia, however, is not particularly enamored of the English winters and planned to give a magnificent ball for her daughter's coming out, which occurred at the Villa Kashbey, and which the whole of Cannes and the surrounding neighborhood attended. Countess Zia looked charming in all white, except for a knot of scarlet flowers. After helping her parents receive in the ballroom, dancing until the ball ended. Among the guests were the Grand Duchess Anastasia and the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

'LIBERTY' MAY HAVE A RIVAL

Red Men Want Colossal Statue of Indian in New York Harbor.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The colossal figure of "Liberty," which greets incoming passengers from over sea, may have a rival. A statue of more majestic height is proposed, to occupy an equally conspicuous position. The new figure is to be that of an Indian, tomahawk in hand. The exact position is uncertain; some of the United States reservation in the harbor may be used. The enterprise is backed by the Red Men of America. There are some critics who have been kind enough to suggest that the figure is too suggestive of the conventional sign of a tobaccoist and not suitable for such a position.
